Much Talk, Little Done. Hitler's First Year. Victor H. Hanson Wonders. Evil Is Good, Gone Wrong.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

MR. MORGENTHAU, Secretary of the Treasury, apparently agreeing with Carlyle that "the more men talk, the more likely they are to do nothing else," tells Washington correspondents frankly that he does not mean to take them into his confidence concerning the President's plans for currency "stabilization," any discussions with Great Britain on that subject, etc.

THE COUNTRY gathers in a vague way that this country has set up a "stabilization fund" of two thousand million dollars, which will be used to buy or sell currency, according as our national wisdom may dictate, to put our dollar up or down, or keep it steady, as we choose.

Half a dozen experts will be consulted, but no one will know whose advice has been taken; only the President and Mr. Morgenthau will know.

Apparently there will be discussions with Great Britain and an agreement if possible, for a currency war with Great Britain, says Mr. Morganthau, would be expensive for both countries.

The public, blissfully ignorant, can only hope that our "conversations" with England about money will not turn out as did our conversations about warships at the Washington conference. Then the United States junked new battleships, some half-finished, and England junked blue-prints.

The British are able "conversers."

BERLIN YESTERDAY celebrated the first anniversary of Hitler's rise to power. His appearance, and that of other dictators, are among the results of war, turning back the clock of progress. The natural course was from tyranny to monarchy, from monarchy to a republic. War turns back to the days of tyrants.

All these newly-made absolute rulers, Mussolini, Kemal Pasha, Stalin, Hitler, have been remarkably stable, and have had overwhelming support from the people ruled by them. The final story is to be written later.

HITLER'S administration claims as one year's "accomplishments" reduction of unemployed from six to four millions, destruction of all political parties except the Nazis, withdrawal from all connection with the League of Nations, abolition of labor unions, legislation for sterilization of the unfit, and licensing journalists, and, finally, "elimination of Jews from many branches of private life, and from all public offices."

That last "accomplishment" Germany will regret later. Before the big war began, the Kaiser had eliminated Jews from all diplomatic posts, and his good "Nordic" diplomats gave him information and prophecy about 100 per cent wrong.

Any one of a hundred intelligent German Jews could have told him that Italy would not stick to the alliance with him and Austria, that England would not see Belgium invaded and France conquered without entering the fight, and that the decaying Hapsburgs would not be worth their salt in a real war.

VICTOR H. HANSON, owner of the News and Age-Herald, of Birmingham, Ala., traveling up and down in the country with his friend, Erskine Ramsay, coal and iron man, declares that conditions are improving, rapidly.

He does not prophesy as to what they will do later, but everything is better now, including coal and iron, on which Birmingham depends largely.

Mr. Hanson, one of the really able newspapermen in the country, who spends his money principally in gifts to charitable and educational institutions in memory of his wife, believes in concentration. He bought up competing papers in Birmingham, which helped simplify his problem.

MR. HANSON wonders why W. R. Hearst will not syndicate the "American Weekly Magazine," distributed with Hearst Sunday newspapers, and allow other Sunday papers to distribute it also.

Said Mr. Hanson last night to Col. Frank B. Shutts, owner of the Miami Herald:

"Hearst's American Weekly has five million five hundred thousand circulation now. I should think he'd just as soon get ten million circulation by letting other newspaper publishers print it."

He adds that he has talked to Mr. W. R. Hearst about that, and will talk to him about it again. To develop a newspaper magazine printed in colors, able to develop circulation, is no child's play.

WHERE YOU find achievement and success, you find energy, and energy sometimes involves surprises. A young English woman, Mrs. Amy Johnson Mollison, you remember, flew from London over oceans, forests, jungles, beat all records, both of men and women, up to that time, and married the man she considered England's next best flier.

Arrested for speeding near Fort Lauderdale on Monday, she got away from the policeman four different times, much to his disgust, and he reports that she scratched his face, hit him and bit him, and told him "she liked a fight."

The judge fined her fifty dollars, which seemed reasonable.

CHARLES FOURIER said that what we call evil is always a perversion of something that is good.

The policeman who arrested Amy Mollison encountered a temporary perversion of the energy that makes her one of the world's most wonderful fliers. If he had caught a lady

3 RED PILOTS SET RECORD, KILLED

Russians Soar 12.79 Miles, Plunge to Earth in Gondola

By LINTON WELLS
International News Service.

MOSCOW, Jan. 31.—(INS.)—Flung to the earth when the metal gondola of their stratosphere balloon became detached from the gas-bag, the three Soviet aeronauts who set a new unofficial world's altitude record of 12.79 miles were killed yesterday afternoon, it was officially announced today.

The accident occurred near the village of Potiisoy-Ostrrog, several hundred miles southeast of Moscow.

Although International News Service was informed of the disaster in a brief statement from civil aviation officials early in the day, formal announcement was deferred until the Communist Party Congress assembled here this afternoon.

PUBLIC STATEMENT

At that time, M. Ulikedzie, a member of the government police bureau, appeared before the Congress and made the following perfunctory announcement of the tragedy which brought a sudden end to what promised to be the greatest of all flights into the stratosphere.

"On January 30, between 3:30 and 5 p. m., at the village of Potiisoy-Ostrrog, southeast of Moscow, the stratostat broke away from the balloon and hit the earth.

"Under the shock, the balloon rose and disappeared.

"Eye-witnesses report two explosions were heard at the time of the crash."

"In the gondola, three corpses were found, one of which was mutilated beyond recognition.

"All the scientific instruments and everything inside were smashed."

The victims of the disaster were Paul Fedeseemko, commander, Ilya Oususkin, his assistant, and Andrey Vasenko, designer of the balloon.

CRASH CAUSE BARED

While no official explanation was given as to the cause of the crash, International News Service learned reliably that it was due to inability of the aeronauts to check the speed of their descent.

They had thrown overboard virtually all ballast in an attempt to reach the maximum altitude and released gas for the descent. As the balloon came in contact with damp climatic conditions near the earth, the hydrogen in the gas bag contracted and accelerated the speed of the descent.

The crash occurred in an isolated, sparsely inhabited area, accounting for the lapse of time before news of the disaster reached Moscow. The time given by Ulikedzie for the crash meant that the balloonists were lying dead for hours in the gondola while scores of airplanes and searchers on foot and in automobiles scoured the countryside for trace of them.

Greece to Oust Insull Tonight, U.S. Informed

SAMUEL INSULL

REFUGEE DENIED MORE TIME

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(INS.)—Greece has notified this government that it intends to expel Insull, former Chicago utilities magnate, before midnight tonight, Under Secretary of State Phillips announced today.

Phillips said the Greek foreign office has advised the American legation at Athens this morning that it intended to expel Insull at the termination of his existing sojourn permit, which expires at midnight tonight.

Insull has been endeavoring to obtain an extension of the permit on the grounds that he was too ill to travel. Two physicians who examined him at the direction of the Greek government, however, reported that he was not too ill to travel, providing it was not by air.

Officials here were waiting with interest to see where Insull would attempt to go.

This government hopes he will abandon his attempt to escape extradition and voluntarily agree to return to this country and stand trial in connection with the collapse of his former Middle Western utilities empire.

JAP FLEET TO OUTRANK AMERICA'S

Ex-Cabinet Member In Tokio Sees War Threat

Armaments discussion occupied leaders of governments throughout the world today with these developments:

1—In Japan the Navy Minister declared new vessels would outrank those of the United States at the end of 1936, while a former foreign minister spoke of naval competition leading to "a rupture—even if war is averted."

2—In Washington efforts to expand the fighting forces of the United States included a prediction the Senate would get a favorable report on a "Treaty Navy" bill such as the House has passed and moves in both houses for 5,000 new fighting planes. (See story on Page 2.)

3—Italy officially proposed rearmament of Germany as the "only practical solution" of the question troubling Europe. (See story on Page 2.)

TOKIO, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—The Minister of the Navy told the House of Representatives today that new auxiliary vessels of the Japanese Navy would outrank those of the United States at the end of 1936.

In the House of Peers, Kenkichi Yoshizawa, former foreign minister, said that if the Japanese and American navies were to dictate the programs with which their respective governments enter the naval conference scheduled for 1935, "a rupture would be inevitable leading, if the pessimists' view is accepted, to intensified naval competition—even if war is averted."

He said:

"In view of these dangers, perhaps it would be better to abandon the conference altogether unless preliminary negotiations should show the possibilities of an agreement."

Koki Hirota, foreign minister, who was present, expressed a general but vague concurrence with Yoshizawa's views.

The admiral's statement was presented in writing in response to persistent questioning by representatives on the relative sea power of Japan and America.

The admiral did not mention the navy of Great Britain or of any other power, but confined himself to a comparison of the Japanese and United States navies at the end of 1936.

The figures assumed the completion of the present Japanese naval program, for which appropriations are included in the 1934-1935 budget, now up for discussion by the Diet, as well as the United States program as approved by the United States Congress, exclusive of the Vinson bill.

Rich Insull Offer To Turkey Reported

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—A local newspaper today said emissaries of Samuel Insull had offered the Turkish government $15,000,000 for use in the country's five-year industrial plan if he is allowed to take refuge here.

Two Greek representatives of the former utilities executive, the newspaper reported, have arrived from Athens.

RADIO SINGER OVERCOME BY GAS

Woman, Parents Fall In Home; 2 Others Victims of Fumes

At 9:30 a. m. today Anna Zimet, school teacher and radio singer, slumped over a telephone stand in the Zimet home at 1009 Talbot avenue, Braddock.

Upstairs her father, Nathan Zimet, 60, collapsed back on to his bed as he tried to dress.

Alongside him his wife, Rosie, 59, already was unconscious.

Mrs. Zimet's brother, Philip Young, of Camp avenue, Braddock, arrived, surprised to find that the Zimet grocery store on the first floor was still unopened.

FORCES DOOR OPEN

He forced a rear door, discovered the victims and called the police.

The Zimets had been overcome by fumes from a water heater in the basement, according to Fire Chief T. K. Martin.

For two hours first-aid crews, with inhalators, worked over the three.

Then they were taken to Braddock General Hospital, all in serious condition.

Miss Zimet, a teacher in Braddock's Third Ward School, had reeled to the telephone stand to answer a call, which was from school officials, curious over her absence.

NORTH SIDERS COLLAPSE

Patrol crews of the North Side and Woods Run Police Stations worked throughout the night and early today with inhalators in a desperate effort to save the lives of two North Side men overcome by carbon monoxide fumes shortly before last midnight.

Fourteen tanks of oxygen had been administered to the men, John Beers, 52, of 10 West North Diamond street, and Edward Conn, 65, of Erie street, during the night.

The men were found semi-conscious on the floor of Beers' room by the latter's sister when she failed to hear them talking last night. She ran screaming into the street.

Her cries attracted Sergt. Michael Daugherty and Turnkey Ernest Coberly, who ran into the house and administered first aid while North Side's patrol sped to the residence.

Wagonmen William Walsh and Joseph Kronz, attached to the North Side Police Station, together with Wagonmen Robert Purvis and Joseph Conley, of the Woods Run Police Station, administered oxygen until the men were partly revived.

They were removed to the Allegheny General Hospital, where officers continued to administer oxygen.

Police said Conn, who had gone to visit Beers last night, was still in a critical condition.

Overcome by Gas in Home

MISS ANNA ZIMET.........COLLAPSED OVER A TELEPHONE

Miss Zimet, school teacher and radio singer, overcome by gas today with her mother and father in their Braddock home. She collapsed as she answered a telephone call from school officials.

RECORD COLD SNAP BROKEN

The winter's coldest spell was waning today with prospect of normal weather for the next few days.

The lowest temperature last night was 8, compared with 1 below zero yesterday, and the mercury was steadily rising.

Ice was running in both the Monongahela and Allegheny Rivers. The Allegheny remained frozen over at headwaters. Skating continued in the city parks.

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 31.—(INS.)—Pope Pius today sent a telegram to Cardinal Faulhaber, archbishop of Munich, congratulating him on his escape from death or injury in an apparent assassination attempt last Saturday.

Doctor Blames Kidnap Notes on Boys' Prank

An effort to trace the author of kidnaping letters and notes sent to Dr. C. I. Buvinger, of 842 Rebecca avenue, Wilkinsburg, an eye and ear specialist with offices in the Bessemer Building, was being made by Department of Justice agents today.

The kidnaping missives threatened Dr. Buvinger's wife and their three children with death unless $5,000 was paid. Reporting the case to Wilkinsburg police, Dr. Buvinger said he was inclined to believe the letters were the work of joking high school boys, according to Police Chief James Harris.

Paper on which the threats were written is like that used in high schools, Harris said. One of the letters bore an East Liberty postmark, but letters dropped in the mails in Wilkinsburg during the night are taken to the East Liberty Postoffice, Harris said.

Dr. Buvinger made no request for a police guard for his family, Harris declared. H. A. Bangert acting agent-in-charge at the bureau of investigation, admitted the matter had been reported to him, but refused to discuss it further.

Dr. Buvinger, too, refused to comment to newspapermen.

Cannon's Son Accused Of Beating Students

HAGUE, Va., Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Juvenile Court Judge Watt T. Mayo today joined Westmoreland County officers who are investigating charges that Richard Mason Cannon has been guilty of "cruelty" to several boys attending his "military college."

Cannon, a son of Bishop James M. Cannon, Jr., came to this county from California a short time ago bringing with him 10 boys and one instructor for the military school he previously conducted in the West Coast state.

Using a site at Meta, Va., Cannon conducted his school without attracting outside attention until this week when two of the boys ran away and after being returned to the school complained that they were beaten unmercifully. These charges, together with others alleging mistreatment on the trip across the continent and after the party's arrival here, are under investigation by Judge Mayo who today went to Meta accompanied by county officers.

STATE WARS ON FEDERAL CHARGES

Injunction Bans U. S. Plan to Levy on Million Gallons

HARRISBURG, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—The state and the federal governments locked horns today in a legal battle over the collection of liquor taxes.

Attorney General William A. Schnader obtained from the Dauphin County Court a temporary injunction restraining the three federal internal revenue collectors in Pennsylvania from exacting a license fee from all state stores and a floor tax of 90 cents a gallon on approximately 1,000,000 gallons of state-owned liquor.

The store license fees would aggregate more than $6,000 and the floor tax would total about $900,000.

LAWRENCE NAMED

Collectors named in the rule are Alvin Fix, David L. Lawrence and Leo C. Mundy, with headquarters in Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Scranton, respectively. Copies of the restraining order were dispatched to the three district offices.

Today was the "deadline" for collection of the tax and fees and Schnader said he was informed that agents were reported ready to close state stores in their districts if payment were not made.

A further hearing to determine whether the injunction shall be made permanent is scheduled for Monday. It was granted by President Judge William M. Hargest.

The federal license fee is $25 for each retail liquor store and $100 for each wholesale store.

BALKS INTERFERENCE

The 90-cent floor tax is the difference between the former federal tax of $1.10 a gallon on liquor and the new rate of $2 a gallon. It applies to all liquor on hand for sale January 12. Schnader estimated the state would be assessed for about 1,000,000 gallons under these regulations and contends that because the liquor is the property of a sovereign state the tax is not collectable.

Schnader's petition said that the state stores system is an integral part of the Pennsylvania liquor control plan, that proceeds go into the State Treasury for stipulated purposes, such as unemployment relief and old age assistance, and that in operating the stores the state is carrying on a governmental function expressly authorized by the Legislature.

He contended that if acts of Congress are construed as imposing fees upon the commonwealth they are void in that they would impose a tax "on property and instrumentalities of a sovereign state" and would violate the Tenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, which gives to the states all rights not expressly given to the federal government.

The injunction is a complete restraint upon the internal revenue collectors in the collection of taxes or license fees from state stores and prevents any interference with the store system.

CONTROL BILL APPROVED

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Making ready to enforce the new law regulating liquor sales in the capital, the House today approved an initial appropriation for the control machinery.

The joint resolution, sent to the Senate, would appropriate $26,667 for liquor control for the rest of the government's fiscal year, which ends June 30.

Titmous Thanked By Queen for Lift

CAMBRIDGE, England, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Mr. and Mrs. Percy Titmous received a letter today from Queen Mary. Her majesty expressed to the Titmouses her grateful thanks for their assistance Monday when the Queen's automobile broke down on the road between Cambridge and Ely.

On that occasion Mr. Titmous transported the Queen in his little sedan from the stalled royal limousine to the Queen's destination in Cambridge.

5,000 FIGHTING PLANES PLANNED FOR ARMY AND NAVY

PREPAREDNESS CRY RINGS IN CONGRESS

Senate Measure Would Give Navy 102 New Warships

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(AP.) A horde of more than 5,000 Army and Navy fighting planes would be ordered for the two services under plans afoot on Capitol Hill today as a preparedness cry rang in Congress.

Efforts aimed at expanding America's fighting forces were seen on both the House and Senate sides.

Chairman Trammell, of the Senate Naval Committee, said he would submit today a favorable report on a navy bill similar to the Vinson big navy measure passed yesterday by the House.

102 NEW WARSHIPS

The bill, virtually assured of Senate approval, would give the Navy 102 new warships and around 1,180 new airplanes by 1939.

Chairman McSwain, of the House Military Committee, said he would introduce in the next day or so a bill to give the Army Air Corps a five-year expansion program, increasing its planes up to 3,000.

Comparatively unnoticed as the Vinson bill swept through the House was an amendment backed by a "take the profit out of war" group.

Proposed by Representative Tobey (Rep.), of New Hampshire, it would limit to 10 per cent the net profit of contractors assigned the building of naval vessels or airplanes. The net profit would be figured against the amount of the total contract assigned.

FULL TREATY NAVY

The House, without even a record vote, approved a full treaty Navy of 240 ships by 1939, augmented by the greatest air force in the history of the service. Naval officials estimated the cost at $570,000,000.

Although the Navy Department held secret its plans for the new vessels already building and proposed, officials indicated privately that the increased effectiveness of the ships would make the projected fleet superior to the 1919 Navy, when 559 vessels were listed as "fit for service."

Representative Darrow (Rep.), of Pennsylvania, argued in the House yesterday for a treaty navy "to avoid war."

Discussing the Vinson bill, Darrow approved it and said:

"We ought to do everything in our power to prevent war.

"To me, this bill is a step in the right direction. It is insurance costing us $380,000,000, or a little more, to keep us out of another war that would cost billions.

"The necessity of building our Navy up to treaty strength was never more apparent to me than it is today."

RAQUEL GREETS AMES IN WEST

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Rumors of a romance concerning Raquel Torres, Mexican film actress, and Stephen Ames, New York broker and divorced husband of Adrienne Ames, gained strength yesterday when Miss Torres affectionately greeted Ames as he arrived on an early train from New Orleans.

Ames was asked:

"When are you and Miss Torres going to announce your engagement?"

He replied:

"It's a little premature—these reports of our engagement."

Miss Torres later confided that it "was a great thrill to see each other. Mr. Ames will be here for a while—and I'm very happy!"

But on the engagement question she was silent. She declared:

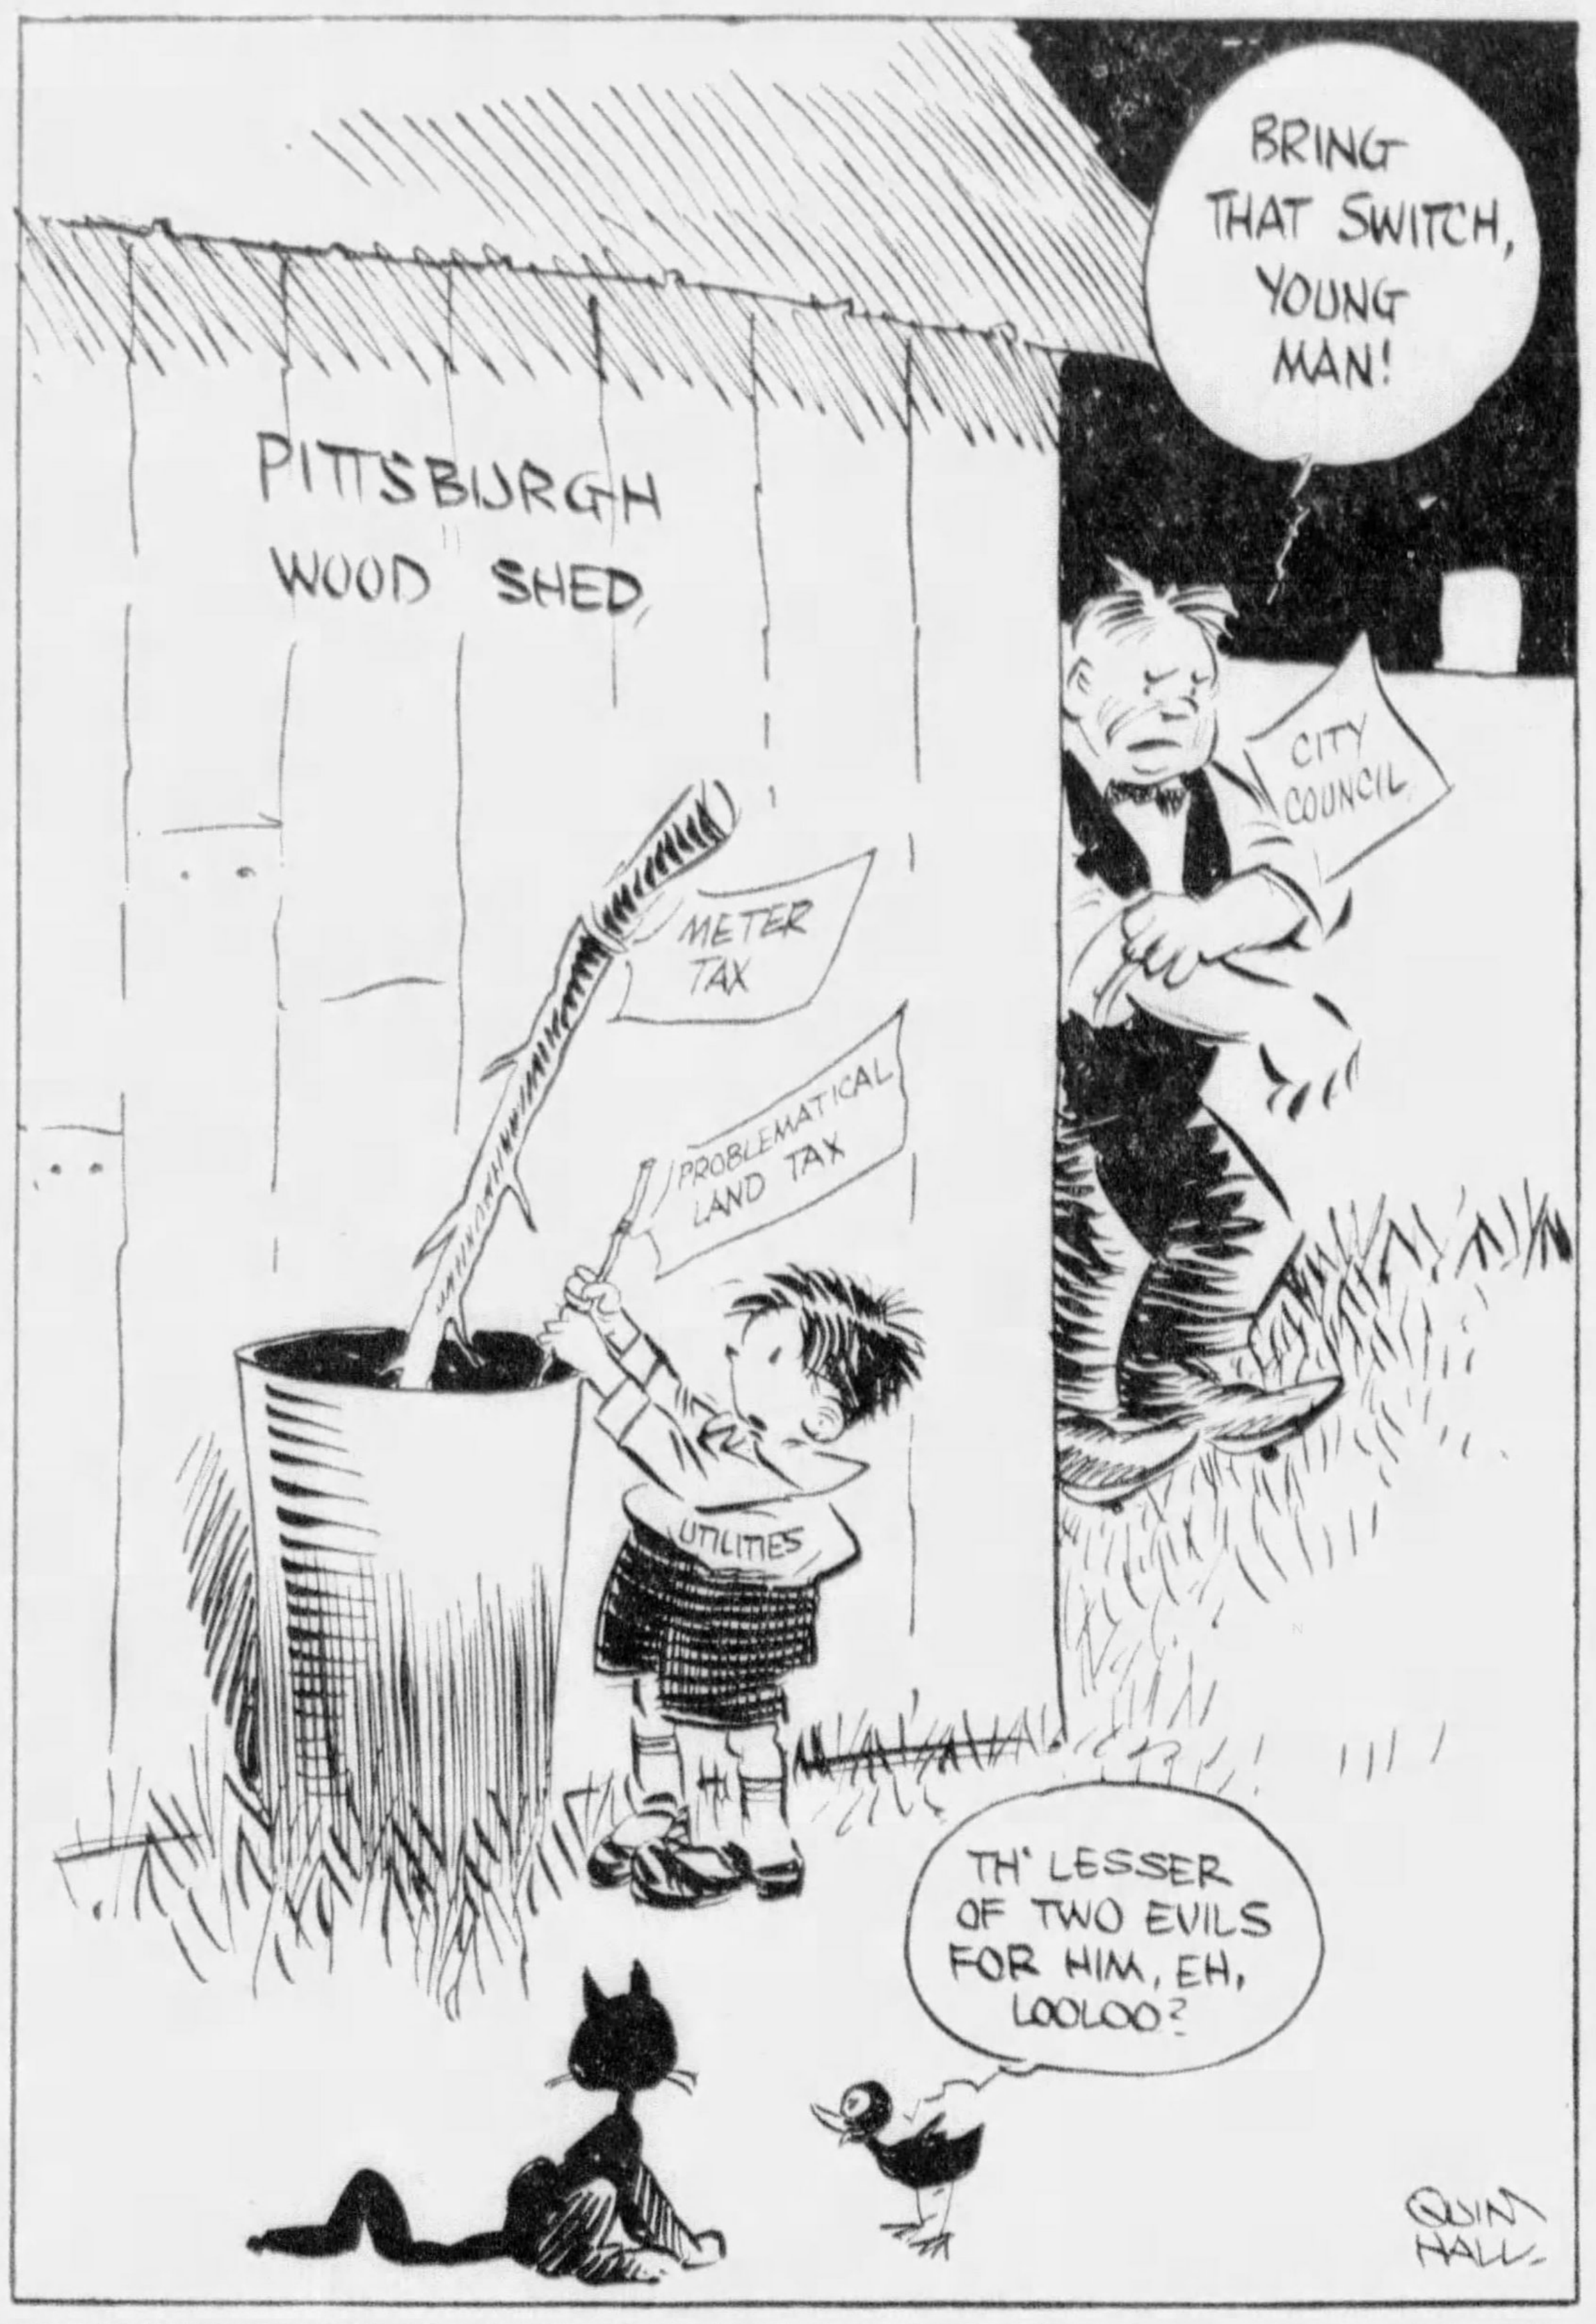
"It's true he gave me a beautiful pearl brooch when I saw him in New York on my return from Europe, but that was all."

Dollfuss Bodyguard Put in Jail as Nazi

VIENNA, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—The Austrian government's drive against Nazis reached into the official family of Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss today.

A secret service man, Franz Bauman, a member of the Chancellar's bodyguard, was jailed as a Nazi. It was Baumann's duty to supervise arrangements for the Chancellor's personal safety.

Choosing His Own Weapon -:- By QUIN HALL



SEAWAY URGED BY LA FOLLETTE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Senator La Follette (Rep.), of Wisconsin, told the Senate today that the government is spending more money from public works funds for flood control on the Mississippi River and its tributaries than the St. Lawrence seaway would cost.

The Wisconsin Senator said the lake states were willing to bear their share of the flood control costs, but in return asked for "just consideration" of the Great Lakes seaway.

La Follette also denounced as a "vicious falsehood" charges that most of the money contributed by the United States for the project would be spent for Canadian labor and Canadian materials in dominion territory.

This charge has been made, he added, "for the evident purpose of arousing national envy."

He read a letter from Brig. Gen. George B. Pillsbury, assistant to the chief of Army engineers, saying only 20 per cent of the money spent by the United States would go to the employment of Canadian labor.

PRESIDENT NOT TO AID GUFFEY

International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31.—Neither President Roosevelt nor the Democratic National Committee will interfere with the selection in Pennsylvania of Democratic candidates for United States Senator and Governor, according to Postmaster General James A. Farley.

Farley, who was in Philadelphia to deliver a speech last night, said:

"The President wants to see Pennsylvania go Democratic in November but I feel sure he will not take any part."

Democratic political leaders here interpreted Farley's statement as indicating a policy of neutraility, if factional fights develop over the aspirations of Joseph F. Guffey, of Pittsburgh, for the senatorship, and Warren Van Dyke, of Harrisburg, for the governorship.

Farley commended the work of both Guffey, Roosevelt patronage dispenser in Pennsylvania, and Van Dyke, who is chairman of the Democratic State Committee.

AIMEE'S JUDGE BANS 'DIRT'

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—An admonition he would not tolerate "any dirt being brought into my courtroom" was given today by a Superior Court Judge to attorneys for the plaintiff in a $240,000 breach of film contract suit against Aimee Semple McPherson Hutton, evangelist.

Judge Leon Yankwich issued his warning at a point when Homer Johnstone, one of the attorneys for the plaintiff, began testifying concerning an asserted conversation with the late Joseph Ford, one-time lawyer for Mrs. Hutton. The Judge said:

"I don't want any dirt. Mr. Johnstone has informed me he wants to testify regarding a conversation which alleges that Mrs. Hutton was in a house with a man. I am not interested in dirt."

Johnstone charged the reason the evangelist did not carry out the terms of the contract for a projected motion picture was because of a "scandal with Cromwell Ormsby." The suit was brought by the estate of the late J. Roy Stewart, film director.

POLICE TO SHIFT --'NO SHAKE-UP'

Police Supt. Benjamin R. Marshall today scouted the rumor that a wholesale shake-up will be made in the police department tomorrow. He said:

"A few transfers—involving only five or six patrolmen—will be made."

Marshall also announced that Capt. Albert J. Beebe, veteran police officer with the department for 31 years, had resigned because of ill health. Beebe has been in charge of the South Side and Mt. Washington districts. He asked retirement on pension. The police head lauded Beebe's record and said the city loses a good officer in Beebe's retirement.

Rumors of a shakeup have been current in the police department since Ralph E. Smith became Director of Public Safety 10 days ago.

Defense Rests Case In Touhy Gang Trial

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—(INS.)—The defense in the trial of Roger Touhy and his henchmen, Albert Kator and Gus Schaefer, for the kidnaping of John (Jake the Barber) Factor, rested its case today.

This came as a surprise, since none of the defendants took the stand and the state offered no rebuttal witnesses. Arguments to the jury were to begin at once.

Business College's Former Head Dies

SHARON, Pa., Jan. 31.—John P. Amspoker, 69, former head of the Amspoker Business College, died yesterday after a short illness. Until four days ago he was an instructor in the CWA school.

PA. BANKS GET NO U. S. AID

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Not one cent has been received by the 136 closed state banks in Pennsylvania from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation of the Federal Deposit Liquidation Board although William D. Gordon, secretary of banking, in making the announcement, said they are entitled to $85,200,000.

Gordon's statement was made after it was reported in Washington that the RFC had loaned 600 million dollars to closed banks.

The secretary of banking disclosed that of 30 applications filed by Philadelphia closed banks, only five, or 17 per cent of the total, have been approved by the local committee named to act on such applications. In contrast, he said, 41 to 42 applications, or 98 per cent, had been approved by the local committee in the Western Pennsylvania district.

Those approved await action in Washington, he said.

Receipt of the money would more than double the amount returned to depositors, he asserted. They have been reimbursed for 54 million dollars of their deposits so far, he said.

SOVIET EAGER TO PAY DEBT

By KINGSBURY SMITH

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Soviet Russia has let this government know informally that it wants to hurry up and pay some money on its debt and damage claims to this country.

This was learned today as State Department experts rushed ahead with the complicated task of working out details of payments and how the money should be distributed among American claimants when it is paid.

Soviet Russia's eagerness to start paying up its obligations to the United States was conveyed to the State Department by Alexander Troyanovsky, the Soviet's first ambassador to this country.

Outside of the little European Republic of Finland, Soviet Russia is the only debtor nation which has made a point of expressing eagerness, not to mention impatience, to meet its obligations to this country.

ITALY FAVORS RE-ARMING OF GERMANY

Only Solution for Problem, Rome Declares

ROME, Jan. 31.—(AP.—Italy came out in favor of the rearmament of Germany as the only practical solution of the armaments questions, in an official memorandum issued today.

This rearmament, under the Italian plan, would be based on status quo for other powers on the principle aspects of their armaments.

LIMITATIONS LISTED

The following limitations, however, would be applied:

1—Abolition of chemical warfare.

2—Prohibition of bombardment of civil populations.

3—Limitation at present levels of military expense, not bound by treaties in force.

4—Limitation to its present size of terrestrial equipment of these powers.

Agreement of conventions for achievement of the four points could be reached quickly, the memorandum holds, and could be made to remain in force until 1940.

Italy contends France would have ample security under such arrangements, even in the face of Germany's rearmament, particularly in view of the fact she would not be called upon to reduce her present armaments.

SIGNIFICANT POINT

A significant point brought out was that acceptance of the Italian proposal might induce Germany to return to the League of Nations. This point, informed circles said, was stressed to help win France over to the plan.

Finally, the memorandum suggests, once a basis of accord is reached, a meeting shall be held under terms of the four-power pact to provide for drawing up an agreement.

Representatives of other major powers (including the United States) were not referred to by name but would be invited to sit in at such a meeting. France, Germany, Italy and Great Britain are signatories of the four-power pact.

Introductory portions of the memorandum indicate that a Europe which will be broken up into hostile groups is feared unless something is done immediately to reach a practical agreement.

F. N. DOUBLEDAY DIES IN SOUTH

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Frank Nelson Doubleday, 72, known to the book world here as "the man who made publishing a business," died last night in Miami, Fla.

He kept a list of "writers who write." They were the authors whose works he accepted and published.

Among them were names such as O. Henry, Rudyard Kipling, Gene Stratton Porter, Booth Tarkington, Edna Ferber, Rider Haggard, C. N. and A. N. Williamson, William McAfee and a host of others who achieved fame in the world of literature.

Next Task Before Congress Is Clean-up of Nation's Stock Exchanges, Says R. W. Child

By RICHARD WASHBURN CHILD

Noted Author and American Ambassador to Italy Under Two Administratons.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Congress is aware that the next major move of the administration is control of stock exchanges.

The demand for radical change has accumulated on the President's desk and has been growing more powerful as the country realized that, however necessary the orderly buying and selling of securities may be, a large part of our troubles arose from speculation. Secretary Roper has prepared for the administration a report on the evil and regulation of exchanges. Congress now awaits new orders from the quarter-deck.

Aside from the minor abuses by which the customer has beeen shorn by brokers' thimblerigging, the major menaces of the security exchanges and markets as they have been run should now be understood by almost everyone.

THE WHOLE fabric woven by yesterday's stock exchange systems, and their Pollyana publicity, and their traffic in badly sweetened corporation reports, led the whole country up a mountain of false values.

False values and high expectancy, beautifully colored by hired economists and high pressure sales of new issues, put us on a pinnacle from which the foot of sound credit kicked us into the cocked hat of depression. We woke to the present morning-after that followed, as always, super-exhilirations.

Undoubtedly, the President is thinking that before the crash came, money which might have been employed in creative endeavor was loaned and reloaned to gamblers and "pool artists." The roulette wheel became the country's merriest business and on one cared much whether the dice were loaded. What difference did it make that the big fellow took hunks of loot so long as you and I on this debauch got what he left after he had gulped down the top and the middle.

On we rode to ruin!

THEN WE saw the big fellows and then hangers-on, financial and political, sell the U. S. short to hasten the toboggan slide.

Now, we are beginning to see realities. Such a period of pumped values, distended by an orgy and delirium of fantastic expectancy, brought another evil—perhaps worse than any the administration believed. There grew up a fraud, not upon the gambling public, but upon the whole honest-savings, investment public. This interests the administration still more.

What was this devastating delusion?

It was the irresistible movement to build, in our bloated confidence, double our capacity to consume. The urge was on the bankers who went outside of legitimate banking into super-salesmanship to make their profit, or ''spread'' on the sale of securities. Let the money be invested in unneeded plants! Let the condition be created, where nationally, we can make double the number of steel rails our railroads can use and twice the number of shoes our population can wear, or even let American funds be garnered and dropped down the sink holes of foreign welshers—on with the dance!

YOU CAN still hear that type of banker who comes to Washington, telling officials that this depression can be traced back to the waste of the great war. But infinitely worse was the waste of wealth in the great peace. War blew up some wealth, but peace blew in still more.

That stock exchanges, uncontrolled, hastened rather than bettered the spree leading to quicksand from which we are emerging, no one denies.

It is almost certain that the President, though realizing the legitimate function of issuing tokens of mortgage and ownership such as stocks and bonds, will continue to stand against lies, deceit and promises painted as fair by an elaborate narcotic security sales system.

It is equally the opinion in Weshington that the rigged dealing in these tokens of wealth by exchanges, including the old practices and manipulations of pools and pumpery, must not come back.

The President surely wants to put an end to it.

A low is centered north of Lake Superior, lowest pressure reported (29.06 inches) at Port Arthur, and extends southwestward over the central valleys and plains states. There is another center south of Brownsville, Tex. There is considerable cloudiness due to these disturbances, but there was only light snowfall in the extreme north and light to moderate rain in Texas and Louisiana. The high pressure that caused the cold weather the last few days is now centered over North Carolina: Raleigh, 30.50 inches barometric pressure, and another high is located over the plateau section of the Rocky Mountains. The weather is mild all the way into the Northwest. Cold weather continues over the Atlantic Coast states, but it will moderate today. Frost occurred this mroning as far south as Tampa and at Jacksonville the temperature was 28 degrees.

PECORA DRAFTS EXCHANGE CURB

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—After rejecting the attempt of New York Stock Exchange officials to discuss a stock market regulatory bill in secret, Ferdinand Pecora, special Senate Banking Committee counsel, today began to write the measure.

Pecora has been entrusted by the committee with the task of drafting the proposed law, and its provisions are expected to be of the strictest nature.

He has announced he does not believe adequate remedies for existing evils will be afforded by the proposal to license exchanges with a federal administrator to make the rules.

Direct statutory measures prohibiting certain exchange practices are favored by Pecora. These features are believed to include the formation of pools in stocks, certain aspects of margin trading and other questionable Wall street customs.

Pecora took his stand in the face of the President's special interdepartmental committee's indorsement of the licensing system of regulation in place of the proposed statuatory ban of certain types of transactions.

BROWN'S STOCK OPERATIONS STIR SENATE

Washington Expecting Expose Rivaling Teapot Dome

By PAUL C. YATES

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Hot on the trail of an expose that has widened till it threatens to rival Teapot Dome, the Black Senate Committee, investigating ocean and air mail contracts, today sought to trace the ramifications of huge stock market trading accounts in which Former Postmaster Walter F. Brown held a half interest.

Senator Black (Dem.), of Alabama, declared that Brown's holdings, camouflaged under dummy names, reached a peak value of more than $3,000,000 in 1929.

OVERSHADOWING FEATURE

The revelation that this high official of the Hoover administration engaged in gigantic stock market operations overshadowed testimony showing that huge masses of correspondence dealing with ocean and air mail contracts and the qualifications of postmasters were burned just before he quit office.

Exxistence of a secret trust account set up by Brown was revealed today before the committee.

Details regarding this fund were withheld temporarily due to the heated protest of Republican committee members against the baring of "confidential information."

Meanwhile, the committee planned to delve more deeply into the operations of two huge market trading accounts which showed a debit balance of more than $2,400,000.

One of these was concealed under the name of the "B-50 account." Witnesses declared it was maintained by Brown and his close business associate, the late James H. Bagley, of Washington, on a 50-50 basis, through the Washington firm of G. M. P. Murphy & Co.

The other, with the same two participants, was maintained through the firm of Bell & Beekman in Brown's home city, Toledo, O.

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Former Postmaster General Walter F. Brown, whose administration is being investigated by a Senate Committee, today declared that "apparent efforts" were being made to mislead the public regarding certain of his stock holdings.

PRESIDENT SET TO CUT DOLLAR

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt conferred this afternoon with his monetary experts and an early move toward lowering the gold content of the dollar appeared imminent.

A proclamation fixing the gold content of the dollar somewhere between 40 and 50 per cent, less than at present, is the next step in the Roosevelt managed currency program.

Those who met with the President today were Secretary Morgenthau, Gov. Black, of the Federal Reserve Board; Gov. Harrison, of the New York Federal Reserve Bank; Profs. George E. Warren and James H. Rogers, monetary experts, and Herman Oliphant, counsel to the Treasury.

Hisses in Court Bring Balm Appeal

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Counsel for Mrs. Myrtle Tanner Blacklidge, former collector of internal revenue, asked for a new trial of the alienation of affections suit against her today, charging that hissing, laughter, and other courtroom demonstrations had prejudiced the jury.

Mrs. Susanne Nottingham, a policeman's wife, was awarded $7,500 from Mrs. Blacklidge for the theft of her husband's love.

ABOARD ADMIRAL BYRD'S FLAGSHIP, LITTLE AMERICA, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—The Bear of Oakland, supply ship of the Byrd Antarctic expedition, arrived at the Bay of Whales last midnight (6 a. m., Eastern Standard time today).

The vessel hove into sight at a critical time in the camp at Bay of Whales. Crumbling ice has endangered supplies, which are being landed and taken to the winter camp.

U.S. Employes Win Back 10 Pct. of Pay Slash

International News Service

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Government economy, which imposed a 15 per cent pay slash last year on federal employes, will be relaxed to the extent of a 5 per cent restoration from February 1 to July 1, and a 10 per cent restoration after July 1, under amendments written into the independent offices appropriation bill today by the Senate Appropriations Committee.

The amendments have the approval of President Roosevelt.

The amendments will eliminate 5 per cent of the pay cuts, beginning tomorrow. Another 5 per cent will be eliminated in the new fiscal year, starting July 1.

The effect of this action will be to limit the pay slash after February 1 to 10 per cent of the classified pay scales, which existed prior to enactment of the economy act. After July 1, federal employes will receive 5 per cent less than the classified rates.

The committee also approved an amendment, eliminating the economy act ban on pay increases, due to promotions or length of service in the five military services.

Income Tax Returns Publicity Rejected

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The House Ways and Means Committee today rejected a proposal for complete publicity of income tax returns as a part of the new tax revision bill.

The committee referred a general sales tax proposal to a subcommittee, voted to make the federal gasoline tax a manufacturers' sales tax, and decided not to force single tax returns in community property states.

Representative Crowther (Rep.), of New York, offered a motion to include a 2½ per cent general manufacturers' sale tax, with food, medicine and clothing exempted, to yield over $400,000,000 a year.

He coupled with it a repeal of $350,000,000 of selected sales, miscellaneous and nuisance taxes now being imposed.

After Crowther offered his motion, Representative Sanders (Dem.), of Texas, moved to send the sales tax issue to a sub-committee in an effort to shelve it. Democratic members voted solidly for the Sanders motion, with all but two Republicans supporting Crowther who served notice that he will carry the sales tax fight to the floor.

After rejecting the general sales tax, the committee voted to transfer collection of the one-cent-a-gallon sales tax on gasoline from the filling station to the first manfacturer.

Clings to Relief Post In Fatal Crash Row

GREENSBURG, Pa., Jan. 31.—(AP.)—A. W. Grotefend, executive director of the Westmoreland County Emergency Relief Committee, asserts he will not resign as a result of the state investigation into the motor crash in which three relief workers were killed last week.

His resignation had been demanded by the board after state welfare officials had inquired into the deaths of Robert Hammers 23, of Irwin, and Miss Barbara Magee, 30, of Mahaffey, fatally injured on the way home from a party of relief employes.

After a coroner's jury yesterday exonerated James A. Parker, of Delaware County, a bus driver, and Michael Hanna, of Latrobe, a motorist, of blame in the triple automobile crash, Grotefend said:

"This thing isn't over yet. I'm not going to be crucified. The responsibility is not going to be put on my shoulders. I haven't a thing to be ashamed of. I expect to go to Harrisburg later this week. The party was started by Robert Stroud."

Stroud is a field supervisor for the state emergency relief board.

MILLIONS DANCE ON ROOSEVELT'S 'HAPPIEST' BIRTHDAY

NATION FROLICS AT BENEFIT PARTIES

6,000 Balls Bring $1,000,000 for Cripples

Associated Press.

America danced into the dawn today to give its President "the happiest birthday I have ever known."

After the ball was over—the 6,000 or more balls that were held in every state and territory of the union—a fund that may reach one million dollars was held forth to the President for the benefit of sufferers from infantile paralysis.

Figures that are official will not be available for several days, for the committee in New York which directed the amazing party honoring the anniversary of Franklin Delano Roosevelt's birth, asked the thousands of local committees not to spend money in telegraphing dollar and attendance statistics to it.

A canvas by the Associated Press showed today, however, celebrants numbered more than a million and that receipts will reach, and perhaps exceed, one million dollars.

DEMOCRACY KEYNOTE

Democracy keynoted the night. Swells in tail coats and lumberjacks in flannel shirts, lovely ladies with jewels about their necks, and Indian squaws who wear babies on their backs—white man, Negro, Esquimo—all creeds, all colors, all classes—danced at this birthday party which had 48 states and Alaska for its floor.

Then there were those at Warm Springs, Ga.—Franklin Delano Roosevelt's "other home"—who danced, though their legs are manacled by the cruel cuff of infantile paralysis which the national birthday party proposed to alleviate. They did not dance with the elegance of the swells, with the abandon of the Negroes or the violent energy of the men and women of the wide open spaces. Theirs was an old-fashioned square dance, and they "danced" in wheel chairs.

It was for these victims of infantile paralysis, and for additional hundreds similarly unfortunate who now may have a chance at the benefits afforded at Warm Springs, that President Roosevelt was happiest.

But when he spoke to "my friends," the American people, over the air last night, it was with expressions of gratitude for the gesture to him, but more than all it was gratitude for the substantial gesture of gold that will enable the realization of a long dream for the endowment of Warm Springs as a place where children and adults who, like himself, have been struck down by infantile paralysis, may find relief and help.

SWANKY AND INFORMAL

The balls themselves were by turn swanky and informal. There were in New York 40 major parties with leading hotels providing the setting.

George M. Cohan, who was born on the Fourth of July (some say with an American flag in his hand) sang at the Waldorf the official song of the night, dedicated to the President, and called "What a Man."

Detroit's 36 birthday parties, with Mrs. Henry Ford as one of the patrons, grossed $85,000, including gifts.

At Washington, high officials lent their presence to sparkling celegrations, and a great illuminated likeness of the President glowed.

The world, some people said today, never saw such a birthday party honoring a living man.

THE EARLY MORNING BATTLE AGAINST THE FIVE-ALARM FIRE IN CENTER AVENUE TODAY

Parties for President May Bring Clinic Here

Medical Leaders Seek Center for Fight On Paralysis

Establishment of an orthopedic center in Pittsburgh was in prospect today as the result of last night's success of the Roosevelt birthday parties.

Only part of the fund raised by the dancing parties here would be turned into the national fund for research work at the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation, it was revealed authoritatively today by James C. Chaplin, executive chairman of the Pittsburgh ball committee, and Miss Elizabeth S. Arbuthnot, general chairman.

What proportion would be retained for use in Pittsburgh had not been decided, Chaplin explained. This will be a matter for the entire committee to pass upon, probably within the next faw days.

DISCUSS CENTER PLAN

The local committee had discussed the proposed establishment of an orthopedic center here with Keith Morgan, general chairman of the national committee, Chaplin said. He also said several members of the committee had discussed the matter informally with members of the Allegheny County Medical Society, declaring it would be taken up again at a later date for formal consideration of the county's medical leaders.

Main among the numerous Roosevelt parties and dances held in the Pittsburgh metropolitan district was the "Presidential Ball" at the William Penn Hotel, attended by more than 3,000 per- Arbuthnot led the grand march to the rhythms of a 55-piece orchestral unit of the United States Army Band, which, with two 25-piece orchestras, provided the music for the affair.

LARGE GIFTS DONATED

Pittsburghers donated large gifts to aid in defraying expenses of the ball, which, it is expected, will net $25,000.

Celebrations also were held by nearly 300 residents of Mt. Lebanon and Dormont, at the South Hills Masonic Hall, West Liberty avenue; the Siena Club, of St. Catherine's Church, Beechview; the New Century Club, Dormont, and the Central Labor Union, at the Mayfair Hotel. Other presidential balls were held at Washington, Pa., Canonsburg, Butler, Charleroi, Wilkinsburg, Monessen, McKeesport, Clairton, Glassport and Port Vue.

Film Stars Drink Roosevelt Toast

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 31.—(INS.)—Hollywood celebrities joined in the birthday party for President Roosevelt. More than 1,000 men and women at a hotel here drank a toast proposed to the President by Marie Dressler, film star. Dick Powell, was master of ceremonies.

At Shrine Auditorium the masters of ceremonies were Jimmy Durante and Joe E. Brown, assisted by Sally Rand, Jackie Cooper and Shirley Ross.

Faulty Sprinklers Sound Fire Alarm

Firemen were called to the Chaplin-Fulton Manufacturing Company at 38 Penn avenue when a sprinkler system went out of order and turned in a still alarm early today. There was no damage.

FIRE ROUTS 12 ON NORTH SIDE

Twelve persons were routed from bed and damage estimated at $8,000 was caused when a two-alarm fire swept through a garage and warehouse at 2219-21 East street early today.

Three buildings were damaged by the blaze which firemen battled four hours. Firemen, working in near-zero weather, were handicapped by a water shortage.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bauer, of 2217 East street, were awakened by smoke in their home and called for aid. An alarm was sounded and when firemen arrived they called for additional engines.

Clara Krohe, 22, of 2251 East street; Dorothy Kim, 22, and Rita Kim, 17, sisters, of 2321 East street, en route home, saw the flames and roused the occupants of a three-story frame dwelling at 2223 East street.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Kocher and their daughter, Jean; Keller Tolley and his wife, Margaret; three children, Margaret, 18; John, 15, and Lila May, 9, and Mary Gold and a son fled from their apartment at 2225 East street.

The building in which the fire started housed Miller Brothers Transfer Company and Hofmann-Grossman, roofers.

6 Children Escape When Home Burns

GREENVILLE, Pa., Jan. 31.—Eight members of a family, including six children, escaped when fire today destroyed the home of Wade Lightner, on the Mercer-Greenville road. One of the children, Helen, 8, was awakened by the smoke and aroused the other members of the family.

5-ALARM BLAZE ROUTS SCORES ON HILL

$45,000 Damage Done By Spectacular Fire In Lumber Yard

A five-alarm fire swept the buildings and yards of the Center Lumber Company, 1848 Center avenue, shortly before 5 o'clock this morning. Fire Chief Richard L. Smith estimated the loss at $45,000.

Three persons were taken to hospitals and scores of families were ordered from their homes by police when it appeared that the flames were getting beyond control of firemen.

At 8 o'clock this morning many of the score of companies that answered the alarms were still pouring water into the ruins, but the blaze was under control at 7 o'clock.

BLAZE SPREADS RAPIDLY

The fire was reported to have begun in the sawdust shed of the lumber company, and it spread rapidly into the one-story brick office building of the company in Clark street extension.

Before firemen arrived the blaze was raging in the planing mill on the second and third floors of another building on Rose street, and in the intervening space used as a lumber storage yard.

It then spread to the Burke-Kholos automobile repair shop, Rose street; the lumber company's garage at 1851 and 1853 Rose street; two brick residences at 1845 and 1847 Rose street, and the A. J. Fisher Scale Company, 1857 Rose street.

In the automobile repair shop nine automobiles were destroyed, and in the lumber company's garage a truck and several private cars also were burned.

3 TAKEN TO HOSPITALS

Those taken to hospitals were Patrolman Thomas Scanlon, injured when he fell near a burning building; Hoseman Michael Brown, suffering from exposure, and Mrs. Libby Meyers, 60, who tripped over a hose.

Seven other firemen narrowly escaped injury when a section of flooring on which they were pouring water toppled inside the planing mill.

The fire blazed high and the reflection in the sky could be seen from many points in the city. When Fire Chief Smith answered the second alarm he sent in three more alarms within 20 minutes when the fire threatened to spread.

When the fire was at its height police went from door to door in the vicinity routing families. In the Hebrew Institute in Dinwiddie street the watchman patroled the roof, stamping out flying sparks and embers.

MANY FAMILIES ROUTED

Eleven families from the Parker apartment were forced out, six more in another apartment at Center and Dinwiddie street, and many others from other houses in Center avenue.

Those who left their beds were herded into the Irene Kaufmann Settlement nearby, where the children were served milk and coffee was poured for adults.

The cause of the fire was not learned. The glow was discovered by police at Center Avenue Police Station, directly across the street.

The flames also threatened a gasoline station at Dinwiddie and Center avenue.

Wurtemburg School Destroyed by Fire

ELLWOOD CITY, Pa., Jan. 31.—Fire today swept the four-room consolidated school at Wurtemburg leaving only the walls standing. The village volunteer company was aided by Ellwood City firemen in battling the flames, believed to have been caused by overheated piping. No children were in the building when the fire was discovered.

Inspecting CWA Work

CWA Union Dues Row Put Up to Washington

Prober on Visit Here Approves Progress On Pitt Work

Satisfied with the engineering progress on the CWA project at the Cathedral of Learning, Robert W. Kelso, CWA field agent, today said the method of collecting union dues from workmen there is a matter for regulation in Washington.

Kelso said he would not pursue an investigation, since reports had been made to the Civil Works Administration and any action must come from the national offices.

The agent inspected the Cathedral project with James L. Stuart, county administrator. They made a tour of the building and interviewed workers. Kelso said he "sensed a fine spirit of co-operation." Earlier he had said he would stop the work if he was not satisfied with its progress.

WILL SCAN CAMP SITE

From an engineering standpoint, Kelso said, the job is progressing satisfactorily. The requirement of some labor unions that men going to work must agree to pay half their wages for dues in arrears apparently still is in effect, he said.

Kelso said he had received several complaints from individuals concerning the requirement. At a conference with Philip W. Gibbs, head of the State Employment Office, he said he would inquire whether any men had been refused employment because they were not affiliated with unions.

Kelso also planned to inspect the proposed camp for itinerants in South Park. He said he was anxious to have the project started.

RELIEF ROLLS CUT

Arriving in the city last night, Kelso attended a dinner meeting of the Social Workers Club in Chatham street Y. W. C. A.

From a total of 4,800,000 families on relief throughout the nation last May, he pointed out that this number was reduced to 3,400,000 at the end of last summer. There are approximately 3,500,000 families on relief at the present time, he said.

The Social Welfare Club adopted a resolution urging erection of a juvenile court detention home on county property located in Forbes street with PWA funds.

DILLINGER BACK AT SCENE OF KILLING

Gangster Reported Convinced He's Going to 'Burn'

CROWN POINT, Ind., Jan. 31.—(AP.)—John Dillinger, the swashbuckling Indiana bad man, tamed by Arizona peace officers, was behind steel bars in the county jail here today, apparently resigned to his fate—a fate which the state hopes will be his execution for killing a policeman.

Apparently deserted by his pals, the desperado was brought back to Indiana last night.

While the state made preliminary plans to try him for the slaying of Policeman Patrick O'Malley during a recent $20,000 bank robbery at East Chicago, Ind., the gang leader began to talk, confessing, Prosecutor Robert G. Estill said, to robberies totalling over $250,000. He denied, however, he had slain Policeman O'Malley. Said the prosecutor:

"Dillinger, is convinced he's going to 'burn' so he's talking. He admitted bank robberies at Racine, Wis., St. Mary's, O., and Greencastle, Ind., and said that it was his 'boys' who liberated him from the Lima, O., jail."

It was during the Lima jail delivery that Sheriff Jess Sarber was shot to death.

Dillinger Just Another Prisoner to Woman Sheriff

International News Service.

CROWN POINT, Ind., Jan. 31.—Calm and confident, Mrs. Lillian Holley, the slim blonde Sheriff of Lake County, today supervised the man-sized job of keeping John Dillinger, super-desperado, behind jail bars. The 115-pound Sheriff said:

"So far as I am concerned, John Dillinger is just another prisoner in my jail.

"Like the 100 other prisoners he will be given three meals a day and a fairly comfortable place to sleep. But because he has such a bad reputation as a desperado, he will be watched—every minute of the day."

Deciding against appointing a force of special deputies to guard the notorious suspect, Mrs. Holley said her regular force of 12 deputy sheriffs will be sufficient to prevent Dillinger's escape or rescue. The officers are armed with machine guns, tear gas bombs and high-powered rifles.

Mrs. Holley, who was elected to office a year ago when her husband, Roy, was killed in line of duty, has guarded "some pretty tough customers here before," she said.

DENY BACK DUES HELD UP JOB

George J. Walters, business representative of Bricklayers' Union No. 2, today denied that Frank Mallon, 5802 Kirkwood street, had been refused a CWA job on the Cathedral of Learning unless he paid back dues amounting to $5 a month for two years.

Capt. W. S. Voorsanger, commander of City Post No. 59, American Legion, had filed the complaint with CWA officials.

According to Walters, Mallon, a former member of the union was asked to pay $1.50 a month for each month he had been dropped from the union roll and 6¼ cents an hour for each hour he works until his back dues were paid up.

MAYOR PASSES TAX JOB TO ALDERDICE

Mayor McNair today dodged the invitation of the Democratic faction in Council to appear before Council and explain his ground-rent plans. Instead, the Mayor suggested that Robert J. Alderdice, the Republican budget controller, should do the explaining.

Previously the Mayor has been quoted as offering to enlighten Council himself.

Council and the Mayor's friend, City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully, kicked around two of His Honor's pet ideas yesterday. Scully reported that the few genuine ground rents in Pittsburgh don't justify the tax on them proposed by McNair.

And Council unanimously rejected, as illegal and discriminatory, the plan of the Mayor and George E. Evans to exempt from taxation for a specified period new houses costing $6,000 or less.

CAFE RUM RAID SNARES FOUR

One woman and three men were being held today as the result of the first raid here on a restaurant charged with selling moonshine from State Liquor Store bottles.

The arrests were made last night by State and Federal agents in a raid on a restaurant at 800 Progress street, North Side. The agents said they found Michael Bogden and Alfred E. Gruber serving moonshine from re-filled bottles.

While the raid was in progress, an automobile stopped in front of the restaurant. The raiders investigated and found, they allege, a 10-gallon keg of moonshine. The occupants of the car were arrested and said they were Mrs. L. A. Rihn and John Roesch, both of Allison Park.

W. H. Beachy, supervising investigators of the liquor tax division, said Mrs. Rihn had signed an affidavit admitting she supplied moonshine to the restaurant.

The four will be given a hearing by Alderman Ray Schneider tomorrow.

KANE'S REALTOR CHARGE HIT

A recent attack on the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board by Councilman John J. Kane has been termed "ridiculous" by E. Herbert Gilg, president of the board.

Gilg at a noon luncheon of the board yesterday denied that a secret lobby was maintained at Harrisburg. Kane had charged that the board represented big realty owners sympathetic with the public utilities and that the board in a secret lobby worked against legislation to provide stay of foreclosures on homes.

J. Roland Brady, secretary of the board, recently answered Kane before Council that the board is not fighting the battles of the utilities. Brady also denied combating legislation in behalf of the small home owner.

11 HELD IN RAID DENY LOTTERY

Eleven men, arrested in a raid on a reputed "numbers" headquarters in the McGeagh Building last Saturady, explained in Central Police Court today that they were not "numbers" writers but were there to borrow money or "keep warm."

The twelfth prisoner, Julius Cohen, 34, of Wooster street, really operated the lottery, his counsel, Attorney Louis Little, admitted.

Police maintain the lottery is the clearing house for the entire Second Ward "numbers" racket.

Council Awaits Utility Offer to Avoid Meter Tax

Utility representatives have been given three days in which to make known to City Council what they are willing to trade for dropping the threatened meter tax.

Unofficially, through a telephone conversation between Attorney E. P. Griffiths, of the Philadelphia Company and City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully, it was stated that the utilities of Pittsburgh may combine to submit their tax-empt real estate for taxation.

This would be possible if Council would forget about the meter tax which for a time held a promise of $3,000,000 in revenue. The total amount which might be realized by the city if all utility real estate were put on the tax books would be $564,000.

It might total less than half of that as much of the exempt land is in railroad right-of-ways which might be difficult to tax under state law.

Another hearing on the proposed meter tax will be held Friday at 2 p. m. More companies are to be heard from on earnings.

A number of the companies had threatened to take the meter tax into court, and City Solicitor Scully said he doubted if the city would receive any cash before June 1, 1935.

Scully said he was hopeful that some money might be received from the utilities this year on their new offer.

A statement from an official of the Philadelphia Company to the Sun-Telegraph was that any payment to the city would be considered as a contribution which might be equivalent to the taxes on the exempt real estate.

Under such circumstances the contribution to the city might be made this year.

TOWNSHIP MEN ELECT CLARK

Louis C. Clark, chairman of the Mt. Lebanon Township Commissioners, was elected first vice president of the Pennsylvania State Association of Township Commissioners as that group entered the final session of its state convention in Wilkes Barre, yesterday.

Other Pittsburgh district men elected are Harry O. Bock, South Fayette Township commissioner, third vice president, and Samuel A Shreiner, of Pittsburgh, to succeed Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar as solicitor for the state association.

The seating of William E. Armstrong as the Baldwin Township delegate brought an echo of the township's political warfare. It's four newly-elected commissioners telegraphed the convention a request to oust Armstrong.

BACK TAX DRIVE PARLEY HELD

The city's campaign to collect delinquent taxes moves forward this afternoon with a meeting of an unofficial committee and City Treasurer James P. Kirk.

James W. Bamford, of the Building Owners' and Managers' Association, today suggested the committeemen who will discuss the plan with Kirk. They include J. W. Cree, manager of the Denny estate; James C. Chaplin, of the Colonial Trust Company; City Solicitor Scully and Councilman William A. Magee.

The purpose of the campaign is to encourage the "big fellows" to pay their delinquent taxes.

HEINZ ALLOWED TO PROBE VOTE

The Pennsylvania Supreme Court, sitting in Philadelphia, has ruled that attorneys for John Heinz, Democratic Sheriff candidate, may examine the records of the November election in the Prothonotary's office.

The court previously had granted Sheriff Frank I. Gollmar, whose election on the face of returns Heinz is contesting, a supercedeas on the ruling of Judge Ralph H. Smith in Common Pleas Court. The supercedeas temporarily halted the examination of the records which Judge Smith's ruling permitted.

The returns revealed Heinz lost the election by 525 votes.

SEEK TO DRAFT R. H. FRANK FOR REES' JOB

Ralph H. Frank, assistant county solicitor and expert on elections, is being sought by the County Commissioners as head of the Elections Bureau, which post was to be vacated today by Maj. William T. Rees, it was learned on good authority.

The Commissioners were reported to have conferred with Frank. His refusal, however, was not accepted and attempts to draft him for the $8,000-a-year job are still being made, it was said.

RESIGNATION IGNORED

Runner-up for the job was said to be the county's chief investigator, Leo A. Riordan, who headed many investigations into false registrations during the two years the commissioners have been in office.

The Commissioners, however, so far have ignored Rees letters "relinquishing" his job as director of elections. Rees, who would like to return to his former $6,500 job of chief clerk to the Commissioners, criticised the Commissioners for interfering in his conduct of the elections bureau. The letters, it is understood, were written to each Commissioner personally, rather than the board.

The criticism brought comment in the form of a written statement last night from Commissioner C. C. McGovern.

It is indicated that the friendship of many years, over which Rees broke from the administration of the late Joseph G. Armstrong and remained idle for several years to follow McGovern, had been definitely broken.

STAND OF M'GOVERN

McGovern stated:

"I was both surprised and disappointed to learn of Director Rees' resignation, and especially for the reasons given.

"To say he was hampered in the administration of the election work would hardly be believed by any person in the county who knows the attitude of the board in the interest of better elections.

"We inherited a bad condition of many years' standing, and this action is only one of the many handicaps which we have had to meet.

"We are going to have better elections, and this or any additional move will be met and overcome."

'RIGGING' STORY DOOMS COUNTY CEMENT BIDS

New bids for more than 7,700 tons of mixed concrete will be sought as a result of the County Commissioners' unanimous rejection yesterday of bids offered by seven supply companies.

Ray Sprigle, director of property and supplies, charged the seven companies' representatives met and "rigged" the prices, so that the county would be charged from $10 to $12 a ton, and the work proportionately split among the bidders.

Chairman C. C. McGovern declared an independent supply man, who didn't "want to cheat the county," declared he could supply the stuff for $8.50.

PRICES DEFENDED

Representatives of the companies defended their bids as reasonable and their prices as fair, declaring that in a rising market, due to the pending NRA codes for sand and gravel companies and truckers, they had to prepare for fluctuations.

They said that because no definite time limit was specified in the county's requests for bids, they had to prepare prices to cover the unusual business risks.

Sprigle charged smaller companies feared to break the combination because they would not be able to get materials to complete their jobs unless they went along.

W. A. Bliss, of the Keystone Sand & Supply Company, replied:

"The combination as you call it is not strictly the 'big four.' Three other smaller companies also enjoy their share of the business of this district."

BOND ISSUE 'CAKE'

McGovern commented:

"It look as if these little fellows caught up with the 'big four'. I know it's a hardship on you fellows, too, but isn't there some way the county can get a reasonable price.

"I recall the big four contracting companies of a few years ago. They divided up the county's business. The part of the bond issue for construction was cut like a cake."

Defending the policy of the companies and their prices were J. E. Burke, of the J. K. Davidson & Company; George H. Lanz of the Lanz Company; W. S. Giles, of the Vang Ready Mixed Concrete Company, and the Iron City Sand Company and others.

Church Property Tax Studied in New York

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(INS.)—Plans for balancing the city budget by taxing $4,689,803,389 in church and charity property now exempt were being studied today by Bernard Deutsch, president of the Board of Aldermen.

Deutsch appointed a committee of 21 members to make a survey of the now-exempt holdings of churches and religious and benevolent institutions. He estimated that at least $25,000,000 additional intaxes would be raised from this source. He said:

"Much of this property is used for commercial and industrial purposes and is a producer of great income."

Constable Duncan Asks Five Deputies

William J. Duncan, newly-appointed constable of the First Ward, has petitioned quarter sessions court to approve the appointment of five deputies, naming John J. Mobrey, Ralph Gaetano, Joseph Baker, Joseph Young and Peter B. Lee. Judge W. Heber Dithrich set February 6 for the hearing.

CURFEW LATER ON CABARETS

The curfew will ring later tonight.

In fact it rang later last night as Police Supt. Ben R. Marshall, on instruction of Safety Director Ralph E. Smith, issued orders that cafes were to be permitted to run until 2 a. m.

Smith's action, effective yesterday, rescinded the command all play spots must close at 12:45 a. m.

Pantages Must Pay Slemp Legal Fee

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—The Superior Court today had ordered Alexander Pantages, theatrical magnate, to pay $15,000 in legal fees to C. Bascom Slemp, once secretary to former President Calvin Coolidge, and Louis Titus, former District of Columbia attorney.

Three arbiters reported the two attorneys rendered services worth $30,000 to Pantages in defense of a criminal action wherein he was charged with attacking 17-year-old Eunice Pringle, a dancer. Pantages had paid $15,000.

TAX OFFICE SET FOR RUSH

Extra hours and extra help were available at the City Treasurer's office today to taxpayers who take advantage of the 2 per cent discount for payment of city and school taxes before tomorrow.

James P. Kirk, City Treasurer, announced today that the office will be open until 9 p. m. During February and March the taxes must be paid at face value. After that a penalty will be added.

PENNSY TO GIVE YEAR OF WORK TO 25,000

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31—(AP.)—Calling on heavy industry to "have courage to do likewise," the Pennsylvania Railroad will launch a $77,000,000 public works program next week.

Nearly 25,000 men on the railroad and in 3,500 industrial plants throughout 35 states will receive a year's employment as a result, President W. W. Atterbury, of the railroad, estimates.

He estimated that 400 men will be employed in the fabrication of materials at the Altoona shops, where another 300 will construct 2,384 cars Altoona will share later in the construction of locomotives, he said.

WORK AT PITCAIRN

Three hundred men will be required to build 2,333 cars at both the Enola and Pitcairn shops. The latter also will share in the electrification program.

Gen. Atterbury, who is 68 today, said, in announcing the program, that consumption industries, such as food and clothing, are 10 to 15 per cent below normal, but that heavy industry is 65 per cent below. He declared:

"Bring this up to about 90 per cent of normal; stimulus will be given to other industries, and we will be getting back to where we all will be happy again.

"It has taken courage to do what the Pennsylvania is doing, and heavy industry must have courage to do likewise."

COMPLETE PROJECT

Completion of electrification of the Pennsylvania's line between New York and Washington—108 miles of right-of-way south of Wilmington, Del., are yet to be equipped—and construction of 7,000 all-steel freight cars are the first and major objectives of the program. Later 101 electric freight, passenger and switching locomotives will be ordered.

The cars and locomotives comprise "the largest single equipment program ever inaugurated by any railroad at one time," Gen. Atterbury said.

PAROLED MAIL SUSPECT HELD

Arthur McCleary, 28, of Roscoe, Washington County, who is under a probation sentence in the Federal District Court, yesterday was turned over to government officers by McKeesport police. He will be arraigned Monday for alleged violation of a two-year probation sentence imposed December 23 in Federal Court, when he pleaded guilty of raising 20-cent postal money orders to $20.20. Since then he has been despondent and was said to have made futile efforts to end his life with poison.

He served a four-year term in the Western Penitentiary for a holdup. The court also was told he had been a model prisoner in the penitentiary and was a member of the orchestra there. When he surrendered Saturday to the McKeesport police he said that last Thursday he raised another small postal money order, and used part of the money to purchase food for the family of a friend.

SCHOOLEY CASH SOUGHT BY CITY

The city today moved to learn whether the late Roy D. Schooley, former city treasurer, left property against which judgment may be obtained to satisfy claims of the city.

City Solicitor C. D. Scully asked Orphans Court for a citation on Mrs. Flora Schooley, the widow, asking her to show cause why letters of administration should not be issued. No will has been filed and no estimate of the value of the estate is available.

NADINE ROAD TO BE OPENED

Workmen today were putting the final touches on a temporary surface on the Nadine "bottleneck" in preparation for its opening for traffic tomorrow.

The strip of road, 1,300 feet in length, has been closed four years by legal tangles over the right of way and has paralyzed use of the Allegheny River boulevard.

Road workers have been working on the temporary surfacing since December, when a three-party agreement was made by the county with the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Pennsylvania Water Company.

The compromise provided the county was to pay $135,000 for removal of railroad tracks and construction of a water conveyor.

Weather conditions have hampered the work of putting on a temporary hard top for the road, Thomas Hasley, highways and bridges director, declared today. The temporary top is narrower than the rest of the boulevard and will be replaced in the spring by a concrete top.

MINERS TO ASK WAGE BOOSTS

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 31—(AP.)—The United Mine Workers of America in convention here today instructed the officers and scale committee to press for a five-day week, six-hour day and wage increases when new contracts are negotiated with operators of the bituminous fields.

The convention also voted to empower its representatives to negotiate with the bituminous operators and through the instrumentality of the NRA the "best contracts obtainable."

The miners' officers are to meet in Washington, February 12, with representatives of the operators to negotiate a new wage scale for the Appalachian region which will also serve as a basis for wage agreements in other districts.

COMPANY UNION NRA PROBLEM

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Hugh S. Johnson told the newly chosen state directors for NRA and the Emergency Council today that success of the recovery program depended on their ability to obtain compliance with the codes.

In explanation of what NRA has done and still has to do, Johnson told the men the enforcement question was "the proof of the pudding." One of the greatest problems they would face, he said, was that involving company unions, adding:

"There is no answer to the argument that many companies created unions after passage of the industrial act to influence their men in their choice of instrumentality for collective bargaining.

"It is a counter NRA device in some small part at least and depending on its execution."

He explained that under the law employes were to be absolutely free of employer influence in their organizations but that the company union was not, as such, outlawed unless membership in it was made mandatory.

ROXIE DENIES HE'S ON 'SPOT'

Rocco DiPippa, better known as Roxie Long, Hill district racketeer, was back in Pittsburgh today denying reports that he was "on the spot."

DiPippa, paroled yesterday from the Federal Penitentiary at Lewisburg, dismissed with a wave of his hand threats received by him and his wife, Virginia. The threats were said to have resulted from his appearance as the government's star witness against 21 co-defendants who were convicted in a liquor conspiracy case.

His return was contradictory to reports that, upon his release from prison after serving nine and a half months of a one-year sentence on the liquor charge, he would serve a five-year probationary sentence in some other city to escape his avengers.

DiPippa said that under the parole, which has 72 days to run, he reports to a federal probation officer in Detroit. Under the five-year probation term he will report, he said, to Probation Officer George G. O'Brien, of Pittsburgh.

WEIRTON POLL ORDER AWAITED

By JOHN P. COWAN
Sun-Telegraph Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—President Roosevelt was expected to issue an executive order today providing for a poll of steel workers outside the mill gates of the Weirton Steel Company.

By a house-to-house canvass, the National Recovery Administration hoped to determine the true attitude of the workers on the election of employe representatives conducted within the mills by the company.

The proposal pleased a group of men who carried direct to the President a complaint against the so-called company union election held last month.

Representing the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, the delegation headed by William J. Long charged the steel workers were coerced into voting.

Gen. Hugh S. Johnson, NRA Administrator, said the text of the President's executive order was being prepared by Donald R. Richberg, general counsel for the NRA, and would be in the President's hands today.

CHIEF TO TALK ON RETAIL CODE

Dr. Kenneth Dameron, deputy retail code administrator, will explain the retailer's duties under the NRA at a meeting this evening in the Chamber of Commerce.

In his talk, entitled "The Retailer and the Retail Code," Dr. Dameron will deal with enforcement authorities and measures. He will also answer many questions which the NRA and the retail code have brought local merchants.

The meeting will be under the auspices of the Retail Code Authority of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Dameron is NRA deputy administrator of the distributing trades and assisted in the formulation of the retail and a number of manufacturing codes.

The Retail Code Authority has jurisdiction over retail department stores, specialty stores, limited price variety stores and mail order houses in Allegheny County. Its members are Leo Lehman, I. D. Wolf, Hugh F. McKnight, Jacques Blum, David P. Berman, W. H. Burchfield, B. B. Croup, A. J. Mansmann, Albert J. Schmidt, W. B. Hamilton, Raymond Price, Boris Emmet, P. L. Sample, Joseph W. Steele and James H. Greene.

LEADERS LAUD LESSON IN WAR PICTURES

Stripped of its heroics and brass bands, the tragedy of war, as depicted in the uncensored World War pictures being published weekly by the Sun-Telegraph presents a "tremendous argument in favor of national defense and maintainence of peace," educational and civic leaders said today.

Judge M. A. Musmanno, of Common Pleas Court, lauded the series as "most effective." He declared:

"These pictures show war without its tinsel and brass bands, and the Sun-Telegraph is to be congratulated on showing the people an angle of war not usually portrayed. They further show the absolute need of preparedness, both spiritual and actual, all to the end that there shall never again be such horrors as we view in them."

TEACHING LESSON

Dr. George J. Fisher, deputy chief scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America since 1919, said:

"The more we can do to make boys see there is no glory and glamor in war, the better. Surely no one has suffered more from the effects of war than the youth of nations. But as long as the world is as it is, we must have a strong national defense. The United States is not a militaristic nation. No greater evidence of that was shown than when we entered the World War—there were not even guns. These pictures surely tell the story and should have a widespread effect."

Almost en masse, men who saw action in 1917-1918 battlefields are indorsing the photographs. Typical is the following excerpt from a letter sent to the Sun-Telegraph by Joseph R. O'Brien, commander of South Side Post, No. 453, American Legion:

"They bring back many memories, are very true and unexaggerated. We trust that the people will take them in the spirit they are offered and heed the lesson they present."

PREPAREDNESS APPEAL

Belief that the United States never should permit itself to reach a point where such scenes might be enacted on its own soil, was expressed by Col. Staley A. Campbell, professor of military science and tactics at New York University. He said:

"Graphic as they are, these pictures present unanswerable argument against a repetition of the World War. They should convince every man, woman and child of the necessity of maintaining an Army and Navy that is wholly adequate for our national defense.'"

U. S. TO KEEP UP WAR AGAINST KIDNAPER

Attorney General's Pledge Given to Congress

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(AP.) Congress today received from Attorney General Cummings a pledge to continue to make life as miserable as possible for the kidnaper and the racketeer—if the people are willing to provide the money.

Before the House Appropriations Committee in hearings made available today, he reported an "intensive" campaign by his department against "snatchers" and other criminals and added that it is meeting with "highly satisfactory results."

He spoke of a need for overcoming a "twilight zone" between federal and state anti-crime authority.

Handwriting Studied For Lindy Clue

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(INS.)—Crime experts of the Department of Justice have turned to handwriting in an attempt to solve the mysterious kidnaping of the baby son of Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh.

J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Bureau of Investigation, told the House Appropriations Committee that 300 handwriting samples were compared with the original Lindbergh notes during November. He said:

"We are constantly on the alert for the persons who perpetrated the Lindbergh kidnaping and murder and their handwriting is one of the best clues that can be followed in investigation of the case."

The Justice Department has tracked down guilty persons in the 15 kidnaping cases it has been called upon to handle since June, 1932, Hoover reported, adding:

"Every one of these 15 cases was solved within 30 days."

Convictions of 43 persons was obtained in kidnaping cases with 10 more awaiting trial.

Bootleggers Battling To Rule Wet States

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(INS.)—Bootleggers are making a desperate fight to retain their hold in the wet states, John S. Hurley, chief of the alcohol beverage unit of the Department of Justice, informed the House Appropriations Committee in testimony made public today.

Urging funds to maintain a strong enforcement unit, he declared the big bootleggers will not give up without a struggle. He said:

"I might say that much of this violation is going to occur in the so-called wet states," he said.

"They are going to flood wet states, and they are going to be able to sell cheaper than the legitimate dealer, and that being so, they are going to have a market for their product."

COUNTY MANAGER PLAN URGED TO CUT TAX

Penn State Probers Attack Obsolete Government

(Today's article deals with a study and report made by two representatives of Pennsylvania State College, regarding changes in county government.)

A county manager plan for each of the 67 counties in Pennsylvania is suggested as one means of putting county governments on a more business-like arrangement, by F. P. Weaver and H. F. Alderfer, who published a report of their study of county government in a bulletin issued recently by Pennsylvania State College.

These two gentlemen have made a thorough study of 20 years' trend in costs of county government in 13 of the 67 counties. They list the financial responsibilities of the counties as placed by the Legislature, the responsibilities of the County Commissioners, and of other elected officials. They also review at length the relation of size of the county unit, density of population and numerous other important factors, to the costs of county government.

OBSOLETE SYSTEM

The authors, in referring to our present system of county government, state:

"It is an eighteenth century institution in a twentieth century world. There is hardly a piece in the entire structure that originated later than 1834 and most of its working principles are of even more ancient origin."

The two gentlemen recommend for adoption in Pennsylvania, a state tax commission similar to the one now functioning in Indiana. The Indiana commission and its operation was reviewed in yesterday's article, one of a series the Sun-Telegraph is publishing in its campaign to reduce governmental costs through elimination of waste and duplication.

Discussing our own state as compared with Indiana, the authors report:

"If the taxpayers feel that the government is spending too much, what recourses have they if the public authorities—particularly local authorities—ignore requests for reductions? The answer is, none in most states."

Mr. Weaver and Mr. Alderfer then review the merits of the Indiana plan, pointing out it is possible for 10 taxpayers to appeal to the state commission to review their (the taxpayers') local budget, millage, or proposal bond issues. During the first 12 years the Indiana plan was in operation, appeals were heard from more than 1,200 taxing units and in more than 600 cases reductions were made.

CHANGES SUGGESTED

Included in the report of the study is a list of suggestions which Mr. Weaver and Mr. Alderfer offer for improving county government under the present set-up.

Under this heading are six important changes, which are as follows:

1—Reduction in the number of elective officers and consolidation of certain offices within the county, such as abolishing elected clerical offices and having the deputies and clerks who now perform the work of such offices, serve as appointees of the County Commissioners. The fiscal offices might easily be consolidated into one office and most of the functions of the treasurer could be performed by some bank appointed by the commissioners and the court.

2—Uniform accounting and auditing for counties, prescribed by the state.

3—Uniform auditing and publication of all incomes and expenses of officers under the fee system prescribed by the state.

4—More responsibility for regulating salaries placed upon the salary board by having the state fix only maximums for each class of counties and having the salary board answerable to the voters for salaries under this maximum.

5—More enabling and less mandatory action on the part of the state. Have the state share with the county the responsibility for raising revenue required for certain mandatory expenditures.

6—The creation of machinery, based on the "Indiana Plan," whereby a group of taxpayers of certain fixed minimum size, or better yet, representing a certain fixed minimum, percentage of all taxes paid to the county, can obtain a review of proposed expenditures, tax levies, bond issues or changes in salaries by some unbiased, non-political state commission or board.

OTHER PROPOSALS

Going further, the authors make three recommendations for a more business-like set-up for county government, which can only be brought about by changes in the constitution.

These three recommendations are:

1—Election of a Commission of three or five members and a controller. The commission to be responsible for all expenditures of county money other than court costs.

2—Employment of a county manager to serve under the County Commission.

3—Appointment by the Commission, with approval of the county court, of all subordinate officers and employes to serve under the direction of the county manager; or the placing of responsibility for the appointment of all subordinate officers and employes on the county manager with the approval of the Commission.

QUIZ WYNEKOOP IN MILWAUKEE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Earle Wynekoop, 30, who had been missing during the trial in Chicago of his mother, Dr. Alice L. Wynekoop, charged with the slaying of his wife, Rheta, was found here today living under an assumed name in a rooming house across the street from the police station.

He was picked up this afternoon by two detectives, who were unaware of his identity. He was held for two and a half hours at police headquarters. He was released when authorities were advised by the Chicago state's attorney's office that he was not wanted there.

Wynekoop told officers he had been in Milwaukee since January 10, coming here on the advice of attorneys to avoid subpenas in his mother's murder trial, which ended in a mistrial several days ago. Detectives said he carried a blackjack and kept a stiletto in his room.

Noted Army Horse Given Military Funeral

EL PASO, Tex., Jan. 30.—(AP.)—Seventh Cavalry buglers yesterday blew "taps" over the grave of the U. S. Army's famous horse—Garry Owen.

Sergt. George Lewis, F. Troop, Seventh Cavalry, mourned the death of the gallant jumper he had trained and ridden to victory in horse shows more times than any animal in the history of the Army.

In 1927 civilians at the Boston, Mass., horse show offered to buy Garry Owen for $7,000 from the Government.

The 15-year-old jumper was shot late yesterday after he was kicked by another horse in a corral at Fort Bliss and his leg was broken.

ARM TO BLOCK LION BREAK

Universal Service.

HOUSTON, Tex., Jan. 31.—Keepers went about the Houston Zoo heavily armed today against a break by lions, tigers and other big cats, who were thrown into a frenzy of anger and fright by the plunge through the floor of his cage, of Hermann, 600-pound lion.

Only the fact that he was badly frightened by the collapse of the rotten flooring, kept Hermann from escaping, zoo keepers said. He climbed out of the hole and into his feed box, snarling with rage and fright. Alarmed by his roars, other big cats took up the chorus and the zoo sounded like a wild night in the jungle.

TWO WIVES WIN DIVORCES

Mrs. Marie Matta, of 115 Grant avenue, Millvale, was granted a divorce from John Matta by Judge Harry H. Rowand yesterday following testimony that her husband struck and bit her father after threatening to kill her.

The libellant, who is manager of the shoe department of a downtown store, testified her husband threatened to kill her while she was listening to the radio, adding:

"I felt his fingers around my throat and my daddy came to the rescue. He not only struck my father, but nearly bit a finger off."

Florence May Thielman, of 244 Reifert street, Knoxville, granted a divorce by Judge Rowand from Fred C. Thielman, testified her husband had many occupations. He started as a barber, went to work in the mills, then started drinking and lost his jobs. They were married October 3, 1907. On May 5, 1931, an argument started, he walked out and never returned.

KIDNAPERS MUM ON RANSOM

International News Service.

ST. PAUL, Jan. 31.—Maintaining an unbroken silence for two weeks, the kidnapers of Erward G. Bremer, 37-year-old banker, today had made no effort to inform the victim's father, Adolph Bremer, how or when to pay the $200,000 ransom that has been provided.

To ease his mind from the worry and strain of the long ordeal, the aged father, close friend of President Roosevelt, was devoting more of his time to business matters at his brewery office.

Walter W. Magee, intimate friend of the Bremer family, expressed a hope that the kidnapers will communicate with the missing man's father shortly. It was to Magee that the abductors sent their only ransom demand two hours after Bremer was seized in his automobile January 17.

St. Bernard Monks Establish Life-Saving Service in Tibet—The New Japanese Ambassador

By Edwin C. Hill.

FROM Lhasa, sacred city in the Himalaya Mountains of unknown Tibet, comes the news that monks of the famous St. Bernard Monastery in the Alps have established on the southern boundary of Tibet, in the Si-La Pass, 13,700 feet above sea level and in the region of eternal ice and snow, another great life-saving service such as they have conducted with their heroic dogs for a thousand years in the great St. Bernard Hospice on the Swiss-Italian frontier in Europe.

Almost no single institution has given greater service to humanity than the order which was founded in 962 by St. Bernard. In their great monastery in the Alps Mountains, where the snow piles 30 feet deep in the passes, they have rescued thousands of travelers caught in storm and blizzard. Today their wonderful dogs go out, alone, to search the wind-swept, snow-heaped trails for travelers struck down by cold and exhaustion—dogs like the great Barry which saved 40 human lives and was killed at last by the fortieth man he saved; killed in fright and panic, while on his errand of mercy.

But foot travelers are growing scarce in the Alps. The monks of St. Bernard found time heavy on their hands. So they sent a mission to the Dalai Lama at Lhasa, and from him obtained permission to locate and build another monastery in the high Himalayas, one that stands 6,000 feet higher than their famous hospice in the Alps.

Through the Si-La Pass, where they now work with their almost humanly intelligent dogs, thousands of pilgrims from India and the Far East make their way to the Buddhist shrines of Tibet, and thousands of traders, likewise, going from Central Asia to the plains of Hindustan, or the other way about. Hundreds perish every year, and now the monks of St. Barnard have gone to the rescue, to continue in Asia the service they have carried on for 10 centuries in Europe.

And now, over there on the roof of the world, the stricken traveler, sinking to exhaustion in the snow, will feel a grotesque form thrusting itself through the white shroud; will feel a huge bulk press against him; will feel something warm and wet touching his face. With his last senses he will clutch at a great, shaggy neck, and come to his feet as the wonderful dog noses him upright, and holds him, and supports him, and shows him, as if by so many words, the life-giving flask of brandy hanging at his collar and down the long pass the two will go, the weary traveler staggering at the great dog's side, holding fast to his mane, until the lights of the monastery glow beyond the rise.

New Ambassador Due in February

THE new Japanese ambassador to the United States, Mr. Hiroshi Saito, will arrive in this country sometime in February, and will come bearing an olive branch. It is very obvious, from the expressions of Japanese public men in the past few months, that Japan is eager and anxious to cultivate better relations with this country. She is especially anxious that American gain some clear understanding of what is actually going on in China and in the vast region north of China.

Without question, Mr. Saito will tell our President that the great battle which Japan is fighting in the Far East is not against China, or the broken remnants of China, but against the spread of Communism, the advance of Russia to overwhelm the Far Eastern world.

Japan is not 3,000 miles removed from the menace of Communism, as we are. Communism to Japan is a deadly peril, as it was to Italy, to Austria-Hungary, to Poland and to Germany. The Japanese know that if Soviet Russia succeeds in communizing China, it would mean the ruin and extinction of the Japanese people and the breakdown of civilization.

In the State of Manchukuo, Japan has raised a bulwark against the spread of Red anarchy, and she will fight to the last man and the last woman to block the Red advance. Today, in China itself, the Japanese are helping orderly Chinese governments against the Communist revolutionists that have seized whole provinces. They are doing their best to stamp out the banditry that has wrecked old China.

Japan Fighting Against Opium

AND Japan is fighting a great fight against opium, the curse of the Far East. The Chinese generals, who lead robber armies and bleed the Chinese people white, force the people to grow opium in order that they can collect heavy taxes. Japan and Japan alone is doing the work of civilization in north Asia, and it is to be hoped that a clear understanding of what she is up against can prevail against the propaganda that has spread against Japan and the Japanese in this country for the past 20 years.

Japan is the hope of Asia today. If we can make friends with her, and cease interfering in the work that she is driven to do, we need have no fear of any war with her. The Japanese will have no designs on Mexico or our Pacific Coast, if they can have their way in Asia.

There is probably nothing more important in the foreign relations of the United States of America, except for the strengthening of friendship with the British Commonwealth of Nations, than to become good friends with Japan.

TURTLE CREEK BANK TO OPEN

Plans to open the new Turtle Creek Bank and Trust Company, successor to the Turtle Creek Savings and Trust Company, have been approved by the State Banking Department, according to J. D. Swigart, chief bank examiner of Western Pennsylvania. Papers of incorporation were issued to the new bank yesterday and it will open in the near future, he said.

Capitalized at $200,000, the bank will have insured deposits of about $1,200,000, officials said. Stock in the newly incorporated institution was subscribed to by depositors of the Turtle Creek Savings and Trust Company.

Seventy-six per cent, 50 in cash, the rest in stocks, on unsecured deposits, has been made available, with all secured preferred and some savings deposits available in full, officials stated.

A. L. Faller is chairman of the new bank and W. H. Semmens, Jr., president. Incorporaters are A. L. Faller, G. M. McDonald and Elmer E. Little, all of Forest Hills.

eagle, it would have scratched him also, if possible.

IT IS announced that four recent discoveries in cancer research have meant more in fighting the disease than all other discoveries from the beginning of time. Most interesting is the fact that a rat, free from cancer, when a cancer is planted in its body, immediately develops an "antibody" that attacks the cancer and often destroys it.

This home-made cure for cancer, within the rat's own body, can be taken, attached to a cancer, implanted and removed, and used to combat cancer in other rats.

No experiments have been made with human beings as yet. Once the cancer is firmly established in the rat's body, however, the creature's system seems to give up the struggle, and no further "antibody cure" is developed.

SCIENTISTS warn you that the main cause of cancer is irritation of the tissues.

It may come from irritation of the lips, or tongue, irritation of the stomach's mucous membrane, due to taking liquids too hot, irritation of any kind.

Violent irritation will cause cancer in a short time, slight irritation, long continued, will produce cancer in the long run. Hence the frequency of cancer in old age.

Men and women living longer develop cancer more frequently, as irritation has time to do its work.

Nobody knows how much serious "inoperable" cancer has been caused in women by the curse of tight corsets in days gone by. Don't squeeze any part of your body, or scald it, or otherwise irritate it.

Suffer from Backache?

IF you are miserable with backache, or getting up at night, bladder or kidney irregularities, you should heed the warning—it may be due to an over-abundance of uric acid in the system. Drink copiously of pure water and go to your nearest drug store and obtain Dr. Pierce's A-nuric. Read what Mrs. Mary Lyons of 83 Gilligan St., Wilkes-Barre, Pa., says: "I had an awful pain right across my kidneys and it lasted from morning until night. It was hard for me to get up or down because of the pain in the small of my back. I used only one bottle of Dr. Pierce's A-nuric Tablets and they drove the awful backache away and made me feel fine again."

Send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Clinic, Buffalo, N. Y., for a trial package of A-nuric.

Patricia Pitt

Not for y'ars and y'ars has Pittsburgh society found itself part of such a mob scene as at the Presidential Ball in the Hotel William Penn last night. And a most colorful scene it was. The entire seventeenth floor was used for the celebration. Decorations were very simple in all but the Echoes of Paris supper room and the Hurdle and Halter rooms. The bright gowns, in myriad materials and hues, were ornament enough, it seemed.

And everyone promenaded from one dance floor to another all evening long, from one place to hear the floor show, to another to hear the President's broadcast, and on again, to eat.

Our winter debutante group was well represented, of course. Deb Peggy Mitchell's ball gown was an adaptation of colonial styles, of violet taffeta; it was made with a long, billowy train. Margery Hillman chose a simple black velvet formal dinner dress, made with long sleeves and slit back. Althea Robinson, too, wore black, with long sleeves interestingly slashed in horizontal stripes over the shoulders.

Wreath of Blue Bead Flowers Adorns Hair

Marian Black appeared in black crepe with a black sequin bodice and in her hair she wore a wreath of blue bead flowers. A gown of deep red velvet with a wide revers of flesh-colored crepe forming brief sleeves, and lining the long sash was the choice of Deb Sherley Tunnell. Patsy Mellon wore black velvet.

A pert gown of black taffeta embroidered with tiny gold dots, having a doubly flounced full skirt and puffed bows of the material on either shoulder was chosen by sparkling-eyed Bertha Brooks. Chatting with her near the main ballroom I caught a glimpse of Barbara Verner, in a very fitted sheath gown of old gold moire made with wings of the material extending out over the shoulders.

Helen Ruth Deike's costume was of black velvet with the dropped shoulder line looped up by narrow bands of white bunny. Alice Brown wore black velvet with the brief, off-the-shoulder sleeves lined with silver cloth. Deb Peggy Griffith's white crepe gown was embroidered with gold sequins. She wore shirred red velvet gloves to match her slippers.

Gowns Sprinkled With Gold and Silver Dots

By a coincidence, several members of the committee, as well as others, wore crepe or satin gowns made quite similarly, sprinkled with small gold or silver dots. Mrs. George L. Craig's was of black with silver dots; Mrs. T. Howe Nimick's, of emerald green crepe with gold dots, and I already have mentioned Bertha Brooks' dotted frock.

Mrs. Alexander Laughlin Robinson, Jr., wore a strikingly simple gown of dusty pink rough crepe, having long sleeves, and three rolls of the material over the shoulders, giving the wide-shoulder silhouette.

Trains are much in vogue, but instead of allowing them to trail gracefully nearly everyone loops hers up, even when not dancing. Mrs. T. M. Jones III, wore an especially effective black taffeta gown with a very long train featuring several wide ruffles.

Unusual Effects Obtained in Gowns

Polly Schoyer's black velvet gown had a slight train. Mrs. F. W. Gwinner III, wore turquoise blue crepe with the decolletage faced by turned-back revers of rhinestones. Mrs. Thomas E. Rhodes wore white crepe combined in an unusual manner with orange, which formed the cape sleeves and part of her long sash.

A lovely shade of rose moire fashioned the gown of Madeleine McClintock, the material draped across the front to the right shoulder where it was caught up with a rhinestone clip. Mrs. John F. Walton wore green crepe with brief sleeves of sable.

Mrs. George Singer Ebbert's gown was made with a sweeping skirt of black velvet and bodice of black lace; Mrs. W. L. Jones, Jr., wore wood-brown chiffon with slashed, short sleeves; Virginia Jones was in red velvet with wheels of sable around the shoulders; Mrs. J. B. Drew was in forest green crinkled crepe; Mrs. Simon T. Patterson appeared in scintillating red satin, and Mrs. Burke Rodgers in white satin.

Twins Wear Dresses Made Identically

The Totten twins, Phyllis and Louise, wore red and green bagheera, made identically, of course. I saw attractive Louise Baton in palest rose satin and Mrs. George H. Love in a queenly gown of rose and gold brocade made with a slight train, and Mrs. Arthur P. Woolfolk in green crepe.

Elizabeth Arbuthnot, the general chairman of the ball, wore white crepe, fringed as to skirt, and fringe also bordered her deep cape. The Herbert A. Mays were there, with Mrs. May in black velvet with a deep white fox border around her cape, and Mrs. Clarence Stanley, in black velvet, with epaulets of stiffened white lace; and the Lyle Nelsons, with Mrs. Nelson in black taffeta combined with tulle, made with a flounced skirt. With them were Dr. and Mrs. C. R. Nesbitt, with Mrs. Nesbitt in white crepe, bedecked with rhinestones.

Crepe Finds Favor For Dance Gowns

Mrs. H. C. Bughman, Jr., wore blue crepe and Mrs. J. Henry O'Neil wore black moire, and I caught a glimpse early in the evening of Louise Reed in white crepe with a shirred band of red outlining the decolletage, and of Betty Guiler in orange velvet.

Turquoise blue crepe was worn by Virginia Frew Wright, black velvet by Lydia Irish, white crepe by Mrs. Joseph M. Scribner; green crepe by Marie Louise Bickford, and I noticed Dorothy Blaxter with her mother, Mrs. Henry Vaughan Blaxter.

Mary Carroll, one of the most energetic workers for the ball, chose cranberry red crepe for her gown and Emily Stuart appeared in bright emerald green crepe, and Mrs. Henry Mason Reed wore off-white satin.

Sable and Ermine Used for Trimming

Maj. and Mrs. Reginald Macdonald. I saw, too, with Mrs. Macdonald in black lace with a deep border of sable around the shoulders, and Mrs. Blair Childs in blue crepe trimmed with ermine, and she carried a diminutive ermine muff.

Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson wore black lace, and Mrs. William B. Schiller wore black tulle, with a much beruffled train and cape. Mrs. John W. Ritchie appeared in pale blue crepe.

Colonial Dames Give Promenade of Fashions

The Presidential Ball was the crowning event of yesterday, but there was still another event of great note yesterday—the historical promenade of fashions, staged by the Colonial Dames in the Twentieth Century Club yesterday afternoon.

Never before in Pittsburgh's history have so many heirlooms—wedding gowns, going away gowns, court gowns of ancestors of Pittsburgh society—been on display.

Barbara Stevenson Feted in New York

Today's mail winging from New Canaan, Conn., brings us news of a former Pittsburgh daughter, Barbara Stevenson, daughter of the Walter E. Stevensons, formerly of Thomas boulevard, now of New Canaan.

Barbara, who is a graduate of Rye Country Day School, has returned to Rosemary Hall, Greenwich, Conn., following a gay social whirl in New York.

Her uncle and aunt, Dr. and Mrs. James Morley Hitzrot, introduced her before she returned to school, in the St. Regis Hotel. Then she attended the New York Junior Assembly and the Cotillion Supper Club at the Ritz-Carlton, to which the debutantes of each season are always invited.

Arnold Students To Give Two Plays

The students of the upper forms at the Arnold School, South Braddock avenue, are giving two one-act plays Friday night, beginning at 8 o'clock in Withers gym.

The plays are "Pierre Patelon," a Fifteenth Century farce, under the direction of A. Cameron Mann, and "Le Jour de L'inspection," a dramatization of a French school room.

RED AND WHITE FOR SPRING

By PRUNELLA WOOD

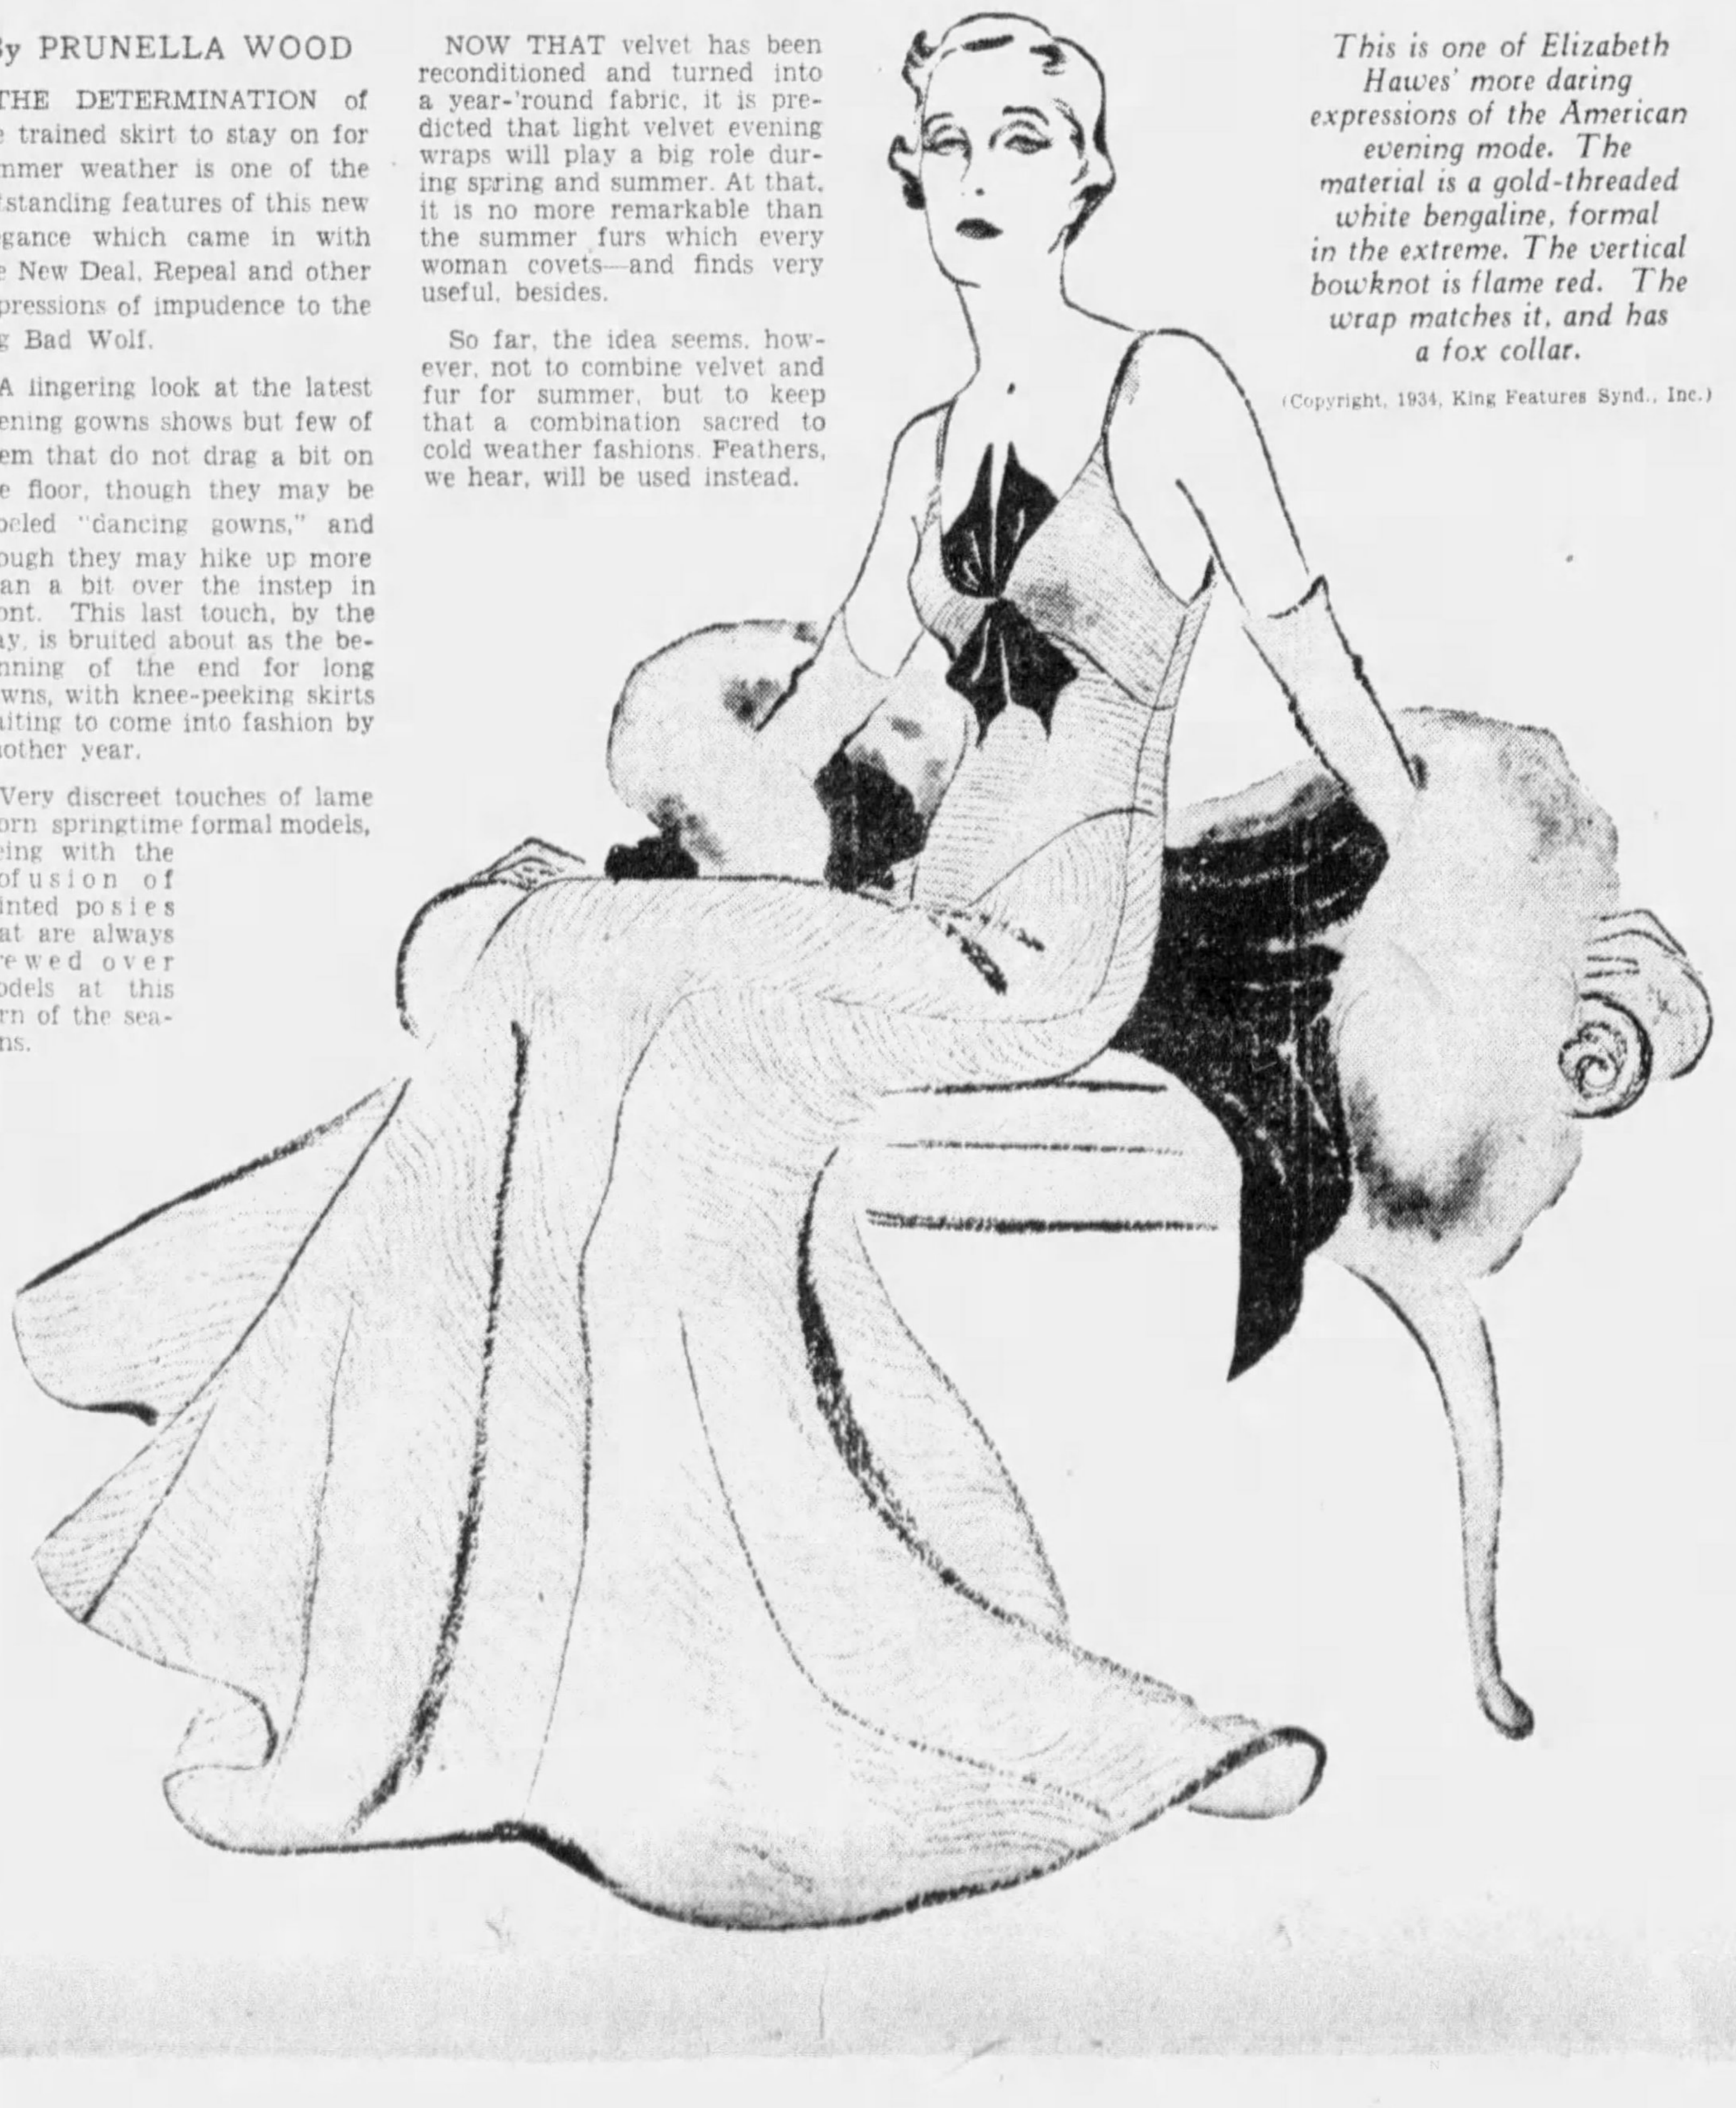
THE DETERMINATION of the trained skirt to stay on for summer weather is one of the outstanding features of this new elegance which came in with the New Deal, Repeal and other expressions of impudence to the Big Bad Wolf.

A lingering look at the latest evening gowns shows but few of them that do not drag a bit on the floor, though they may be labeled "dancing gowns," and though they may hike up more than a bit over the instep in front. This last touch, by the way, is bruited about as the beginning of the end for long gowns, with knee-peeking skirts waiting to come into fashion by another year.

Very discreet touches of lame adorn springtime formal models, vieing with the profusion of printed posies that are always strewed over models at this turn of the seasons.

NOW THAT velvet has been reconditioned and turned into a year-'round fabric, it is predicted that light velvet evening wraps will play a big role during spring and summer. At that, it is no more remarkable than the summer furs which every woman covets—and finds very useful, besides.

So far, the idea seems, however, not to combine velvet and fur for summer, but to keep that a combination sacred to cold weather fashions. Feathers, we hear, will be used instead.



This is one of Elizabeth Hawes' more daring expressions of the American evening mode. The material is a gold-threaded white bengaline, formal in the extreme. The vertical bowknot is flame red. The wrap matches it, and has a fox collar.

PIONEERS :-: Glances Into the Realms of Domesticity and Romance :-: By MARION BRUNOT

Women Went on to Success Despite Criticism

Woman's status has been very much improved during the last year.

So says Carrie Chapman Catt. And we all know Carrie has learned through a long school of experience.

She knows women as few of us today know our own sex. For she has given a long and useful life to the study of womankind. She has been one of those pioneer American women who has had the nerve to stand out for the general uplift of her sister long before the average woman knew she had an uplift.

And, like many other pioneers, in time she had to give way to these very other women whom she had watched and prayed for in their developing period. Other women were received where she herself had preached for acceptance. Other women were given the jobs for which she had helped clear the way.

There was Dr. Mary Walker. Do you remember her? The one who wore the trousers and dressed like a man even before we had become used to the imported pajamas.

And Dr. Mary was laughed at. But she didn't mind. She even ran for President.

There was Anna Howard Shaw. I remember seeing her in the Exposition Building, speaking right out in meeting long before women were given the vote. She had on the stage with her a few of the Pittsburgh women who had the courage of wisdom to sit there with her. And little and plump and womanly, Miss Shaw spoke as few men have ever been gifted enough to speak. She shook and almost swayed her audience. For she told of even more pioneer days when there were hacks instead of railroads, and church basements instead of public halls and theaters.

WERE CRITICIZED

Does anybody recall that meeting?

There were Marion Harland with her famous recipes and Winifred Black with her home heart throbs. Both began talking in newspapers long ago when columns weren't so used to relating the wrongs and the rights of women, and when women reporters and society editors were not every newspaper's habit. They were criticized and made fun of. But they went on, anyhow, and today the country is crowded with women's periodicals and women who write for them. There is no limit to what such women may say, either. And woman's mind is fertile enough, as we all know.

I remember when I went to high school in Wilkinsburg, I used to pass the home of a woman whom people whispered about. She was "a new woman."

In the evenings, out of curiosity, I used to watch for the other women who came to see her, and wonder about them. And I always received a shock when the hostess opened her door, and there she was motherly and rounded. Yet her hair was short.

PREPARED THE WAY

There was Mrs. Jane Hall, of Pittsburgh. I always think of her as standing and looking out ahead of her, as if she had a vision of some sort. No doubt she had. It was of marching women; women marching to office and factory, women marching to the polls. She was one of the local women who prepared the way for us.

There was Kate Cassatt McKnight. Where would the Pittsburgh clubs be even now, if it had not been for her pioneer spirit? And Mrs. Edith Darlington Ammon. She was another woman who feared little, and went ahead.

Also I remember Miss Eliza Armstrong, who worked as hard against woman's enfranchisement as other sisters labored to give it to her.

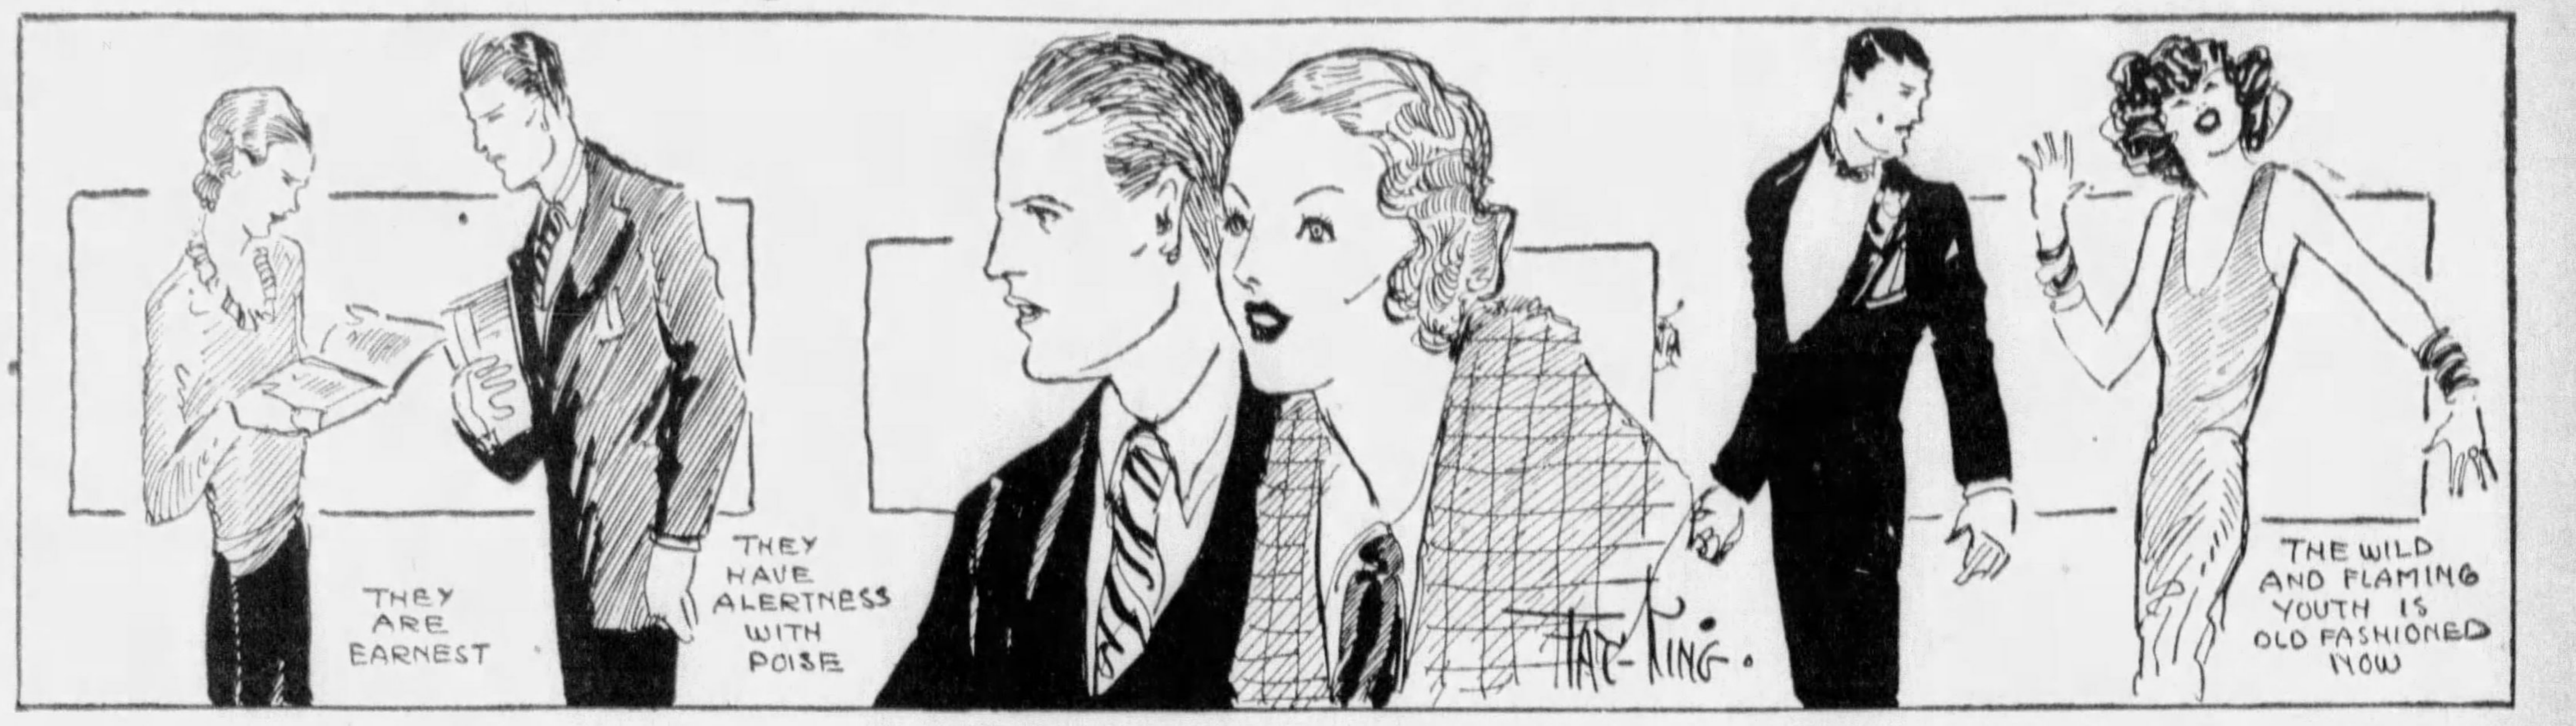
I can see her in Harrisburg in the Capitol the day Gov. Sproul signed the bill giving women equal voting rights with men in the State of Pennsylvania.

There are other women in Pittsburgh whose names should be added to this roster. Who are they? One of your relatives? A woman who used to be a neighbor? Women who forged ahead, courageous . . .

Women born too early for personal reward. But unselfish enough to spare not themselves in what they thought was right.

Let us hear from someone about such women.

Fay King Finds Time of Modes Is About Five Years



THEY ARE EARNEST
THEY HAVE ALERTNESS WITH POISE
FAY-KING.
THE WILD AND FLAMING YOUTH IS OLD FASHIONED NOW

By FAY KING

Five years makes a great shift in the so-called "younger generation." It moves the 15-year-old "kids" up to young men and women of 20.

This vast new population of ages from 16 to 20 has a great influence upon the change in popular tastes. For those are the eager, impressionable years, and what they like best becomes the most popular.

I have noticed that this new group has more poise and dignity. They are earnest and well balanced in their observations and opinions.

They are not carried away with wild enthusiasms. They seem to consider everything for what it may be worth, and accept or dismiss it accordingly.

The flaming youth of five years ago is a bit old-fashioned now.

Contract Bridge :-. HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

The Backward Finesse

There is a rather unusual form of finesse which Bridge players call the "backward finesse." This play is based upon practically certain knowledge of the location of the card to be finessed against and the knowledge that the location of it is such that the ordinary finesse would lose. For instance, assume that an endeavor is to be made to prevent the adversely held Queen in the suit led from making a trick, that the player holds in the combined hands the A K J 9 8, and that the location of the Ten is unknown. If the Queen is held over the Knave, then the ordinary finesse must lose, and it is in such situations as this that opportunities arise for the so-called "backward finesse."

The hand below is an example:

East, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

West	North	East
	♠ 9 8 7 ♡ A J 3 2 ◇ K 6 5 ♣ K 5 4
♠ 6 ♡ 10 7 5 ◇ Q J 10 9 8 7 ♣ 8 3 2		♠ A 5 4 ♡ Q 6 4 ◇ A 4 2 ♣ Q J 10 6
	♠ K Q J 10 3 2 ♡ K 9 8 ◇ 3 ♣ A 9 7
	South

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 N T (1)	Double (2)	Pass	Pass (3)
Redouble (4)	Pass (5)	2 ◇	Pass (6)
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	2 N T (7)
Pass	4 ♠ (8)	Pass	Pass
Pass

1—A better bid than one notrump with East's hand would be the shaded bid of one club. Another alternative would be to pass.

2—South, with a strong six-card major suit, doubles in preference to bidding, of course.

3—In view of North's 2 honor-tricks plus and his partner's Takeout Double of one notrump, the pass is clearly indicated. As a matter of fact, if the hand were played at notrump East would probably take but two tricks.

4—A request for his partner to bid.

5—South awaits developments.

6—North might well have bid here.

7—This is the correct bid as it discloses strength in the other suits not bid by South.

8—As a matter of fact, a game at notrump could be made as West's hand contains no reentry.

West's Opening lead was the diamond Queen, and it appeared, when the Dummy went down, that South must lose one trick each in spades, diamonds and clubs and probably one in hearts, which would set the contract. The heart Queen seemed clearly placed in the East hand in view of the Opening bid and the weakness of the East hand in other suits. It was possible, however, that East did not hold the heart Ten, in which case the backward finesse would prevent the loss of a trick in hearts. The play of the heart suit, which is all that is in question, was as follows: The Knave was led from the North hand, East covered with the Queen, and South won the trick with the King. The nine was now returned, South intending to finesse if West did not cover. In the actual play, West played the Ten. The trick was won with the Ace and the heart 8 prevented the loss of any heart tricks. A successful backward finesse assured the success of the contract.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Bridge - R. S. V. P.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am giving a bridge party for a friend of mine, just recently married, and from out of town, to introduce her to some of my friends who have not as yet met her. I'm at a loss how to word the invitations. Should I use her name as Harriet Smith Downs (Harriet Smith being her maiden name) or Mrs. Norman Downs?

Also, which do you think preferable, to get the printed cards for bridge invitations or to use visiting cards. If I use a visiting card, how should the invitations be worded? W.

The simplest and most convenient form of invitation for your bridge party would be the invitation written on your visiting card. Use the formal name of your honor guest. Your card would read like this:

In honor of Mrs. Norman Downs
Miss Grace Allen Ford
Bridge
Friday, March 10
Three o'clock
R. s. v. p. Two Home Place

Seating Milady

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—When being seated at the table in company with a man, and he holds the chair for you, from which side is it correct to enter and leave your chair, and should you adjust it after he has placed it?

2—When in conversation at the table after the meal is finished, should the guest make the first effort to leave the table?

R.

1—To all of these "wonderings" the answer is . . . do just what is convenient. It makes no difference from which side of a chair we take our seat, or from which side we rise. And we adjust its position as we find it comfortable.

2—Yes.

Stags

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In giving a "stag" party for a groomsman-to-be, is it proper or necessary to also give a present? B.

No, this is not necessary.

Given in Marriage :-: A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Avis Is Cornered and Agrees to Step Aside

As Avis Arlen clutched at my hand and begged me not to leave her, I spoke to Katherine softly.

"Ask Lillian to stay in the hall within call, but not to come in until I ask her," I said.

"Aye, aye, Captain," Katherine replied in the inaudible tones which she, Lillian and I use to each other, When we do not wish anyone else to overhear us. Then with a mocking little salute, unseen by Avis, she went out of the door, closing it after her.

For a long minute after she had gone, Avis lay motionless except for a convulsive clutching of my hand. She was no longer weeping, and Katherine's ministrations patently had quited her somewhat. But there was real agony in the face upturned to mine, and though I still was watchful and determined she should have no possible chance to do further mischief, I could not help feeling keenly sorry for her, as I put a pitying hand upon her forehead.

"What is it, Avis?" I asked her gently. "You probably will not believe me, but I am terribly sorry for you, and though I cannot aid you in your greatest desire, yet I am anxious to make things just as easy for you as I can."

DISBELIEVES GIRL

"I know that, dearest Mrs. Graham," she replied unexpectedly, and I did not know whether the impulse to believe her, or the one that told me her speech was hypocritical, was the right one for me to follow.

"I am so ashamed to have casued you so much trouble and worry," her soft trainante voice went on "but I love Noel so much —I must tell you that—I just felt I couldn't give him up without making an effort to bring him back to me. Because he did love me, Mrs. Graham. No matter what he says, he did, he did; and he told me so."

For the fraction of a second, so plausible was her insistence, I felt my judgment swaying. Was it possible that Noel, in desperation at the possibility of losing Mary, had stretched the truth when he said he never had felt anything save casual friendship for Avis, and never had given her cause to believe that he had any stronger feeling for her?

Then my mental pendulum swung back to normalcy. I recalled everything I had known of honorable, high-minded Noel, and my former experiences with the shallow, untruthful, unprincipled girl who lay before me. Pity her I could, deeply, for I knew she was suffering as keenly as a person of her nature could suffer. But believe her, or trust her for an instant never! My judgment told me that her suffering was for the greater part wounded vanity.

BEATEN 'FOR NOW'

"We won't go into that now, Avis," I said gently. "You must realize now, that no matter what you may believe of the past, there is no possible use in your persisting in your attempt to win Noel back. But unless you yourself make it impossible for me, I can manage so that no one save Noel, Mary, you and I shall know what took place in the study."

She lay perfectly quiet for a minute or two and I wondered what was going on behind those limpid, blue eyes.

"I am in your hands,," she said at last. "I will do whatever you tell me. She has beaten me—for now—and I shall make no further fuss."

I tucked those two words "for now" away for reference—rather, as a danger signal to be brought out upon occasion. But she was speaking again, and I bent my ear to listen.

"Do you think Uncle Phil will be angry if I'm not a bridesmaid tomorrow?" she asked.

"Why do you ask?" I countered, for I felt that I was skirting dangerous ground.

"Because I feel as though I could not be a bridesmaid for Mary, after the way Noel talked, but I'm so afraid Uncle Phil will be angry. He was so set upon it."

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

When buying cosmetics, read labels carefully, find out for what special purposes they were intended. No woman with a dry skin should use an astringent. A heavy cream will not serve as a cleansing agent. A light cleansing cream is not likely to chase wrinkles away; doesn't supply resistance to the finger tips, and the tapping is the important part of the treatment.

Women who make faces when they talk—you know them, they lift eyebrows, purse lips, draw in the chin—are the ones who get wrinkles and sagging muscles before their time. Better to bear the calm look, give vent to expression by means of the eyes rather than facial fibers. Frowning is the worst trick of all. It puts in those up and down ditches that are the despair of beauty specialists.

Household Hints

Glue will not dry out if you place an end of a candle in the neck of the bottle instead of the cork.

Use the rinds of lemons to whiten the sink. Rub inside of the rind over board, sprinkle with cleanser, let it stand a few minutes. Scrub with brush and wash clean.

Boil an article that has become stained with rust in a couple gallons of water to which add three tablespoons of cream of tartar. The stain will vanish no matter now old it may be.

How to Keep Well

New Serum Treatment of Infantile Paralysis

Dr. Copeland

At the recent dedication of Georgia Hall in Warm Springs, Ga., the president of the United States talked over a nation wide hook-up. He described the great advances that have been made in the treatment of infantile paralysis. Mr. Roosevelt stated that many thousands of children, as well as adults, victims of the disease, have been restored to normal and beneficial lives, they have become healthy citizens and useful members of their communities.

Infantile paralysis, known to the scientific world as "acute anterior poliomyelitis," is a dreaded disease. The exact cause of this infection is unknown, but it is believed to be due to a virus so very tiny that it cannot be seen under the microscope.

The symptoms of this affliction may be very obscure, so vague, indeed, that the disease may be overlooked until paralysis appears. This difficulty in recognizing it is indeed unfortunate, for when proper measures of protection are taken and modern methods of treatment inaugurated early, severe paralysis can be prevented.

As a rule, the disease is ushered in by the appearance of fever and digestive symptoms, such as nausea, vomiting and diarrhea. The child who is usually active and cheerful changes in his disposition and appearance. He becomes quiet, listless and cries upon the slightest provocation.

When paralysis sets in, it may be slight and disappear after 24 hours. But it may be of a more severe type, and unless energetic measures are taken, the paralysis is likely to become permanent.

I am glad to say that the administration of a serum has given pretty satisfactory results. In many instances it has prevented the occurrence of paralysis. This remedy is called "convalescent serum." It is obtained from the blood of a person who has recovered from infantile paralysis.

For those individuals who have been stricken with infantile paralysis and suffer permanent disability, special measures of relief are now available. These treatments consist of the reeducation of muscles that have been weakened by the disease. This can be successfully accomplished by the use of swimming pools and special mechanical appliances. By swimming and the use of the special devices, the involved muscles become strengthened. Next follow special massages and electrical treatments. The results have been more than gratifying and in many instances sufferers from infantile paralysis have been restored to normal and useful lives.

In addition to the measures mentioned, it is important to have nourishing food, regular hours of sleep and rest, and plenty of fresh air and sunlight. Since it may prove difficult to obtain all of the necessary treatment at home, it is advisable to enter a sanitorium specializing in this work.

I am glad to say that many institutions of this type have been built in various sections of the country. The recent dedication of Georgia Hall is typical of the widespread interest and untiring efforts made in combatting this affliction of mankind.

Not only must we make every effort to aid those who actually suffer from the disease, or its effects, but strict attention must be given the simple rules of hygiene and sanitation. Every precaution must be taken against the occurrence of this disease. Such measures should be thought of, not only during epidemics, but at all times. It is to be hoped that within a short time the cause of this disease will be discovered and a specific cure announced.

This Woman In 4 Weeks Lost 17 Pounds of Fat

Here's a letter written by Mrs. Fred Barringer, of Lewistown, Montana, that ought to be read by every overweight woman in America.

Gentlemen: "I started taking Kruschen every morning as directed as I was very much overweight and wanted to reduce.

I had tried going on a diet but would get so hungry that my diet would not last long, so I decided to give 'Kruschen Salts' a fair trial. The day I started to take them I weighed 256 lbs. and at present, which has been just four weeks, I weigh 239 lbs. And I must say I feel better in every way, besides looking much better. Kruschen Salts had a decided effect upon the quantity of food I took and stimulated my desire to greater activity.

May all large people, both men and women, who want to reduce in an easy way, give Kruschen Salts a fair trial. I am sure it will convince anyone."

A bottle of Kruschen Salts that lasts four weeks costs but 85c in any drug store in America. Take one-half teaspoon in a glass of hot water before breakfast every morning.

The Kruschen way is the safe way to reduce—Try one bottle and if not joyfully satisfied—money back. Your druggist knows all about Kruschen.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY OF PENNSYLVANIA

AMY MOLLISON SCORES POLICE

PALM BEACH, Fla., Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Mrs. Amy Johnson Mollison, British aviatrix, admitting her arrest for reckless driving at Fort Lauderdale Monday, today said that she had fled from arresting officers because she feared they were gangsters.

They were in civilian clothes, she said, adding that such a thing couldn't happen in England, because "police don't act like gangsters" there.

Two men stopped her, she said; and because they were too "harsh and discourteous" to be police—she based her judgment on her knowledge of police in England—she drove off.

They pursued and caught her. She hit one of them and tried to escape on foot, she said, but was taken to jail and held there. In court she was not allowed to testify for herself, said Mrs. Mollison.

The aviatrix was fined $50 and costs. She admitted she might have been driving too fast, but said it was on an open road with no cars or buildings in sight and that she was "certainly endangering no one."

DENTIST DEATH NOTES PROBED

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—Another threatening note has been received by Mrs. Frances Coen Cooke, wealthy young divorcee witness in the investigation of the mysterious murder of Dr. Leonard Siever, Pasadena "society dentist," it was disclosed yesterday by Blayner Matthews, chief special investigator of the District Attorney's office.

Matthews said he believed the note indicates the writer thinks investigators are slackening up in their hunt and will drop the case soon. He said Mrs. Cooke was informed she and her child soon will be "put on the spot."

A new guard was established at the Cooke home, and the note turned over to J. Clark Sellars, handwriting expert, who said he did not think it was written by the person who wrote a letter in which Dr. Siever's wrist watch was inclosed a few weeks ago. That letter demanded $5,000 in return for the "true facts" in the Siever case.

Hospitals Oppose Coconut Oil Tax

Hospital authorities of this district are appealing to United States Senators David A. Reed and James J. Davis to block an impending 5 cents per pound excise tax on imported coconut oil.

Howard E. Bishop, executive secretary of the Hospital Association of Pennsylvania, said that it will cost voluntary hospitals of Pennsylvania thousands of dollars which they have no way of obtaining if Congress enacts the tax.

Mr. Chapman became ill following dinner. He was stricken in the room of a friend, William P. Halenkamp, of Columbus, O., according to a Coroner's report.

GLOBE-TROTTING

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen:

George Hutchinson, the Canonsburg fact finder, trips up another of the Globe Trotter's statements. Shortly after the first of the year it was printed that not for a century will people be able to write the date in sequence, viz: 1-2-34.

Now it develops that tomorrow some forty or fifty million people will have that privilege.

In England, in writing the date, the sequence is always the day, month, year.

Hence February 1, 1934 will be written 1-2-34. Q. E. D.

* * *

I want to acknowledge all the letters of inquiry concerning Old Age Pensions. Individual answers are going into the mails now.

There is not much new information available at present. You see there is a long time yet before any real action is taken. The bill does not take effect until December, 1934.

* * *

More than ever people are writing in about their old coins. If this flood of letters does not subside, and I hope it doesn't, answers will have to be mailed out instead of printed. The Globe Trotter Numismatics have two advisers, Jack Daub, Jr., and Charles Marketch.

To make things easier for them will you leave enough white space on your letter for the adviser to jot down the answer. If you do that the office force will be thankful, too. Instead of writing a letter in reply, your letter with its answer noted thereon can be mailed back.

Don't forget those stamps if you happen to have them lying around loose. The budget is getting out of balance.

* * *

P. S.—This does not mean that questions will not be answered in the column.

Roosevelt Names Pet Tunes

By AIRCASTER

While the impresarios assigned to the musical phases of the President's radio birthday celebration last night were aesthetically weeding out "plugged" songs and other ditties considered inappropriate, I decided to get the low-down by writing direct to the White House to ask which might be Mr. Roosevelt's favorite tunes.

With the promptitude that his name implies, Stephen Early, assistant secretary to the President replied.

It seems, from Early's letter that there are four ditties which the President particularly fancies, and which, of course were played.

* * *

Four Favorites

Mr. Roosevelt's first choice is "Home on the Range." He likes, also, the Navy fighting song, "Anchors Aweigh." "In the Halls of Montezuma," the alma mater of the Marines, and, finally, the sentimental choice of the Chief Executive is "My Wild Irish Rose."

It is notable that Mr. Roosevelt did not favor any of the songs like "Happy Days," which might be construed as propaganda for the administration.

* * *

Will Rogers

Will Rogers, who came to town last Saturday, stood up in the WJZ studio Sunday night and declared himself in favor of studio audiences.

"I'd feel mean if ever I broadcast from Radio City without a studio audience," he explained.

All of those poor people don't come here to see me and Cantor. They come in to rest and keep warm. I'm going to see that they are provided with guides to show them the way to get out, too.

But I like to have them. Folks sitting in front of you all worn out from being lost are a lot more responsive to your work than people sitting home."

* * *

Boswells Out

The Boswell sisters and WABC have severed relations.

The sustaining series by the girl trio has been cancelled.

Their departure from the Columbia waves follows that of Mildred Bailey. CBS is questing for new names with which to experiment on build-ups.

* * *

Changes which affected two programs on CBS-WJAS were all but settled this morning.

Under new arrangements, Stoopnagle and Budd were slated to leave thair auto broadcast, to become an added feature on the cigarette presentation piloted by Glen Gray and including Irene Taylor.

Jacques Renard also was billed to leave the same auto show. The orchestral spot will be filled by Gene Goldkette and his lads.

SCREENLAND :-: Hollywood Events and Chat About Doings in Hollywood :-: AMUSEMENTS

Walter Winchell
+ ON BROADWAY +

Man About Town.

The chatter has Eleanor Hutton, who was riveted to Etienne Gautier in Paree last April 4—secretly melted already, but locals can confirm . . . Ernst Lubitsch, the director, and a Mrs. Koerner of Vienna (now in Hollywood) will blend soon . . . The Francis J. Quillinans (she is Al E. Smith's daughter, Catherine) are threeing . . . Joseph Schenck's "find" (Edna Reid) is Mrs. Mario Casassus, and she isn't melted from him, as the wrongguessers are chirping . . . Collette Francis who walked out of the Casino de Paree choir without saying ta-ta or pausing for her wages, finally wrote that she was nervous and tired. Meaning she has a new bay-bee who spends . . . The surprise bang in a famous divorce action now amusing the nation will come when the husband names another co-respondent—who will be his wife's attorney!

Perhaps it isn't romance, at all. But Lenore Ulric's now-and-then is Al Seigal, who is hardly cute, but he dresses a table well . . . The "stripping" of the Embassy is no mystery. The new owner merely paid for the walls . . . Blanche Bow, the canary, and L. Arnaud of the Fred Waring staff are Padre shopping . . . Mary Coles, another Casino de Parisian, has shifted to A. Beller of the Ben Pollockas . . . Judy Malcolm has returned to the Paradise, which is a nom de plume for J. Adler, former Asst. Dist. Att'y . . . Patricia Bowman of the "Follies" has the miseries because her Caruso is out of the cast ill . . . June Rogers' separation suit against "Sharlee" (Cliff Hall) comes up next month, her motion to put Jack Pearl's partner in the yellimony jail was denied.

Alex Pantages has just discovered two gushers. They're in the names of Carmen Considine and his step-dotter, Dixie Martin . . . Leah Ray, who is too pretty, landed with Fox flickers (Educational shorts) with Bob Hope, one of the better clowns . . . Add romances that started at 5 a. m. over the air (via WJSV in Alexandria, Va.)—when Arthur Godfrey, who is too big-time for there, and Helen France of New Zealand and here let America listen while they cooed . . . Comm. Mulrooney, head of the liquor board, will turn pale when the druggists start putting the "fing" on certain locals this week!

Have a titter: Genevieve Von Hoven, who was married recently to a Dartmouth lad, was given a "gift" by the Paradise management, which no longer has her do nudes—out of respect . . . Buck Woodward was in a Montreal hosp all week with frozen paws after motoring thru the Adirondacks . . . John McLain, who covers the waterfront for the Sun, wears a black sash around his waist when he wears his tuxeeder. Anything for a howl, huh? . . . The biggest of the laughs, however, will be the end of the J. Durante-Lupe Velez "Palooka" flicker, when their baby is seen with a Durante schnozzle—howl No. 2 coming when the infant rolls its orbs and Durantes "Hah-cha!" . . . George Kelly, of the Yacht Club Boys, is the owner of the Public Service Clipping Bureau, which is just as we all suspected—a clip artist!

The Bohemia on B'way near 52nd still has a sign in the front reading: "Closed for the Summer" but it doesn't say what year . . . The book by young John Jacob Astor's tutor is due soon—via thinly disguised characters—and will explain recnt items . . . "The Great Ziegfeld" movie by Mm. A. McGuire is off. Universal execs wanted it made on a $100,000 scale—he wanted half a million . . . Coasters now here are saying that Kenneth McKenna was the one who walked out on Kay Francis. I don't believe it . . . Oscar Levant is being sued for clothes for his ex-wife who is married to Arthur Loew—a millionaire! . . . Incidentally, Levant is living the life of a genius. (In an attic!)

The "Tobacco Road" show has an idea it may cop the Pulitzer Prize, the other contenders being "Men in White" and "Ah, Wilderness!" The last by O'Neill, who is tired of winning it . . . A lass who was behind a shop counter eight years ago is backing the new play "All the King's Horses" . . . Why don't those cigarette advertisers ask Prince Mike Romanoff how his nerve is? . . . The Charles Francis Coes are on the verge . . . Elissa Landi and the mater have spread, but who wouldn't in Hollywood? . . . The flicker "Eskimo" is supposed to have an all-Eskimo cast—but Iva, one of the principals, is Anna May Wong's sister . . . Add awkward sitch-ee-ay-shuns: Sonnie Hale, the British movie player, was divorced by Evelyn Laye and is married to Jessie Matthews—all three being on the same set in London . . . At a dinner for Mayor LaGuardia and Police Comm. O'Ryan given by the consulates here, all were represented except the German . . . Margaret Sullavan, who has a black eye and facial bruises explained that she got them "fishing in Arizona" . . . Sinclair Lewis has peddled his "Work of Art" to Fox for too much money already . . . Mrs. Conrad Nagel is back in circulation.

The Arch Goettlers, who went foomph and are having a judge decide it—are toying with the fates, again. Mrs. G's new heart being E. Ascher of Universal pix and Archie's Mommy is Billie Seward, formerly of the local girl choirs and Geo. Hale . . . In Cuba you can swap a 90c carton of Yankee ciggies for a quart of Bacardi . . . Blanche McLean and Chas. Line merge in April . . . At the premiere of "Whatever Possessed Her?" Robert Garland, the Telly critic, left early—and forgot his shoes! . . . Musical Film Must Avoid Groove

By MICHAEL SHAW

What is the future of screen musical comedy?

Its present vogue gives no sign of collapsing suddenly, as did that earlier short-lived cycle centering around "Broadway Melody."

Extravagant and more or less tuneful productions continue to roll from the studios. Tin Pan Alley gives no signs of evacuating Hollywood, whence it has transferred itself en masse. And the recruiting of music show talents goes on, as witness the westward trek of Earl Carroll, of Pittsburgh, Broadway and the "Vanities."

Yet the public will weary sooner or later, if it has not already begun to do so, of those eternal, drearily familiar backstage plots, eked out by the outlandish maneuvers of Hollywood lovelies under the direction of the big spectacle man, Busby Berkeley.

* * *

Mr. Berkeley has already photographed a chorus from every possible angle and some impossible ones. He reached the heights, or rather the depths, in the underwater evolutions of "Footlight Parade." The other extreme came in "Flying Down to Rio," with the girls performing on top of soaring planes.

After all, a theme can have only so many variations, and the limit has been very nearly reached.

These spectacles, when represented as part of a stage production, do not ring true, for obviously no stage could hold them. "Going Hollywood" overcame that objection by offering them as parts of a film musical in the making.

Of course, no one is going to quibble over such a point if the scenes are beautiful or original enough to justify themselves. But such a desired end has been reached in only a few cases, most notably perhaps in the fantastic merry-go-round number of "Dancing Lady," with its high lights and deep shaadows.

* * *

The aforesaid Earl Carroll pointed out in an interview in New York before his takeoff for Movieland that photographs of chorus girls, attractive though the girls may be and are, will always be so much waste.

The movie patron does not, like the theatergoer, pick out a blonde third from the left and follow her throughout the show. The appeal of flesh and blood is entirely lacking.

Just what Mr. Carroll proposes to do about this in Hollywood he did not say; but at least he realizes that his "Vanities" technique will have to be violently altered.

A color short current in the Stanley, "Not Tonight, Josephine," suggests one possible development of the future. This minor production is not at all brilliant, not even very funny; but it is rather pretty.

The most obvious need, however, is a new type of story—not a backstage story, and not a story full of senseless musical cues or dragging the spectacles in by the throat.

Jerome Kern's latest operettas have solved the problem on the stage. Remember how naturally the music fitted into "The Cat and the Fiddle" and "Music in the Air?"

The movies made a stab in the right direction when Jack Oakie and Jack Haley played a couple of song writers in "Sitting Pretty." Perhaps the bright young writing boys in the studios will think up some better ideas.

ON PITTSBURGH'S RIALTO

Warner Brothers have put plenty of promotion behind "Fashions of 1934" opening tomorrow night in the Stanley.

* * *

Ruth Roye, at the Pitt, is the girl crooner who made the Robert E. Lee famous a few years back. While at the New York Palace the vaudevillian's mecca, she broke records with her six-weeks' stay.

* * *

The Penn ran into a little tough luck when, in the midst of preparations for the resumption of stage shows, Manager Mike Cullen, Assistant Manager Bob Seneft and Artist Johnny Mayer were all stricken with bad colds.

* * *

Pittsburgh's Lyle Talbot will next be seen in "Mandalay," with Kay Francis figuring in that, too. Talbot was on the "Forty-Second Street Special," that trouped into town last March.

Prettying

Genevieve Tobin, who will be seen in the Warner Friday in "Dark Hazard," fixing up to go before the camera.

Players and Plays

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Kitty Doner, dancer who does male impersonations in Rae Samuels production, "The Cocktail Hour," coming to the Pitt Friday, says she never wanted to go into the movies. Neither has she been ambitious to play in the drama.

"What I am trying to do all the time," she explains, "is to perfect my impersonations, to improve my dancing and to create new characterizations. I am working now on an impersonation of an old man—a gay old boy—and I hope to have it ready before long. You see, musical revue and vaudeville are my fields."

"Three to Make Ready," by Helen H. Mason, which the Pittsburgh Civic Playhouse will present in its Hotel Schenley Theater on Saturday afternoon and evening, February 3 and Monday evening, February 5, is directed by Eloise Campbell. The cast is composed of Madeline Skelly Foust, Amelie Iacovetti, Boyd Crawford, Helen Wayne, Walter Derdeyn and John Johns.

"Cinderella" will be presented as a play by the New York Children's Theater in the Nixon Saturday morning, February 10. It will mark the fourth play in the series of six which are proving popular with children and their parents.

Some Players Fear Return To Stage

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 31.—The return of Katharine Hepburn and Miriam Hopkins to the stage has brought a look of longing into the eyes of other Broadway exiles, but not so many of the successful ones are actually grabbing the trains east.

Frankest of all is Claudette Colbert, who told me:

"I haven't the courage to go back on the stage."

The star who played "The Barker" both in New York and London, and who was last seen in Eugene O'Neill's "Dynamo," thinks that the risks of going back are too great.

"You may possibly get a good play and, if you do, it helps a great deal in again establishing audience-contact through the stage," she says. "But so many people, after being successful on the screen, have tried it, and have come back discouraged from appearing in a play that flopped after a few weeks.

"I admire Miriam Hopkins and Katharine Hepburn for attemping it, but I frankly haven't the nerve."

Of course, in Claudette's case, she hasn't the opportunity, either, for if Cecil B. De Mille ever gets the script he wants on "Cleopatra," she'll play the siren of the Nile.

* * *

Jimmie Cagney is burned because some exhibitors are insinuating that "Lady Killer" is his own life story. As a matter of fact, Jimmie neither was an usher, nor a racketeer, nor anything like the hero of his latest picture. He went to Columbia University for two and a half years, and he was a hoofer and an actor before the screen took him up. And, if the company is right, he's the kind of a fellow who goes in for discussions on philosophy and other erudite subjects. Right now, the star is in Carmel as a guest of Lincoln Steffens.

* * *

It was a gesture that may not get the man a thing in the long run, but the people on the set are talking about it.

Several days ago, a stunt-man failed to show up at the location for "Come on Marines." He was supposed to do a 35-foot fall out of a tree and the director was annoyed.

"I'll do it," volunteered Harry Tenbrook, an extra.

What's more he did it all right without injury, and was quite overcome when they told him the fall was worth $100.

But, later on, when he went to the cashier's office, he didn't ask for his check. Instead, he presented a bill from a downtown hospital.

"Just send the money to them," he said. "My mother is there."

* * *

Hollywood is a bit bored with the Lupe Velez-Johnny Weissmuller separation. The two were sitting in the M-G-M commissary, their arms about each other, within 48 hours after the headlines screamed.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

Odds and Ends

COLUMNING is generally believed to be something of a racket. To the public, this type of work is the softest snap in all the world. Nothing to do but go to cabarets, opening nights, parties. And the actual work—why, there's nothing to it!

That, I say, is the general impression. But you'd be surprised by the reactions of most of the boys in the game, itself. In all your life you never met a more worrisome, complaining, discontented lot of lads.

The other night, Mr. Louis Sobol, of the Journal, admitted to me that he was very tired of the routine. No matter what happens, he confessed, it's always the same. Almost any other business, he feels, will bring more in the line of contentment.

Several months ago, the genial Ed Sullivan, of the News, expressed similar thoughts to me. He, too, finds the continual grind to be something of a strain. Night life, he points out, is interesting only for so long. And he, too, looks forward to the day when some other line of endeavor will bring him more peace of mind.

Out on the coast, Mr. Sidney Skolsky, the original of the Mickey Mouse notion, is adding his voice to the other cries. Living in Holywood luxury and welcomed everywhere by the greatest stars, Mr. Skolsky is discontented just the same. He longs to be back on Broadway, regardless of the occupation.

Famous for his complaints, also, is Mr. Walter Winchell. As one of the nation's most famous characters, Mr. Winchell might be expected to be a joyous human whose every day is filled with laughter and contentment. But such, sadly enough, is not the case.

Instead, Mr. Winchell grumbles continually about his headaches, his throat aches, his back aches and his ear aches. His radio script is very difficult he complains, and his daily stint takes more and more out of him as the years fly by. Mr. Winchell, as he has told me many times, would far rather be a humble citizen in Miami or Hollywood than continue on as the celebrity he is today. Yowzuh.

And I? Well, those of you who have been brave enough to read this drivel through the years are fairly well acquainted with my state of mind. I always long to be anywhere but where I am at the moment. Some day some of my readers will chip in to send me as far away as possible. Then I will die content . . .

So you see, my friends, the Broadway columnists are not particularly happy in their work. The glory you might read into the various columns is all very empty in the long run. The thrill of the thing vanishes all too swiftly. It is a tough life, and one that is none too attractive.

And where, if we all live, will we be 10 years from today? Still writing columns—and still complaining . . .

* * *

BILL ROBINSON, the colored dancer, is one of the best-liked men in all show business. He has played more benefits for various causes than any other artist I can mention. He's a grand personality, and is always welcomed in any spot in which he might appear.

Recently, at the Ross-Petrolle fight in the Bronx Coliseum, Robinson and his wife had seats in the second row of the press section. Bill fidgeted for a few moments, looked nervously around—and spotted a newspaperman he has known for years, sitting several rows behind him.

Robinson arose and walked back to the newspaperman. In a low voice he requested the latter man to exchange seats with him and his wife.

"But why, Bill?" asked the scribbler. "Your seats are much better than mine."

'That's just it," replied the dancer. "They're too good—and they're right in the spotlight. Why should I cause envious comment when it isn't necessary? Please do me a great fafor by changing seats with me?"

Small wonder that Bill Robinson rates near the very top of his race. I wish we had more people like him among the white folks in show business . . .

* * *

LAST season, the surprise of Broadway was a show called 'One Sunday Afternoon." It opened, closed, was re-opened, struggled along, and finally landed in the hit class. Before "One Sunday Afternoon" was ready to call it a go, its backers had cut up the modest sum of $100,000 in profits.

This year's sensation along similar lines seems to be "Tobacco Road," a dramatization of the Erskine Caldwell novel, by Jack Kirkland. It opened to very little money, staggered along for a few weeks, was asked to leave the theater that originally housed it, moved to another spot—and suddenly caught on.

I caught the show for the first time the other night, and I found it a grand piece of work. Strictly adult entertainment, "Tobacco Road" is a vivid, hard-written portrayal of poor white trash in Georgia. Some of the episodes in the play may offend the squeamish, but that hardly detracts from the general excellence of the offering.

This play, too, establishes Henry Hull as one of the greatest actors of our generation. Like George M. Cohan's work in "Ah, Wilderness!" Hull's performance in this "Tobacco Road" is a classic interpretation that will never be forgotten by those who are fortunate enough to see it. It is truly fine.

All in all, I'm glad that "Tobacco Road" is a hit. And I'm especially happy because of Jack Kirkland, the author, who worked as a reporter with me on the News about 10 years ago.

Jack is a fine fellow—and if he'll send me over that five bucks he borrowed a decade ago in order to race down and see his ex-wife, Miss Nancy Carroll, in a show at Atlantic City, all will be forgiven...

COLDS
Go Overnight

When You Take The Right Thing!

A cold doesn't have to run its course and expose you to serious complications. A cold can be routed overnight if you go about it the right way. First of all, a cold being an internal infection, calls for internal treatment. Secondly, a cold calls for a COLD remedy and not for a "cure-all."

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct—and it does the four things necessary. It opens the bowels, combats the cold germs and fever in the system, relieves the headache and grippy feeling and tones and fortifies the entire system. Anything less than that is taking chances with a cold. Get Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at any druggist, 30c and 50c. Ask for it by the full name and beware of dealers who offer substitutes.

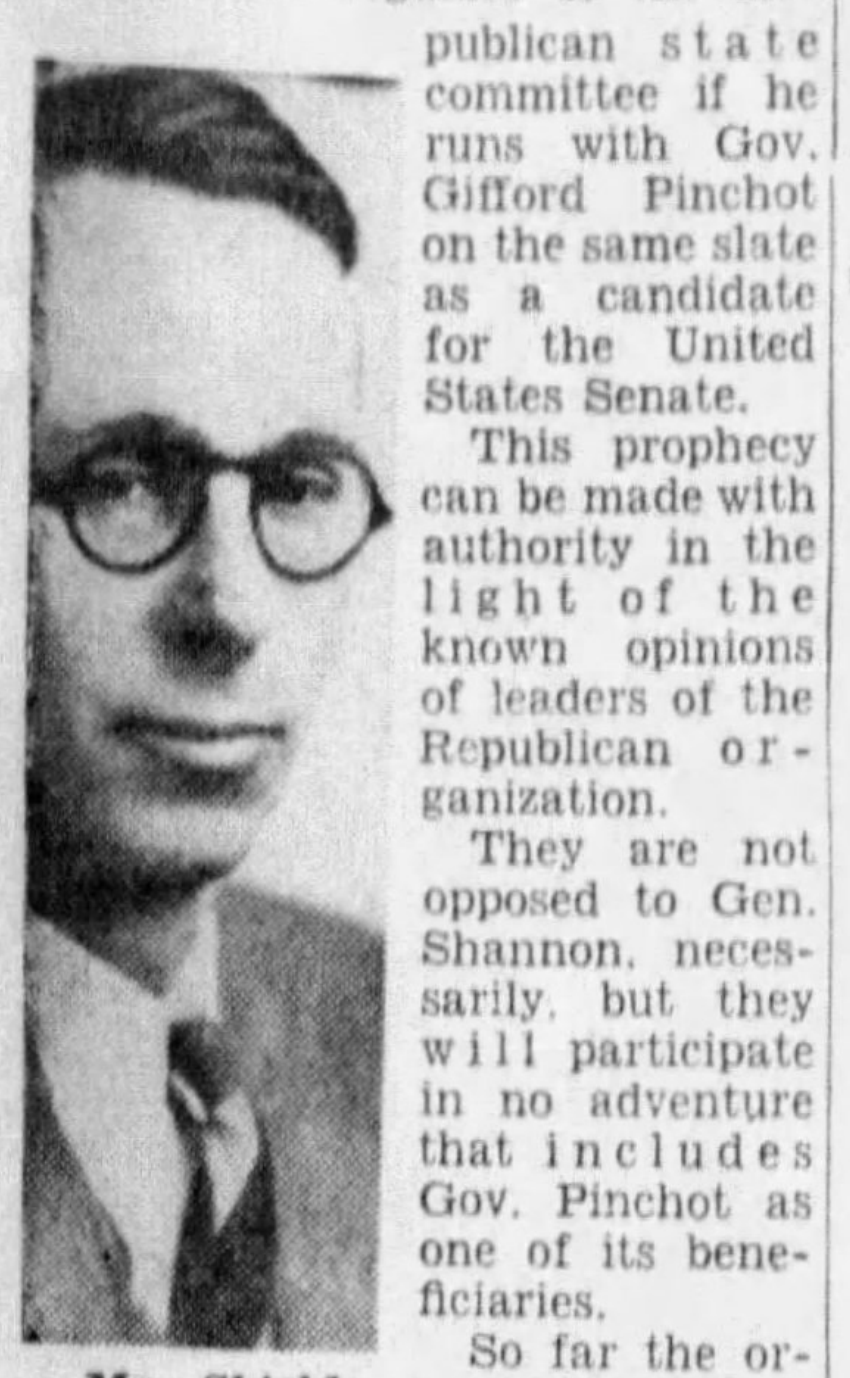
Shannon-Pinchot Team Lacks Regulars’ Aid

By MARK SHIELDS



Mr. Shields

Gen. Edward C. Shannon as a candidate for the nomination for Governor on the Republican ticket will not have the support of the conservative regulars of the Republican state committee if he runs with Gov. Gifford Pinchot on the same slate as a candidate for the United States Senate.

This prophecy can be made with authority in the light of the known opinions of leaders of the Republican organization.

They are not opposed to Gen. Shannon, necessarily, but they will participate in no adventure that includes Gov. Pinchot as one of its beneficiaries.

So far the organization has not been impressed by the efforts of such associates as Capt. Robert S. Cain, Col. Samuel D. Foster and Senator Samuel Salus, of Philadelphia, to link the Governor to the Shannon movement.

The organization refuses to recognize the assertion of these Republicans that Senator Reed would by any liability on either a primary or general election ticket.

State Chairman Edward Martin made the position of the organization clear last week in Philadelphia when he declared that Senator Reed should be renominated and re-elected, a sentiment which was echoed by James M. Hazlett, Republican city chairman in Philadelphia.

Organization leaders have and will for some time maintain a coy attitude toward Gen. Shannon’s ambitions, with the door not yet closed on Gen. Martin, according to reliable information.

It is their view that Gen. Shannon will make no formal announcement until he learns something of the organization attitude, and is holding off in the hope that he will secure an indorsement.

Shannon May Stick To National Guard

Some organization leaders affect the opinion that the General will not become a candidate unless assured of organization backing. If he cannot get it, they say, he will be content to finish out his public life as commander of the national guard, a position which he now holds in addition to being Lieutenant Governor.

One of the higher officials of the state committee pointed out within the past few days that Gen. Shannon throughout his public life had conducted himself as a regular Republican, and could find no common ground on which to form an alliance with the Governor.

It was explained that as president of the Senate he had participated in conferences designed to lay down a program of organization action, and that his rulings from the Senate rostrum universally had followed organization direction.

It is known that throughout the state there is some resentment against Senator Reed because he did not actively participate in the late and lamentable Republican campaign in Pittsburgh.

Politicians here have had some harsh things to say about the Senator, but that sentiment has been even more intensified elsewhere, the position being that a man who helped to profit from organization effort should make some concrete contribution.

Despite this sentiment, the state organization is for the Senator, and will insist upon his nomination if he is a candidate, even though it is recognized that some of the individual effort on his behalf in various counties has been ill-advised.

* * *

May Run Lacking Mate On Senatorial Ticket

The situation presents something of a nut for the Shannonites to crack. They have first to determine if a Shannon-Reed ticket, with organization support, offers the best chance for the veteran soldier to win the gubernatorial nomination.

But next they have to consider whether such a ticket, if successful in the primary, could achieve victory in November against a Democratic combination with Mr. Pinchot probably supporting it should he be defeated by Senator Reed.

Among some of Gen. Shannon’s friends there has developed a disposition to make him a candidate without alliance with any senatorial aspirant, but this is not being well received by the state organization, still under the influence of the Mellon regime, to which Senator Reed is closely attached.

In Philadelphia petitions have been circulated asking the General to run under any conditions. Signers, according to report, have been plentiful.

The petitions, of course, are unofficial, as February 14 is the earliest date on which official nominating petitions can be circulated. The present circulars are merely invitation to the General to get in the fight.

There should be plenty of politics tonight at the dinner for Senator Frank J. Harris, celebrating his twenty-five years in public life. The Senator is at least a receptive candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

And, while it is set forth that tonight’s affair is non-political in its intent, inevitably when a couple of thousand men get together at this stage of the political game, politics will be talked.

The attitude developed tonight probably will have a far-reaching effect upon the future course of the Senator with respect to the coming primary.

BALDWIN MAN LEADS STEP IN CONVENTION

Superiority to Income Levy Stressed in Reform Appeal

Enactment by Congress of a manufacturers’ sales tax law to replace the present income tax law as the government’s principal revenue-producing agency was urged in resolutions unanimously passed by the annual convention of the State Association of Township Commissioners in Wilkes-Barre, Pa.

The resolution was introduced before the meeting yesterday by William E. Armstrong, of Baldwin Township, president of the Allegheny association and a past president of the state association.

Armstrong headed a delegation representing 24 first-class townships in Allegheny County.

CONSTRUCTIVE STEP

The resolution reaffirmed the association’s support to President Roosevelt and Congress in “furthering all constructive measures designed to establish a basis for permanent recovery and economic stability beneficial to all of the people.”

Pointing out that tax reform and economy in government, national, state and local, are fundamental to any efficient and adequate plan for recovery, the association advocated the enactment by Congress of a national manufacturers’ sales tax as a substitute for the present federal income tax for the reasons that:

“An income tax discourages industrial and commercial enterprise, lessens employment of labor and thereby reduces payrolls and purchasing power.

“That as against an income tax a manufacturers’ sales tax, as has been adequately demonstrated in other countries, will produce a larger national revenue with a minimum of disturbance to the economic structure of the nation and without interference with individual welfare and convenience; that such a tax, while producing a greater revenue, would be less expensive to administer and more equitable in its incidence.”

SENTIMENT GROWS

The action by the state-wide organization is another instance of the increasing wave of sentiment sweeping the country favoring the manufacturers’ sales tax as a substitute for the income tax.

During the past several weeks scores of Pittsburghers have expressed themselves as favorable to the sales tax plan, including the majority of the Congressional delegation from Western Pennsylvania.

The Vice President and Mrs. Garner’s party to the President was one of the finest and most enjoyed affairs you ever saw. They were marvelous hosts, and the President did enjoy himself.

Mr. Roosevelt couldn’t get over Mr. Garner staying up till 12 o’clock.

Been visiting and listening to speeches in both ends of the capitol. Heard debating on the big Navy bill in the House. Was talking to a lady Congressman and she said to me, “Why do all those men say that a big Navy will bring peace?” I told her, “Well, even if it don’t bring peace, it will come in mighty handy.”

‘Devil’s Island’ Drives Hundreds Mad; Other Convicts Live Life of Ease

Tennis and Football Beguile Fortunate In Colony

(This is the first chapter of Adventurer Sinclair’s revealing story of the world-famous “Devil’s Island,” French Prison).

By GORDON SINCLAIR

CHAPTER I

CAYENNE, French Guiana—Sprinkled throughout France’s 12 prison camps, inaccurately known to the world as “Devil’s Island,” are 5,505 desperadoes from France, Morocco, Algeria, Senegal and Indo China.

These, the dishonored of France, sweat and swear, work and worry, sicken and die—or else they laugh and play, drink and joke, buy and sell.

Hundreds of them go stark staring mad. They shriek and moan. At the end of all human endurance, when life has become so bitter they can’t stand it another second, they simply go berserk and claw themselves apart.

That’s the picture of these infamous penitentiaries the world has been seeing for 78 years. And it’s quite true.

Yet for every man who goes mad in a solitary cell you’ll find ten, all of them convicts in uniform, sitting under the palm trees playing bridge! And sipping wines from French vineyards while they play!

On a high hill overlooking this, the capital of the colony, coal black savages from Africa sometimes erect a guillotine. Drums rattle out a summons to the population and the half-breed citizens troop up the hill to see some man have his head cut off. It’s done right in public at high noon.

That gets into the outer press too.

But have you ever heard that the prisoners of Devil’s Island have two tennis tournaments a year?

Football Teams

You’ve heard, of course, that 95 per cent of them are exiled here for life. You’ve heard that the average victim only lives five years, but has anyone told you that you’re likely to find a smart convict football team playing any afternoon?

Before coming to pry into convicts’ lives and prowl through their prisons I read everything I could lay my hands on about this hell hole. This haven of lost hopes. This land of do without. More than 99 per cent of all I read was frightful and hideous.

On the day I landed I too was appalled and depressed. I found a town of 10,000 people living in crumbling, windowless fire traps. I found them walking unpaved streets, stepping gingerly over open sewers in which vultures fought and clawed for the waste matter from homes.

I found that one person in three had leprosy, one in five had that dreadful swelling disease called elephantiasis, and more than nine out of ten were illegitimate; mostly half breeds. All of these lepers, consumptives, and people swelled so badly out of shape they didn’t look human walked in the street.

So did the “libereres.” These post-graduates of crime are the convicts who have served out their time in penitentiary but now, beaten, broken, bent and diseased they are like dead men crawling in the sun. Never again can they go home and seldom can they muster up enough strength to do a day’s work. If they do it brings them 40 cents, enough, perhaps, to keep them alive.

Day of Despair

If there had been a ship out of Guiana the day I landed I would have taken that ship and abandoned my job. I’d have quit cold. The place terrified me. But I couldn’t get out. There wasn’t a ship for a month, no ’plane for two weeks. I was marooned just as surely as one of the condemned.

I walked around broken streets hardly believing that a place with thousands of convicts to work it could possibly be so dirty. Mangy pie dogs got under my feet, vultures cluttered up the road. Everything seemed dilapidated, depressed and debauched.

I had a few books and during the night fat cockroaches ate the covers. And yet during the night I was kept awake by laughter. Laughter! What heroic soul in such a place could laugh? I got up, redressed, went below and found a group of colored boys and girls blissfully shooting craps and gleefully giggling. Life, to them, was the grandest thing.

Dined With Governor

As the two weeks slid by; ever so slowly, I began to get a different point of view. French officials were courteous and helpful.

I dined with the governor, walked with the secretary of the interior. I went into the prisons and ate with nine murderers. I was permitted free access to facts and figures within certain limits.

I found that at least half the horrors written of this place were entirely imaginary. One so-called reformer quoted in English, American and Canadian papers, was located.

According to his descriptions, which he didn’t deny, Hell itself was a pleasant summer resort compared to this equatorial death house. Torture was routine stuff.

So I asked this fellow to take me and show me the things he talked about. It looked like red hot news and I was particularly keen to meet the beautiful blue-eyed Vivienne who, it seemed, was condemned to Devil’s Island forever and ever through no fault of her innocent little self.

I was intrigued at the thought of anyone, blue-eyed or otherwise, being still innocent at 22 in Guiana.

But he was too busy. Or he was going to be too busy. Or he was ill. Or it was too hot.

I caught on. Sometimes I’m smart like everything.

I was living with a gold buyer and his amiable mulatto mistress. So was the re-

Quick Getaway Best Strategy For Our Orators

Groundhog Weatherman Fired by Farmers

HARRISBURG, Jan. 31.—(AP.) The Pennsylvania groundhog has lost his reputation as a weather prophet—with the farmer at least.

The Slumbering Lodge of Quarryville will hold elaborate ceremonies in the hills Friday, glorifying the groundhog as the “supreme weather prognosticator,” but Pennsylvania farmers bringing live stock and produce to town markets insist that he’s just a woodchuck to them.

H. A. Kniseley, a Dauphin County farmer, said:

“The old folks used to believe in that sort of thing, but there’s no such belief in the country nowadays.”

John Slesser, another farmer, added:

“Farm folks don’t believe in anything, anymore. And besides, most of these weather signs never were any good any way.”

Meade Waigle paused in wrapping up a dozen of eggs to explain that all the old superstitions are disappearing from rural Pennsylvania and he ventured:

“There are no ways at all of telling what the weather will be.

“Furthermore, the groundhog is just a nuisance to me. I can’t eat them, and to tell the truth, I have difficulty giving them away to my friends.”

Everybody nodded assent and agreed that there may be an early spring or a long winter and no one can tell which it will be—“let alone a groundhog.”

JAMES J. LONG'S SPORTS COMMENT

Lindy at Midway Denied.
Might Do as Last Resort.
Tiger Double-Play Stars.
O'Doul Stays On Bench.
Dartmouth Hopes Soar.
Great Mile in Prospect.

A story published in the East, to the effect that the Pittsburgh club has about decided to try Freddie Lindstrom at second base and replace him in the outfield with Woody Jensen, brings a denial from Pirate headquarters. No doubt such an arrangement has come up in the club councils, along with many others in connection with the uncertain situation at the midway, but President W. E. Benswanger says the moving of Lindstrom back to the infield is not being considered seriously at this time. It was because of a spinal injury, figured as likely to impair his usefulness as an infielder, that Lindstrom was shifted to the Giant outfield in 1931, and according to the Buccaneer prexy there is no thought at present of returning him to the inner defense.

Freddie Lindstrom

At that, it is not to be disputed that such a move may be among the eventual possibilities, if the Pirates do not succeed in getting an experienced full-time second sacker and other spring keystone experiments fail. Lindstrom himself believes that he can no longer play the infield, on account of the old injury to his back, but many baseball men think this is largely a state of mind, and that if Freddie could be relieved of the mental hazard he might be able to perform as well as ever in the front-line trenches. In that event, the placing of Lindstrom at second base and of Jensen in the outfield, might work out happily as a last resort, provided Jensen's hitting came up to requirements.

TIGERS OWN BEST DOUBLE-PLAY MAKERS

Many a new manager finds that the main job confronting him is to get a capable double-play combination at second base and shortstop, a vital essential to a winning club. But that's something Mickey Cochrane doesn't have to worry about in taking charge of the Tigers, for on the face of last year's figures Detroit has in Bill Rogell and Charley Gehringer the best pair at twin killings in either of the big leagues. Rogell took part in 116 double plays and Gehringer in 111.

Detroit has owned a string of star shortstops, including Charley O'Leary, Donie Bush, Topper Rigney and Jackie Tavener, and Rogell fits right into the list from the standpoint of double-play efficiency. He took part in more double plays last season than any other infielder, excepting first basemen, of course, in either of the big circuits. Oscar Mellilo, of the Browns, generally excels in the rapid fire stuff, but Rogell, with his 116, topped not only Mellilo, but all other shortstops, second basemen and third basemen in both loops. The only men to reach three figures in those positions in the National League were Billy Herman, of the Cubs, with 114, and Dick Bartell, of the Phils, with 100. Rogell's 116 did not fall far short of the major league record, which is 128, reached by Horace Ford at shortstop in 1928 and by Tony Cuccinello at second base in 1931. Sam Hale set the third-base mark at 46.

TERRY'S PROGRAM PUTS O'DOUL ON BENCH

Lefty O'Doul has been picturing himself as a possible Giant regular in the outfield next season, in view of the way he expects to plaster that new ball, but evidently he will have to be content with emergency duty and pinch-hitting roles. Manager Bill Terry's program for the year leaves O'Doul on the bench. Terry says he has decided definitely to have a fixed and permanent outfield for all games, with Mel Ott in right, George Davis in center, and Joe Moore in left. Bill admits that means O'Doul will have to remain on the bench.

Lefty O'Doul

The Giant pilot remarks that Lefty's shortcomings and handicaps are no secret, that he isn't a marvel in the field, can't throw, and that the new ball can't help him to become a regular, even if he hits .350. As for the remainder of the lineup, Terry will stand pat on the club that won the World Series, with a single exception. Johnny Vergez, who was out on account of an appendix operation, will be the No. 1 man at third base.

DARTMOUTH ALREADY BUILDS TITLE HOPES

Fresh hope always comes in with a new deal. New England football followers, particularly those with Dartmouth leanings, already are figuring the Hanover college to be among the contenders for the Eastern title next fall, now that Earl Blaik, Andy Gustafson and Fats Ellinger have been appointed to coach the Green eleven. Good material is available, and a schedule that calls for only four major games is held to give a promising outlook for an Indian rebellion.

The dopesters have it that Dartmouth ought to go places, inasmuch as Cornell is expected to be below par, Harvard will have been drained of most of its veteran material, Yale is more or less in the doldrums, and Princeton, the only really tough foe, will not be met until after the Tigers have played their climactic game with the Elis. All the other games on the Green schedule are setups. Dartmouth's offensive formation is to be a Warner adaptation of the single wingback, with the triple-threat back playing about six yards behind the line of scrimmage. As candidates for the hole which Jack Buckler filled so capably for Army when Blaik was at West Point, the Green will have available Jack Hill, Bill Clark and Norman Rand. The last named is no giant, but since Buckler weighed only 150, it is assumed that Blaik will not feel that Rand is too small.

CUNNINGHAM MAY THREATEN MILE RECORD

There's no telling what Glenn Cunningham may do in running the Wanamaker mile at the Millrose Games in New York Saturday night, if Bill Hargis, track coach at the University of Kansas, is not exaggerating in declaring that the famous flier is in better condition than ever before. That Cunningham could be in finer trim than in 1933 isn't easy to believe, when you consider the string of amazing performances he turned in during the year.

The Kansas speeder won the Wanamaker mile, the Baxter mile and the Columbian mile as a starter. Then he went outdoors and picked off the national A. A. U. championships at 800 and 1,500 meters, and followed up by circulating through seven European countries, beating all their best men at his favorite distance, and having to his credit at the end of the year an outdoor mile in 4:09.8 and an indoor mile in 4:12. Those feats appeared to spell about the best form and condition that a middle distance specialist could attain. If, as his coach states, Cunningham is in still better condition this year, Saturday night may bring an exhibition comparable even to Jack Lovelock's world outdoor record of 4:07.6.

Pitt's New Captain Ponders 1934 Gridiron Situation

CHARLES (DOC) HARTWIG, STAR GUARD . . . WILL HE SUPPLANT ONE OF THESE ALL-AMERICANS? . . AH! THERE'S WARBURTON TO BE STOPPED

Hartwig, recently appointed captain of the Pitt football team for next fall by Coach Jock Sutherland, was being hailed as one of the best guards in the land toward the end of last season and he may be a real all-America star as a senior this year, when the Panthers meet Southern California, their Tournament of Roses jinx, in a home game. Cotton Warburton, top right in the famed all-America group, will lead the Trojans against the locals, and it will be a duel between Doc and the towhead for supremacy. Fall is a long way off, but it's never too early to begin to prepare for a tough campaign, and Hartwig, a 180-pound lineman, is doing that already. Dr. Sutherland will have to build a new line around Hartwig, the '33 wall having been wrecked by graduation. This is a Sun-Telegraph picture.

GRID COACHES TO HOLD CLINIC ON RULES

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—The learned doctors of football, some 20 members of the football coaches' rules committee, will hold the first official clinic of the year on the rule book Saturday, and suggest remedies for any ills they may find in the patient.

At least eight definite changes have been suggested to the committee headed by Lou Little, of Columbia, and comprised of the smartest coaching diagnosticians in college football. There has been no indication, however, of any drastic changes gaining approval.

Considerable discussion is expected in Saturday's sessions on the advisability of permitting forward passing from any point back of the scrimmage line, instead of from five or more yards back; of returning the goal posts to the goal line, and abolishing the fumble and dead ball rules adopted two years ago in the drive to reduce injuries.

Proponents of these changes are known to be in a loud minority and have little hope of favorable action. Several other suggestions, however, have met with widespread approval.

Clarification of the rules on blocked kicks, either permitting both sides or neither side to advance the ball, is down for discussion. As the rule now stands only the defensive side may advance the ball.

HYATT'S TEAM DUE TODAY

Charley Hyatt's Tulsa Oilers basketball team is due in Pittsburgh today for its game with the McKeesport Willigs, in the Pitt Stadium Pavilion tomorrow night. The Oilers, National A. A. U. champions, are winding up a 10-game trip, of which tomorrow night's will be the ninth.

The visiting floormen will make their headquarters at the P. A. A., and will limber up there this evening.

C. De Witt Hyatt, father of Charley, is sponsor of the local game. Indications are that the legion of followers Charley had when he was the ace of the Pitt Panthers, several years ago, will jam the Pavilion to welcome him back home for a night.

Jimmy Belmont Resigns Job On Force

Boxing is a tough business, but walking a police beat is tougher, if you want the word of Jimmy Belmont, North Braddock welterweight boxer.

Jimmy got himself a job on the police force in North Braddock the first of the year. Yesterday he tendered his resignation to Chief Walter Pennington, effective tomorrow. One month was enough for Jimmy.

And he can lick the first guy who cracks:

"He can't take it."

Buck McTiernan, Belmont's old ring rival, who went on the Swissvale force at the same time Belmont joined up in his home town, was still holding on and going strong at last reports.

JACKETS DRILL FOR CHICAGO

The Yellow Jackets today were putting the finishing touches to their training for their North American Professional Lacrosse Association game with the Chicago Blue Ribbons at Motor Square Garden tomorrow night.

The game will mark the Jackets' first home appearance since January 16, when they battled through two extra periods to gain a sensational 9-8 victory over their rivals of tomorrow.

Because the Milwaukee Brewers recentlty were transferred to Chicago, it at first was thought that Kelly DeGray's warriors might opopose the locals, but Manager Larry Welch today said the Blue Ribbons were to continue to represent Chicago on the road.

At West Palm Beach, Fla.—Henry Firpo defeated Marty Simmons, 10 rounds.

At Fargo, N. D.—Mel Coleman knocked out Ace of Spades, 5 rounds. Elroy Busnaw and Harry Larson drew, 4 rounds; George Feist defeated Tod Hayes, 4 rounds.

At Granteville, Utah—LeRoy Gibson knocked out Ray Kizer, 5 rounds.

At San Antonio—Cecelio Lozado defeated Midget Mexico, 10 rounds.

At Seattle—Cecil Payne defeated Henry Woods, 10 rounds.

A. B. C. ENTRY LIST CLOSES TOMORROW

By PHIL GRABOWSKI

Tenpin bowlers have their last opportunity to file entries with Secretary E. H. Baumgarten for the thirty-fourth renewal of the American Bowling Congress Tournament at Peoria, Ill. The list closes tomorrow.

This meet will mark the fourth time Peoria has staged the A. B. C. classic. It was first held there in 1915, again in 1920 and most recently in 1927.

It is expected that more than 1,500 teams will compete this year. More than 15 local teams have already submitted their entries and one team from Wheeling will make the trip with the Pittsburghers. The E. M. Tuckers, leaders in the Metropolitan League, are scheduled to roll on March 26 and other local representatives have selected later dates.

Pittsburgh staged the tournament at Duquesne Garden in 1909, and the Pittsburgh Bowling Association, which is affiliated with the A. B. C., is trying to bring the tourney here again in 1937.

The 24 new alleys to be built for this year's tournament will be raised 67 inches above the flooring. CWA workers were being used in redecorating the Armory in Peoria for the tourney.

STRIKES AND SPARES

Miss Isabel Yoho's consistent bowling enabled the Loyalty Lodge team to win the championship of the Italian Sons and Daughters of America Girls' League by defeating the Courtesy Lodge team on the Dispatch Alleys. She also won the special prize offered by Guy Vollero, chairman of the league.

The Westinghouse Tenpin League is the oldest tenpin circuit in Western Pennsylvania, having been organized in 1902. Of its early members Lew Schumacher, president of the Pittsburgh Bowling Association; Andy Rolfe, Bill Siemon and George and John Ritter still are active.

The League-leading E. M. Tuckers will oppose the Brookline team in a Metropolitan Tenpin League match tonight on the former's alleys. Other matches tonight follow: Elba Recreation vs. Old Reliable; Iron City vs. Lawlor; Forward vs. Ko Ko Mo Kids; Muck Brothers vs. North Side Elks; Nuss Brothers vs. St. Michael's Lyceum; Aspinwall vs. Old Anchor; Silver Toppers vs. Auditorium No. 2; Fort Pitt vs. Braddock Colts; Auditorium No. 1 vs. Keystone A. C.; P. A. A. vs. Roxian.

The Waldorfs, champion match game bowling team, will invade Columbus, O., February 17, to roll against Gus Held's runner-up in the A. B. C. tournament at Columbus last year, in a special three-game match. The following day the champions will oppose an all-star aggregation.

The championship team is made up of Shang Mercurio, who at one time or other held every bowling title in Ohio; Joe Bodis, who has an average of 205 for five years in the A. B. C. tournament competition; Eddie Koepp, who has an all-time state record of 765 for singles; Pat Albris, who started out to be a baseball pitcher and ended up by becoming a star tenpinner, and Walter Ward, who recently met Joe Falcaro in a match game.

DO YOU KNOW?

That William Martin, who died during the 1932-33 season, was the only Pittsburgh tenpin bowler to receive a gold medal from the American Bowling Congress for rolling a 300 score?

That Frank Caruana, of Buffalo, is the only bowler to receive special recognition from A. B. C. for scoring two perfect games in succession on March 5, 1924

That John Almer, of Youngstown, is the second bowler to roll two perfect games. He accomplished his feat on January 18, 1931, in series of sanctioned American Bowling Congress league matches.

TALKS GIVEN ON CARE OF COURSES

By TOM BIRKS

Lectures and discussions on the maintenance of golf courses, the proper uses of seed and familiarity with soil took up the time of more than 500 delegates to the annual convention of the National Association of Greenskeepers of America today as the confab reached the formal stage at the William Penn Hotel.

Lectures were on the program by Dr. J. W. White, of Penn State; John McNamara, of the Pittsburgh Field Club, and Charley Nuttall, of Fox Chapel.

Prof. White, who conducts a class late in February each year on greenskeeping and is familiar to district golf pros and greenskeepers, talked on the subject "Getting Acquainted With the Soil." McNamara, one of the younger greensmen of the district, followed the eminent Penn State authority with a chat on "Golf Course Maintenance," and Nuttall spoke on "What the Depression Has Taught Greenskeeping About Sound Economy."

BANQUET TOMORROW

Tomorrow will be a big day for the delegates. Numerous lectures, and the annual banquet in the evening will give the visitors a busy time.

Gaston Depew, chairman of the greens and public links section of the U. S. G. A., will be the honor guest at the banquet. The officials of the organiation, headed by President John MacGregor, will take this opportunity to talk to the representative of the governing body of golf in an effort to change the decision to close the greens experimental stations at Arlington, Va., and Chicago.

The exhibitition of golf course equipment in the lower lobby of the hotel attracted large crowds all day yesterday. In the throng were many well known greenskeepers from this section and many chairmen of greens committees.

The outstanding exhibition appears to be that of Penn State College under Prof. H. B. Musser, Dr. White and Dr. L. B. Smith. This exhibit features all kinds of grass grown under various conditions. The length of the roots in soils of various natures attracted many golfers interested in the development of greens.

DEL VECCHIO PRESENT

Perry Del Vecchio, professional and greenskeeper at the Greensburg Country Club, was a visitor to the exhibit in the afternoon. Perry is a student of greens, being a product of the Oakmont school. Along with Perry was his brother Floyd, greenskeeper at the East Liverpool Country Club. Floyd was married last Saturday.

The wives of the delegates have a theater party scheduled for their entertainment this evening. Tomorrow they will be taken on a shopping tour of the leading department stores with a luncheon and bridge at Kaufmann's.

A visit also will be made to the broadcasting station of KDKA.

Despite the defeat, White carried off high run honors, clicking off 21 at one stretch.

In tonight's duel, E. D. Andrews takes on James Williams, who has yet to win a match.

CHILLYSAUCE

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Honus Wagner gives Arky Vaughan an edge on Dick Bartell in selecting the best shortstop in the National League during the 1933 campaign . . . Honus does not contend that Arky is as clever or effective in the field as the Philadelphia pepperpot, rather he arrives at his conclusion on the basis of comparative values . . . To put the question in another way, Wagner, were he a big league owner, would purchase Vaughan over Bartell if he needed a shortstop and the two were available.

By the same token, Honus gives Frank Frisch the nod over Hughey Critz, Billy Herman, Rabbit Maranville in choosing the league's most valuable second sacker . . . Wagner admits that fellows like Critz and the Rabbit have a fielding finesse which is not owned by Frank, yet the Fordham Flash has the same smart manner as the other stars in playing the batters, and he packs the old punch, which is lacking in most of his rivals.

Was it Napoleon or Knute Rockne who spoke out loud to the effect that the best defense was a good offense? . . . Well, we'll let Nap have the credit, yet Knute was the sort of a field general who could smile when the opposition made a touchdown or two . . . By the time this happened, Rock would have four or five.

Bill Benswanger has a lot of Winter dreams concerning the screen on the rightfield fence of the Oakland Orchard . . . Bill says there are times when he figures he might be better for the Buccos if the screen were tossed out . . . It was erected with a view of combatting the cheap-homer evil and we all know that screen or no screen, the home of the Pirates is larger than most parks and is a credit to the city. . . . Bill's contention is that our lefthand sluggers—P. Waner, Gus Suhr, Arky Vaughan, Earl Grace would drop a lot of the rockets in the stands if the screen were missing . . . With the return of the lively ball it is likely that quite a few baseballs will find repose in the upper tier.

Lloyd Waner expects to play a series of one night stands on his journey back to Oklahoma . . . Lloyd will make the first stop at Columbus for a call at the home of Dr. Charles E. Jorgensen, Pirate trainer, and all the little Jorgensens . . . From there he will roll on to Indianapolis for a visit with Donie Bush, the manager who first saw big league greatness in the little player . . . At St. Louis, Lloyd will take the family out to the Heine Meine domicile, and the Pirate figures on stopping at Wichita to visit with Fred Brickell, who did a short trick for the Buccos.

Dr. Jorgensen, by the way, spent yesterday in Pittsburgh. Accompanied by Mrs. Jorgensen he drove over from his Columbus home. Jorgy called at the home of Sam Watters, who is recovering at his Oakland home after undergoing an operation for sinus trouble . . . Sam expects to be up and around in the course of a week.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE HOUSE OF 11,000 DIFFERENT BRICKS—John Pospeshil, brickmaker of Venus, Neb., invented a device for facing bricks, and found that with it he could turn out thousands and thousands of bricks and no two faces would be the same. It consists of a rubber-suction facer, which when the air is released, leaves a different surface on every brick. Pospeshil used 11,000 bricks in the building of his own home, and has offered to give the house to anyone who can find two bricks alike, but to date he still owns his own home. KNEE ACTION—The new knee action, a prominent feature of most automobiles, this season, is not entirely new. John F. Murphy invented and patented a knee action running gear for automotive vehicles as early as 1904—patent No. 776,078, dated November 29, 1904. In fact, Murphy's running gear embodies knee action for all four wheels, each wheel being mounted separately on the frame with a single crank-arm. Neither front nor rear wheels were connected by axles. And, like the knee action today, Murphy's unique automobile overcame the inconvenience of bumping over ruts and skidding on corners.

TOMORROW—THE ARMLESS WONDER

KEADY LET OUT BY CLEVELAND UNIVERSITY

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 31—(AP.)—Sam Willaman, director of football at Ohio State University for the past five years, today tendered his resignation to Clarence Laylin, chairman of the board of athletic control.

Willaman has been approved as acting professor of physical education at Adelbert College of Western Reserve University and director of intercollegiate football.

The announcement of Willaman's appointment was made in Cleveland by Prof. C. F. Finfrock, chairman of Western Reserve's faculty committee on athletics. He succeeds Tom Keady.

L. W. St. John, athletic director at Ohio State, had no comment to make on Willaman's resignation. Nor did he have anything to say as to a possible successor.

YALE MAY NAME COACH

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 31—(AP.)—The Yale board of athletic control is scheduled to meet today for its decision on who shall coach Yale football.

Raymond (Ducky) Pond was acknowledged unofficially to be the nominee as head coach, the post of backfield coach was conceded to Earle (Greasy) Neale, of West Virginia, and Bennie Oosterbaan, of Michigan, was believed to be the next end coach. The identity of the new line coach remained a mystery.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Probably the greatest physical asset of Teddy Yarosz, who defends his state middleweight title against Jimmy Smith, of Philadelphia, in their postponed 15-round bout at Motor Square Garden, Monday night, February 12, in his looseness of movement . . . He resembles nothing so much as a man whose joints are on hinges...This is even more noticeable when he is dressed than it is in the ring... He gives the impression of a man who is about to fall apart...In action, this gives him a natural weaving and rolling and bobbing effect...He is never tense and therefore not so susceptible to harm from a hard punch...He gives with the blow instead of standing up rock-ribbed and solidly planted to receive its full crushing impact.

Patsy Brannigan, the local veteran, who fought them all from the late '90s until he retired from the ring along about 1920, was speaking of Yarosz the other day . . . Said he went to see him because he had been told he was awkward and had a habit of leading with his right hand . . . He could not understand how he could be successful under these conditions . . . "What I saw was a clever, polished boxer with a style all his own," he said . . . "He is as good a fighter as we've ever had around here." . . . Which is high praise, indeed, for Patsy knows a ringman when he sees one, and he has been looking at them for a great many years.

There is no mystery about why the Yarosz-Smith fight is proving such a great attraction that the Garden does not figure to be large enough to hold the crowd . . . The bout is one of those "naturals" that just seem to come along every so often and will not be hurt by its postponement . . . Smith came to Pittsburgh and thoroughly whipped Young Terry after the latter had received one of the few decisions ever awarded against Yarosz . . . And, being a fellow Pennsylvanian, he automatically became a challenger for Yarosz' state championship . . . Just a combination of happy circumstances to delight the heart of a promoter . . . The fans would break their necks to see the fight if it were staged on a desert island, and without benefit of ballyhoo too.

Billy Petrolle resents the insinuation that Barney Ross "carried" him in the latter stages of their bout in New York last week, and, although he has announced his retirement from the ring, he is so "burned up" over the matter that he has offered to bet $35,000 that Ross cannot knock him out in 10 rounds anywhere, any time . . . That's many times what he received for their battle last week . . . No less than 16 Olympic Games track and field athletes will compete in the Millrose Games in New York next Saturday night, annually one of the high spots of the indoor track and field season.—HARRY KECK.

STARS AT BANQUET

Joe Skladany, Howdy O'Dell and Mike Sebastian, Pitt stars, will be among the guests at a banquet for the Oriole football team at Duquesne tomorrow night. The affair will be held in the English Lutheran Church.

CELTICS PLAY JEWELS HERE

An all-Jewish team will be seen in action against the famous Cleveland Rosenblum-Celtics when they play the Brooklyn Jewels here on February 19. Promoter Johnny Fruend will stage the game in either Motor Square Garden or the South Side Market House.

The Jewels have one victory to their credit over the Rosies so far this season.

YAROSZ FIGHT ON FEB. 12

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

The Ted Yarosz-Jimmy Smith 15-round bout for the state middleweight championship, at Motor Square Garden, postponed night before last from Friday night to Friday of next week because of the illness of Yarosz, who has contracted a cold, was set back three more nights last night, after Matchmaker Lew Raymond and a Boxing Commission physician had visited Yarosz at his home. The new date is Monday night, February 12.

The physician, Dr. J. H. McClenahan, reported to Dr. W. D. McClelland, State Boxing Commissioner, who assigned him, that he found Yarosz was not running a temperature and did not have an abnormal pulse, but was suffering from congestion of the chest and head and the postponement was advisable.

Upon being apprised of the additional delay, Smith decided to leave tomorrow for his home in Philadelphia, accompanied by Danny Hassett, his stablemate, who boxes Anson Green, of Homestead, in the six-round semi-final, and their trainer, Billy Clark. They will finish their training at home and return here by airplane a few days before the bout. They originally had intended to remain here.

Postponement of the show came as a good break for Al Quaill, who had his lower lip cut while working with Smith last Monday. The delay will give the injury a chance to heal and permit him to make his professional debut against Jack Dalcherone in the big show as planned.

The new date clears up a situation which threatened to seriously upset the plans for the Allegheny Mountain Association, A. A. U. junior championships, to be held at the Keystone A. C. Thursday and Friday and Saturday nights of next week and the following Monday. Athletic Director Jack Kennard was planning to eliminate the Friday night date, as many of the club members want to take in the big bout and at the same time not miss any of the tournament. Under the latest arrangement, the finals will be set back from Monday to Tuesday and the preliminaries disposed of on the nights scheduled.

Promoter Jim McGirr will present Mose Butch and Frankie Wolfram in one of two 10-round bouts in McKeesport next Monday night.

BETWEEN ROUNDS

Barney Ross, the lightweight champion, intends to keep busy while he is at the top of his form. He is tentatively matched for bouts with Pete Nebo at Kansas City, February 6; Frankie Klick at San Francisco, February 22 or March 5; Henry Woods at Seattle, in March; Young Peter Jackson at Los Angeles, in March or April; Jimmy McLarnin in New York, in April or June, and for a third bout with Tony Canzoneri in New York, in July or August.

Ernie Maurer boxes Bobby Leitham in Detroit Friday night.

Jackie Hoster boxes Pete Leno in a 10-round bout headlining a show for the benefit of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Columbus, O., Saturday night. Al Gahn boxes Mike O'Dowd, Carl Turner meets Ramano Massey and Happy Ahlgrim opposes Eddie Townley in six-round preliminaries.

Jackie Willis boxes Harry Serody in Philadelphia tomorrow night and Billy Ketchel takes on George Courtney there the following night, with Danny Devlin and Johnny Pepe in the semi-final.

Salvatore (Red) Affinto, who recently spoiled an Al Rossi-Billy Holt bout for McKeesport fans by knocking out Rossi in New York, boxes Al McCoy, of Dorchester, Mass., in Boston's Madison Square Garden, Friday night. He also holds knockouts over Sam Bruce, Tiger Roy Smith, Jack Rosenberg and Bucky Lawless. He is a New York University student.

Local boxing referees, judges, timers, physicians and deputies are meeting this afternoon with Boxing Commissioner Dr. W. D. McClelland in his office in the Koppers Building to consult on the Commission's policy with regard to the conduct of boxing and wrestling shows, decisions in bouts and other matters. The first meeting is scheduled for 2 o'clock.

TITANS, GENEVA FACE TESTS

THIEL, BETHANY MAY HANG UP UPSETS

By JESS CARVER

Up until tonight, it has been sort of a coffee-and-hot dog week as far as the collegiate athletes were concerned. The collegians haven't had enough to do, in the way of competition, to keep warm. No one else has exactly been breaking out in sweats these past few days, so its all even. Tonight, however, six varisity fives swing into action in a trio of contests which, if they furnish nothing in the way of upsets, at least provide a touch of rivalry.

TITANS FACE TESTS

At Greenville, Westminster's Towering Titans tackle a formidable Thiel outfit, an outfit formidable enough to give the unbeaten Dukes a great tussle last Saturday night. This is a Tri-State Conference clash.

At Bethany, Ken Loeffler sends his lethargic Genevians into action against Bethany. West Virginia and Davis Elkins have a state duel on tap at Morgantown.

Coach John Lawther, of Westminster, who would like nothing better than to have the Thiel gym burn down sometime between now and 8 o'clock tonight so as not to have to play this one, rates the Lutherans as one of his Titans' toughest foes. Westminster has the game Saturday with Duquesne in mind and hardly relishes such a test as is certain to be afforded by the Theilians. Who would?

CAM SEES WEST VA.

Cam Henderson was in town last Sat'day night, scouting West Virginia. What he saw as the Mountaineers lost to Pitt hardly figured to send him back to Elkins with his brow creased with worry, but the Scarlet Hurricane has been an in-and-out team this campaign and does not figure to do anything very rash against the Mountaineers.

Duquesne's boxers are preparing for their Intercollegiate Conference match with West Virginia's championship array of punchers, scheduled for the Dukes' gym Friday night; the Duquesne basketeers are drilling in real earnest for the meeting with Westminster in Sharon Saturday; Pitt's swimmers are splashing about, getting ready for the dual meet with Ohio State Friday, and the Panther wrestlers are preparing for the opening mat engagement of the local season with Wash-Jeff, said match to be staged after the Panther-President basketball game Saturday night in the Stadium Pavilion.

ALLDERDICE FIVE WINS

By JULIUS LEVIN

The scholastic basketballers battled through a comparatively light program yesterday, nine-tenths made up of non-league action.

In a postponed City League fracas, Taylor Allderdice defeated Westinghouse, 46 to 32, with Magee, Westinghouse forward, leading the scoring with eight field goals.

Two other City League fives saw action, Fifth Avenue losing to a team of alumni tossers, 43 to 35 and Peabody bowing to Wilkinsburg, 39 to 15.

Leon See's 'Inside Story' of Carnera

EDITORIAL FOREWARD

Tom-toms thunder before "The Man Mountain's" American debut in January, 1930, against Big Boy Peterson. Publicity over the Ambling Alp's physique—especially his feet—is tremendous. There are some caustic skeptics, but many wonder if a new "Superman of Sock" is to be unveiled . . .

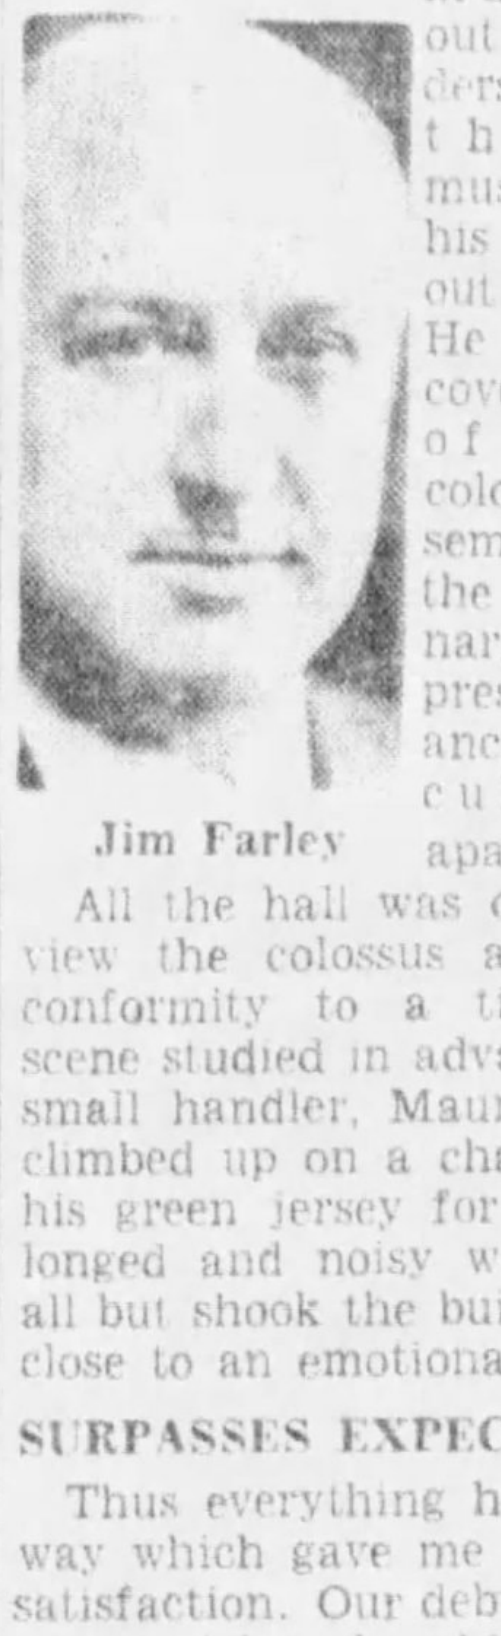
CHAPTER XIV

By LEON SEE

Developer and Former Manager of Primo Carnera, World Heavyweight Boxing Champion.

The vast arena of Madison Square Garden was found to be much too small to contain the crowd which the giant's debut attracted. More than 10,000 were unable to get seats, and for an hour traffic was stopped in vicinity of the Garden.

It is impossible to describe the triumphal ovation giver to Carnera by the thousands of Italians who had come to applaud him. It was a frenzy.



Jim Farley

When Primo climbed into the ring, he wore a green jersey, very much hollowed out at the shoulders, which made the formidable musculature of his arms stand out all the more. He had his head covered by a cap of the same color. The ensemble gave him the extraordinary and impressive appearance of an herculean Irish apache!

All the hall was on its feet to view the colossus and when, in conformity to a tiny dramatic scene studied in advance, his very small handler, Maurice Eudeline, climbed up on a chair to remove his green jersey for him, a prolonged and noisy wave of mirth all but shook the building. It was close to an emotional earthquake.

SURPASSES EXPECTATIONS

Thus everything happened in a way which gave me the greatest satisfaction. Our debut in America was a triumph which surpassed even my own expectations.

But the New York Boxing Commission had prepared for me one of those little quibblings which seem habitual to all the such authorities. As I have stated before, and as Primo loved to repeat, the only article of his size that I was able to find in the stories is a collar button. For which reason it had been necessary for me to have made for him extra-large boxing gloves, ring shoes of a hitherto unavailable size and specially made white socks. I was also obliged to have made for him a special abdominal protector.

Several minutes before the Peterson bout, when Primo was all but ready in his dressing room, one of the officials of the Commission came in, bringing an ordinary protector, the use of which is imposed, it appeared, by New York regulations. This official said that the giant Italian would be compelled to use this much too small object.

'SUSPENDS' COMMISSION

I strongly objected that this order was contrary to good sense in this case; that Carnera not only would not get efficient protection from the accessory, but that, if he used it, he would be subject to serious dangers. The then Boxing Commissioner, Hon. James A. Farley—now Postmaster General of the United States in the cabinet of President Roosevelt—was not less adamant. To tell the truth, he talked to me with the greatest courtesy, and although he realized perfectly well that my protests were sincere and well founded, he did not yield. So Primo was forced to don the official protector. In spite of the danger incurred, everything came out all right. It was a petty piece of officiousness—that cup episode—one of many I have encountered, especially from politicians mixed up with boxing.

The next day, I proclaimed with all seriousness in the newspapers that I was displeased by the way in which I had been treated, and that I would suspend the State Boxing Commission for three months so far as Carnera was concerned, declaring that he would not fight in New York City before the expiration of the 90-day suspension!

The most comical part of the whole matter is that Carnera and I kept our word, to the detriment ('tis a pity) of Madison Square Garden, which was enriched by a record gate on the first appearance of my Mammoth Muscle Merchant of Venice within its historic portals.

A MIRACULOUS JOURNEY

Faithful to our word not to box in New York for three months, we undertook a tremendous journey across the United States for the purpose of consolidating the reputation and the popularity of Carnera in all the States, by means of an impressive series of K. O. victories.

Between January and September, 1930, Carnera fought no less than 22 matches, gaining 21 victories by K. O. in less than six rounds, and the twenty-second win on a foul. This miraculous tour, ever in conformity with my champion-making Idea, had multiple results.

First, it brought Carnera an unbelievable amount of publicity in all the States.

It also contributed to create for him an incomparable record.

Besides, in each town where we were stopping, Primo was training in public with the best local heavy-weight, adapting himself to their respective styles, improving each day without ever taking a dangerous punch, acquiring progressively and also much more quickly than any other, the experience without which it is absolutely impossible for the best gifted man to become a champion. And moreover realizing considerable financial profits.

Entire volumes would be necessary to tell the innumerable incidents which strewed this incredible journey; I will content myself with describing a few.

RIOUX PANICKY FOE

This episode occurred at the beginning of our 1930 tour when Primo bumped over Elziar Rioux at Chicago. Rioux, who assumed the title of champion heavyweight of Canada, was literally terrorized when he saw the impressive musculature of Carnera in his dressingroom.

When the French-Canadian climbed into the ring, a panicky terror seemed to seize him, stripping him of fighting force . . . My Big Boy attacked with his habitual confidence. He feinted with his left and followed with a magnificent right hook aimed at the jaw . . . which missed its mark by several inches. Rioux had not been hit, but he must have felt the wind from Primo's enormous fist, for he slid down on the ring floor visibly desirous of making it a delay as prolonged as possible, and, in any case, of a duration greater than 10 seconds.

But Rioux had counted without his adversary. Primo, vexed because he had missed the punch, was not at all disposed to let his prey escape unscatched. While the referee hesitated, the Italian approached his prostrate rival, and, at the risk of being disqualified, gave him a light kick in the rear, crying out:

"Get up, you dub, I did not hit you!"

PRIMO PAYS FINE

Rioux got up only to go down again definitely at the first fairly solid blow.

The Canadian was all but disqualified for not trying, and he was fined $1,000 by the Illinois Boxing Commission—a fine which Primo, always generous, hastened to reimburse with my approval.

The K. O. victories of Carnera over Cowboy Owens in two rounds at Newark; over Buster Martin in two rounds at St. Louis; over Jim Sigman in one round at Memphis; over Man Mountain Erickson in two rounds at Oklahoma City; over Farmer Lodge in two rounds at New Orleans, were of but little moment. But I should devote a few lines to the match in which Carnera faced the Negro Ace Clark in Philadelphia, a bout which produced a perilous situation totally unexpected and which was on the point of turning into a tragedy.

SALUTE, MADISON SQUARE GARDEN!

In green and buff shoulder-showing ring garb and cap, Primo Carnera loomed as "a Herculean Irish Apache" in his American debut when he stopped Big Boy Peterson in one minute in Madison Square Garden, New York, thrilling the large turnout of fans. This is a sketch by L. G. Berings, noted French newspaper artist.

Berth as Pilot Rejected by Hafey

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 31.—(INS.)—Chick Hafey, star outfielder of the Cincinnati Reds, admitted today he had turned down the manager's job of the Reds because "it's too long a walk from the outfield to the bench." Hafey gave his reason without a smile, and then explained:

"A playing outfielder is at a disadvantage managing a ball club. He is too far away from the actual play, and in order to become a party of the play and to properly direct it, he must travel back and forth from the outfield to the mound constantly.

"That will take a lot out of any ball player, and while he might still be a success as a manager, as a player, he is bound to suffer."

U. S. WOMEN WIN

LONDON, Jan. 31 (AP).—The United States team of women squash racquets players, winners of its first series in the Queens Club yesterday, defeated an International Sportsmen's Club team of women, 4 to 2.

LIBERTY PICKS SKLADANY

Two players not named on previous selections for an all-America football team are on the Liberty All-Players, All-America, it was announced with the completion of the tabulation of votes from 1,508 players on the squads of 91 colleges. The Liberty selection is unique among all-America teams because it has as its basis the judgment of the players themselves upon the men they opposed. Thus the results are from actual experience with each player on the gridiron and not from the superficial observances of "experts" in the grandstands.

Francis Lund, of the University of Minnesota, taking halfback position on Liberty's all-America, and J. D. Dempsey, of Bucknell, as tackle, are the two players not previously mentioned in other selections. The complete team follows:

End—Joe Skladany, University of Pittsburgh.
End—Paul Geisler, Centenary.
Guard—Francis Schammel, State University of Iowa.
Guard—Aaron Rosenberg, University of So. California.
Tackle—Francis Wistert, University of Michigan.
Tackle—J. D. Dempsey, Bucknell University.
Center—Charles Bernard, University of Michigan.
Quarterback—Irvine Warburton, University of So. California.
Halfback—Francis Lund, University of Minnesota.
Halfback—Beattie Feathers, University of Tennessee.
Fullback—George Sauer, University of Nebraska.

Second and third teams also are named. Pittsburgh district players named on the honorable mention list include:

Walton, Pitt; Ferraro (of Pittsburgh), Columbia; Zaremba (from Beaver Valley), New York University, and Niccolai, Duquesne, tackles.

Allen, West Virginia, quarterback. (Cliff Montgomery, of Natrona Heights, Columbia's star, is named as quarterback on the second team).

Skladany, of Pitt, end; Montgomery, of Columbia, quarterback, and Weinstock, of Pitt, fullback, also are named on Liberty's All-East team.

Willigs Beat Fintex In League Finale

The W. S. Willigs, pace-setters for the first half in the Allegheny County League and first-half pennant winners, said bye-bye to the circuit last night by handing the Fintex quintet a 48-to-40 defeat at Foresters' Hall.

The Willigs have decided to drop out of the circuit, due to inability to arrange satisfactory dates for non-league activity.

Fred Brand, Willig center, suffered a severe ankle injury late in the game and had to be carried from the floor. Bobby Smith, Fintex forward, was the high scorer with 22 points. The lineup:

STEEL REDUCES 1933 NET LOSS

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

UNITED STATES STEEL Corporation, dominant figure in the industry, has shown less encouraging results for 1933 than many of the independent producers.

The corporation yesterday reported a net loss of $7,945,445 after deducting all charges for the final three months of 1933. This was less than in the corresponding period of 1932 when net loss was $16,729,368 but it was greater than in the third quarter of the year when net loss was $2,717,014. A decline in demand for steel took place in the latter part of the year.

The loss for the full year amounted to $36,020,097. This compared with a net loss of $71,175,704 in 1932.

* * *

Some Independents Reported Profit

REPORTS OF OTHER steel companies already made public and predictions of those to be made public within the next week indicate that the results for United States Steel do not compare favorably with those of the independents.

Inland Steel Company yesterday reported a net profit of $529,373 after all charges for the fourth quarter. This was equivalent to 44 cents a share on 1,200,000 shares of stock. It compared with a net profit of $623,612 or 52 cents a share in the preceding quarter.

For the full year of 1933 Inland reported a net profit of $166,693 or 13 cents a share. In 1932 net loss was $3,320,958. Inland lost money early in 1933 but achieved a profitable basis last spring.

* * *

More Reports To Come Soon

LAST WEEK Bethlehem Steel reported a net profit of $629,671 for the final three months of the year. This was equal to 67 cents a share on the seven per cent stock. It was the first quarterly profit since the three months ended June 30, 1931.

National Steel will show a profit for the fourth quarter of the year although it will be smaller than in the third quarter due to labor troubles and the generally lower rate of steel plant activity.

Other independents are expected to publish their statements within a few days. In most cases they will indicate that the smaller units in the industry have been able to take advantage of recovery more quickly than United States Steel.

In this column yesterday the payment of accumulated dividends by Harbison-Walker Refractories Company was incorrectly stated as $5 a share. The correct amount is $3 a share.

former. This brought us into frequent contact. So he moved.

Romantic Fancies

Among the books I brought along was one by a boy adventurer.

In the book was a picture of himself taken between two ferocious-looking tiger men of Devil's Island. Two of the condemned in uniform. The author explained that the taking of this picture cost 30 days at hard labor.

Nerts!

I spent hours with convicts day after day. I ate with them, played cards with them, borrowed their bicycles.

One day, two convicts—both murderers—and I tramped into the jungle to try to catch a howling monkey. We never asked any guard if we could go. We just went.

I didn't have a camera, but I had $1,000 and there I was alone in the South American jungle with two murderers who were supposed to slit a throat for $1.98.

If I'd wanted to take pictures there would have been nothing to it. If they'd wanted to murder me I had about as much chance as a clay pigeon.

In another book I read about the bamboos. That was a shocker. It told in great detail how the convicts, who died by dozens every week, were never buried but dumped one on top of another in a clump of bamboos east of the town cemetery.

So I risked sunstroke to go down there in the heat of the day which is the burying hour. One "liberere" and one convict were being buried. It was a forlorn and lonely sight all right. Made me think how short and terrible life could be.

But the dead were in coffins. Cheap little rat traps, of course. But coffins. And every man had a grave to himself. He was not buried on top of a companion and never had been.

All this is just a sort of general prelude to a group of articles on the world's most infamous penitentiaries which begins tomorrow. It had been my intention to write the stuff at home, because I thought I might be spied on down here but beyond casual amours with dusky belles, which is quite out of my line, there isn't much doing among the vultures, and pink-striped brigands, so I'm writing these random impressions as they come. You'll find some frankly and definitely contradictory. Well, you know me, folks. I am a reporter, not a philosopher. I call 'em as I see 'em and when, one day, I write about convicts playing tennis on the village green and the next day write of debaucheries in cages filled with 60 men each don't be surprised.

The first hundred years are the hardest.

GORDON SINCLAIR

Install Aliquippa Pastor Tonight

STEEL PRICING DISSENTION APPEARS

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Iron Age says:

"The first shot in what may prove to be a stirring battle between consumers and producers of steel has been fired by a large automobile manufacturer. Dissatisfied with the steel code and particularly with provisions barring preferential prices on large purchases, this company is reported to have sharply reduced tonnages allotted to leading steel companies and to have spread out its orders among a large number of small mills. This move, intended also as a protest against prospective price advances for the second quarter, comes at a time when the automotive industry stands alone among the foremost consuming lines as a source of rapidly increasing tonnage.

"The drive of the automobile industry to win back preferential prices comes at a time when the steel code is being attacked at Washington for discriminating against smaller industries. Steel producers obviously cannot please both large and small buyers, but complaints on the part of smaller interests are surprising in view of the code provision for price equality among all classes of consumers irrespective of size.

NATIONAL RATE UP

"The automotive industry has placed large orders within the past week with the result that certain producers of sheets and strips are sold out for the remainder of this quarter. Steel output has been stimulated, particularly in centers specializing in the lighter rolled products. The Valley rate has risen five points to 35 per cent of capacity and may reach 40 per cent before the close of this week. Operations in the Wheeling district are up 10 points to 60 per cent, and the Chicago average has risen one point to 30½ per cent. The rate in the Cleveland-Lorain area remains at 54 per cent, but is due to rise within the next seven days. In Pittsburgh, where heavy products predominate, mills are having difficulty in maintaining a 21 per cent rate. In the Philadelphia district ingot output is off two points to 23 per cent. The national average has risen three points to 35 per cent of capacity, the highest rate to date this year.

RAIL ORDERS SLOW

"Tonnage from the railroads is still slow in materializing, largely because of prolonged financial negotiations at Washington. The public works program, so long in getting into full swing, promises to give the iron and steel industry substantial support sooner than the railroads. Cast iron pipe has felt the impetus of federal aid perhaps more than structural steel. Scrap, ordinarily a good barometer of steel production, has weakened in price just as steel mill operations seem headed for further gains. The finished steel and pig iron composites remain unchanged at 2.028c a lb. and $16.90 a gross ton."

RECIPE FOR JAPANESE DISH PRESENTED

Brownsville Woman Gives Formula of Rare Delicacy

Sugarless Tea Is Recommended to Go With It

Prudence Penny has received many recipes for international ways of preparing foods, but today for the first time she has in her prize list a Japanese recipe, Sukiyaki, sent in by Mrs. Tadafumi Mikuriya. As a help to those housewives who plan to serve her favorite recipe, Mrs. Mikuriya suggests:

"Tea without sugar should be served with this wholesome, appetizing dish."

Winning the $5 prize is a dish with which most of us are as little familiar as we are with the Japanese winner. Stewed tripe a la Creole is its name, and Mrs. Lloyd Knecht, its sender, guarantees you will find it thoroughly different.

If you have any favorite recipes send them in to Prudence Penny, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, for she daily awards one $5 prize and ten $1 prizes to the best recipes received. No recipes are returned.

STOCK MARKET DIPS, VOLUME DWINDLES

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—The lively antics of yesterday's boom-time stock market gave way today to cautious contemplation which found profit taking quite popular.

The fast-moving equities of the previous session showed resistance to the cashing-in process during the early hours, but some of these turned a little heavy later. At the same time, the volume of transactions dwindled appreciably on the declines.

Bonds were also subjected to moderate realizing. The dollar was firm in relation to sterling notwithstanding indications of further American gold purchases in London. Wheat lost about a cent a bushel, cotton was barely steady, and other commodities a trifle hesitant.

Some of the utility and alcohol shares held small gains and Union Pacific and Douglas Aircraft got up about a point each. United States Steel on the other hand was off a point or more, as was Bethlehem, while Allied Chemical, Case, United States Smelting and Delaware and Hudson lost 2 or more each. Most of the motors were only mildly lower, and American Telephone gave but little ground. The rails were a bit easier, as were the tobaccos.

Several other more active professionals showed a disposition to step aside until more developments in the gold program are announced. There were many conjectures in the financial district as to just how soon the President would make known his first dollar devaluation figure.

Several stock exchange members expressed surprise at word from Washington that the President, after all, would ask for legislation at this session of Congress for the federal regulation of speculation. It had been understood in some quarters that a control bill probably would be put over until next year with the exchange governors, in the meantime, adopting more stringent restrictions relating to margins, pools and specialists.

In line with the existing comparatively heavy margins required of traders, commission firms say that much of the buying of both has been outright. Odd-lot purchases, it was said, have also played a more important part than usual in the recent business aggregates.

There was little change in the industrial picture. Electric power output for the past week dipped slightly under that of the previous like period but the rate of increase over the corresponding week last year held about even with that of the week ended January 20.

WHEAT LOWER, UNSETTLD

CHICAGO, Jan. 31.—Reactionary tendencies that developed in the wheat market today carried prices downward almost 2 cents a bushel, but late rallies overcame part of the loss.

Much of the selling came from recent buyers, and was associated with indications that after four days upturn of prices the peak of the wheat market had been passed for at least the time being. It was figured, however, that the international wheat price on a gold basis is yet 17 cents below the figure at which lower tariffs were to become effective in leading countries.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅝-1¼ under yesterday's finish, corn ¼-½ down, oats, ½-⅝ off, and provisions showing 2 cents to 5 cents decline.

MARKET SEATS JUMP $40,000

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—(AP.)—New York Stock Exchange seat values took a big jump today following the substantial increase in stock market activity during the past fortnight. A membership sold at $190,000, up $40,000 from the previous sale, and the highest price since last August.

Only a few weeks ago a seat changed hands at $110,000, which was well down from the high of 1933. This decline was attributed partly to fears that Congress might adopt some legislation to put the exchange under federal control.

The sale shows one of the biggest individual advances in the history of membership transfers. The last previous big rise was on June 6, last, when a seat sold for $189,000, or $25,000 over the preceding sale.

UNITED AIR LINES

United Air Lines recently carried passenger No. 350,000 on a regularly scheduled flight, and announced that the last year it has carried 127,000 passengers, as against 8,000 in 1929.

PAPER PRICES STEADY

The movement of paper to distributing and consuming channels is improving in several lines, according to trade reports. Prices are steady.

LOCAL MARKET MOVEMENTS UPWARD

Further strength was evident in the general list on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange in today's session. The early market found several issues above their last previous prices with the business well distributed throughout the list. Investment issues were in good demand. Lone Star Gas preferred was substantially higher and Pittsburgh Brewing Company bonds jumped a point and a half. On the "big board" the market started strong, but ran into a little irregularity toward the middle of the day.

Heavy industrials on the local market were up fractionally from last night's closing prices. Fuel issues were steady to firm and there was a fair market for the miscellaneous specialties. Iron Age confirmed the American Steel Institute's report of higher operations in the steel industry. Hovering near the peak of last summer's advance, the New York market was being watched closely as a break-through on the upside would be interpreted as indicating further improvement.

COTTON PRICES SHOW LOSSES

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Cotton futures opened barely steady, 2 to 5 lower under liquidation, lower foreign exchange and uncertainty over the acreage reduction program. March, 11.28; May, 11.44; July, 11.62; October, 11.78; December, 11.90; January, 11.97.

Trading was moderately active at the start. The decline met fair buying by the trade together with covering and moderate commission house demand. After selling off to 11.44 for May at the start, prices steadied a point or two and the market was rather irregular during the first half hour with fluctuations narrow.

Trading was quiet later with the market steady. At midday May was selling around 11.47 and active months generally were within 2 or 3 points of yesterday's closing quotations.

TAX PROGRAM HELD NO HELP TO RECOVERY

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

Universal Service

Mr. Rukeyser

NEW YORK, Jan. 30.—The challenge to offset economic chaos through intelligent planning entails an obligation to follow a program which is consistent and internally harmonious.

The major urge for business recovery is certainly not helped by the tentative tax program of the House Ways and Means Committee. In fact, the punitive spirit behind numerous proposals will tend to offset other constructive, trade-building political policies.

If the President's ideal of balancing the entire budget within 18 months is to be realized, the major task seems to be to build up the volume of private industry, so that millions of men may be transferred from extraordinary public payrolls to normal private payrolls.

CRITICAL POINT PASSED

In the depression, the downward course overran the "critical point," and as a result it has long been apparent that reliance could not be placed on automatic correctives.

Col. Malcolm C. Rorty, recognizing that the depression was greatest in the capital goods trades, suggested federal bonuses to private interests who would undertake construction projects. This idea has been partly adopted by the Public Works Administration, which assumes part of the cost of local projects, which it helps to finance. The suggestion may be carried further into effect in the Home Loan Corporation projects, but the effort will be made to make straight loans rather than openly to give bonuses for those who are willing to buck the trend.

Those with foresight are eager to stimulate private construction projects so that they can carry the load after public works expenditures are tapered off in accordance with the administration's long-term budget plans.

PROFITS IMPORTANT

In the last analysis, a forward movement in private construction will depend on a resumption of investment and on an improvement in corporate profits. The question of investment presupposes that the ambiguities of the federal securities act will be clarified, and the importance of business profits raises the hope that policy will not be influenced by business-baiting governmental subordinates, who have talked disparagingly of profits.

The extension of cash payments under the AAA to the corn-hog region and the expenditures under the CWA and the PWA would seem to assure near-term trade improvement. Accordingly, while the orthodox doctrinaires shake their heads and wonder, alert business executives will sense an opportunity to quicken their turnover, and hence their net income.

An expert, who has analyzed bank loans thoroughly, expressed a preference for loans under $1,000, which are based on character. In the larger loans, he said, it is important for bank officers to distinguish carefully between short term self liquidating commercial loans and capital loans. He indicated that, wherever a loan exceeds half of the previous year's net income of the borrower, it should be a signal to find out whether it is not a disguised capital loan.

EXCHANGE REPORT MILD

The Commerce Department report on regulating the stock exchanges was comparatively mild.

The real issue lies between regulation based on the discretion of public officials and regulation based on specific rules.

In connection with the latter, it has been informally suggested that formulae could be evolved to guide lenders. One crude proposal was that when stock prices double, margin requirements be raised until the debit balances are virtually eliminated. Another idea was to base the formula on price-to-earnings ratios rather than mere arithmetical increases in prices.

After securities have made extraordinary advances, it may be all right to let people continue to buy them with their own funds, but it is dangerous to let them persist in operating on borrowed funds.

Nickel Plate Asks Loan for Equipment

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—(INS.)—The Nickel Plate Railroad today asked the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to issue $5,062,000 of 4 per cent equipment trust certificates.

The certificates will be sold to PWA at par and the proceeds used in the purchase of 15 freight locomotives, five yard locomotives, 1,200 freight cars and seven passenger cars.

The Lehigh and New England asked the commission to approve the expenditure of a $1,212,000 PWA loan to be used in the purchase of 500 freight cars.

Baldwin Capital Change Proposed

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Proposals for a capital writedown will be voted on by Baldwin Locomotive Works stockholders at the annual meeting March 1. The plan calls for a reduction in stated capital to $30,548,000 from $42,134,000. Of the new capital figure, $20,000,000 is to be allocated to the preferred stock and $10,548,000 to the common. The balance will be used in effecting certain adjustments in value of property, plant and investments.

Steel Man Says Private Capital Needed to Sustain Recovery Started by Government

With the nation well on the way to recovery, private capital should be able to cope with any business slack that might follow retirement of the federal government from financing of projects. Eugene G. Grace, president of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, indicated that was his view today on that phase of the economic horizon. Addressing officials of the Cambria plant of the Bethlehem company at Johnstown, Grace did not state he expected abandonment of government-financing ventures but expressed the opinion in the course of gauging the grade of the new upturn.

"Federal money-lending agencies have shown us the way to national restoration," he said, "but no economic or business structure is sound that depends upon government money for its support. Private capital has got to be put to work.

Activity in the bond market has been regarded in some quarters a possible precursor of opening up of the "new capital" market to some extent. But this viewpoint is far from unanimous. On the contrary there are doubtless many who feel much the same as W. W. Atterbury, head of the Pennsylvania, who in commenting on that road's huge borrowing from the federal government to finance its electrification work, declared he could not see revival of private lending in the near future. He visualizes other large railroads and industrial corporations seeking federal accommodation for necessary long-term expenditures.

All other things being equal, the steel corporation, with payrolls 24 per cent smaller than they actually were, would have netted a sizeable profit from operations in the last quarter of 1933. Actually a deficit of $7,945,445 was shown before preferred dividend payments. But had hours and wages been at old rates it is indicated net profit available for the preferred stock would have been $4,267,800 equivalent to about $1.18 a share on the issue.

January trading in bonds on the stock exchange, approximating $440,000,000, was the heaviest for any month since April, 1920, when trading totaled $462,000,000. It was the eighth time in the history of the exchange in which bond dealings exceeded $400,000,000 for a month. The record month was December, 1919, when $685,000,000 changed hands as high money rates prompted heavy selling.

Some idea of the potency of the NRA codes as an influence for working increased buying power into our economic structure from the bottom that is through the workers, instead or from the top, is afforded by a glance at the December statement of the Steel Corporation. Total payrolls for the closing quarter of the year were $48,852,980, or about 24 per cent greater than would have been the case under pre-code rates of pay.

Wheat reversed its trend of the last four days, and decidedly lower levels today were established for prices. Profit-taking by Chicago longs found buying power inadequate to digest offerings. Declines in sterling, stocks and cotton were not inspiring to bullish feeling. This offset in a measure the effect of continued dry weather over the Southwest.

POWER OUTPUT GAIN SAME

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Production of electricity by the electric light and power industry of the United States, during the week ended January 27, totaled 1,610,542,000 kilowatt hours compared with 1,469,636,000 kilowatt hours in the corresponding week in 1933, an increase of 9.6 per cent, according to the Edison Electric Institute. For the week ended January 20, output came to 1,624,846,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 9.5 per cent over the like 1933 week and for the week ended January 13 was 1,646,271,000 kilowatt hours, an increase of 10.1 per cent.

EARLY INCREASE IN BUSINESS INDICATED

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—It begins to look very much as if we are to have a speculative spurt, rising prices, and increasing business activity before long now.

This condition should develop soon, and last well through the spring months.

At least, I cannot now see what is to stop it. In fact, the chief problem now seems to be how to check the potential inflation once it gets started.

BANK RESERVES CITED

The spurt now to be anticipated will be essentially inflationary, and the reasons for it are chiefly as follows:

1—The huge excess of reserves held by commercial banks. As a result of past "open market operations" and the small demand for currency, their excess reserves have piled up to the extent of nearly a billion dollars. These are available for loans, and the government will use its increased influence to make the banks loosen up.

Here we may mention the increased capital pumped into the banks by government subscriptions to their preferred stocks.

2—The government, by the new money bill, has become a great central banking agency. It not only holds the nation's gold, but it has two billion dollars set aside with which it is authorized to buy gold and government securities. When it buys gold it increases the "metallic reserve." When it buys its bonds it piles up credit reserves in the commercial banks.

WANTS HIGHER PRICES

The government wants prices to rise (Gen. Johnson to the contrary), and it wants the banks to lend freely. And the President can now control the extension of what was formerly Reserve Bank credit.

3—An attempt is about to be made to devalue the paper dollar to the level of a theoretical gold dollar, which has only 60 per cent as much gold as formerly. This will be a big job, because the dollar is now worth more than 60 cents on the gold basis.

It will require pumping out more credit dollars—enough to make them actually worth less in this country. That will occur only when prices rise.

What it means is "writing up" the nation's gold reserves, which is done (1) by making gold dollars smaller, and (2) by making many more paper dollars.

4—The government's spending policy is forcing dollars into circulation, and thus "creating" turnover and "purchasing power"—as so many people have long desired.

GOVERNMENT MUST PAY

This "stimulates" what now passes for "business," and thus makes the theoretical devaluation of the dollar effective.

Of course the government must pay, either by raising taxes or by printing money. Although the rich are going to be "soaked" in taxes, the printing press will be relied upon in one way or another.

In one way or another, government spending is going to continue up to a point where dollar devaluation is more than the theoretical thing which it has been so far. That means just one thing, inflation.

The administration has decided, I think, that it wants to avoid "greenbacks" and to follow as closely as possible the form of "credit inflation." But now our money is nothing but credit. So what is the difference?

This is why the administration has gone into the banking business. The banks would not, or could not, inflate.

Undoubtedly, one reason for handling the thing this way is the idea that the inflation thus can be "controlled." That remains to be seen.

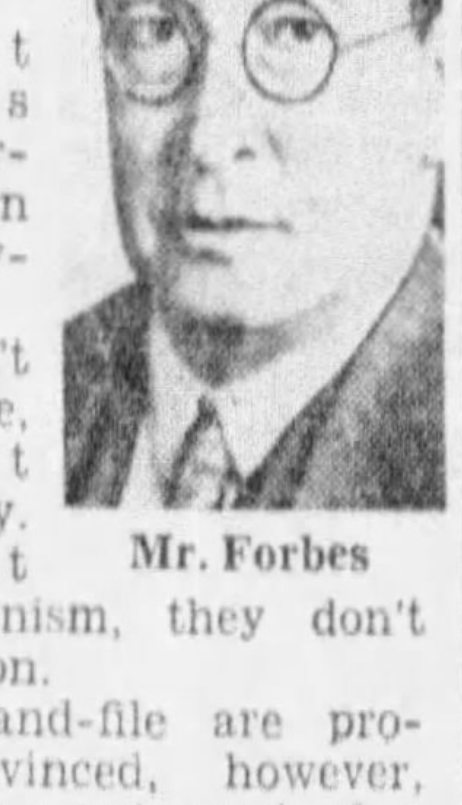
Permanent Work Real Solution

By B. C. FORBES

JOBS talk.

Every time I see men clamoring around an employment agency or lined up by the score outside an establishment that has advertised for workers, I experience a thrill. I feel proud to be an American worker.



Mr. Forbes

All that Americans want is opportunity to earn an honest living.

They don't want a dole, they don't want charity. They don't want communism, they don't want revolution.

The rank-and-file are profoundly convinced, however, that they have not received a square deal from high finance and big business. They feel emphatically that, by and large, financiers and capitalists who for years have been in the saddle have been over-mercenary, that they were unduly engrossed in feathering their own nests, and that they did not have sufficient regard for the wellbeing of ordinary people.

This attitude is reflected clearly and bitterly in the thousands of letters which come to this column.

The people were ripe for a new deal. They regard President Roosevelt as their champion. They wholeheartedly applaud him for having taken the stand he has taken toward leaders of high finance and big business. They cordially welcome the transferring of power from Wall street to Washington.

They are confident that President Roosevelt is animated by humane motives, that he is absolutely sincere in striving to bring about "the greatest good of the greatest number."

This writer, as a matter of fact, incurs vehement censure whenever he ventures to suggest that any proposal emanating from Washington may not work out for the ultimate, permanent good of the country. Readers declare, in effect:

"International bankers and capitalists ruled the roost for years—and made a sad mess of things. President Roosevelt is striving to give Americans a new deal. Let us accept his leadership unquestioningly."

JOBS talk.

Gen. Attebury, head of the Pennsylvania Railroad, yesterday gave an outline of how much employment will flow from the $77,000,000 loan which the government has granted this premier railroad.

Almost 25,000 additional men will be given the equivalent of a year's work by the road's comprehensive electrification and equipment-building program. A total of 45,000,000 man-hours of railway and industrial employment manifestly is a valuable contribution to recovery. Materials used will be drawn from 35 states.

The government loan has called also for putting 1,200 railroad men to regular employment next week in the Pennsy's own shops.

Not unimportant, this loan is classed as self-liquidating, the money to start flowing back into the federal treasury in two years.

The CWA, the PWA and other governmental agencies for providing purely temporary employment have filled and are filling an emergency need. But neither Washington nor employers should lose sight for a moment of the cardinal fact that lasting prosperity can be wooed and won only if such conditions be brought about that a normal amount of employment be afforded by private enterprise.

The evidence that bankers and employers are moving heaven and earth to expedite the advent of such conditions isn't exactly overwhelming. Delays proverbially are dangerous.

CHAPTER XXIV

"Now isn't it a fact that you returned to this very house again after you had left Mrs. Phelps?" pursued Anderson relentlessly. "You came back here alone and had a second talk with Mrs. Paige—made a second appeal to her sympathies?"

Cleveland shook his head.

"You're wrong there," he declared. "The next time I saw her she was—dead!"

Synopsis

Murder was suspected when Sonia Paige, wife of socially prominent Randolph Paige, was found hanging to a chandelier in her home. Paige and Mrs. Deane, the housekeeper, fail to give the police any clues. Kirk Judson, a shady private detective, is engaged by Paige when police begin their investigation. Robert Cleveland, prominent attorney, says that he was in love with Mrs. Paige and told her so when he visited her home with Mrs. Phelps, a neighbor, on the night of the murder.

Now Go On

"Then why did you park your car up there just off the Paige lane and why were you seen coming from this house about two o'clock in the morning?"

"I wasn't," replied Cleveland, with great finality. "My car was never parked where you mention at any time that night and the only time that I left this house was with Mrs. Phelps at about midnight."

Anderson passed his hand over his forehead wearily.

"Very well," he said. "We will let it go at that for the time being. Thank you for coming to me, Mr. Cleveland and you, too, Mrs. Phelps. I want a chance to think your story over and then I expect there will be some more questions that I shall want you both to answer. Mrs. Phelps, there is nothing that you want to add, is there? Mr. Cleveland's story is correct as far as you know?"

Crazed With Jealousy

"[illegible]ly correct," answered [illegible]

"[illegible]ye then," said Anderson, [illegible]ng and extending his hand. "This has been a pretty tough day for you, Mr. Cleveland, and I sympathize with you more than I am able to say."

He shook hands with them both and motioned for MacNalley to show them out.

Then he turned to me. "I'm a detective," he said whimsically, "but psychologist. You are. How did that yarn strike you?"

"Pretty straight, Andy," I admitted. "Cleveland's had a long and distinguished career. He's not a woman's man by a long shot. I imagine the little girl hit him pretty hard—probably the first time in his life that anything like that ever happened to him. A friendship to her—deadly earnest to him. It all hangs together. But I don't understand about those cigarette butts."

"I'm just wondering," said Anderson slowly. "These quiet natures are uncontrollable once they are aroused. Cleveland admits that he was half-crazed with jealousy. I wonder if he didn't come back here after he left Mrs. Phelps and try to talk to Mrs. Paige?"

"Why did he gag her?" I asked.

Hard to Believe

"Possibly to make her listen to him. Then he accidently killed her and got scared and strung her up."

"But if he was talking to her, he would have noticed that she lost consciousness—that he was strangling her. No, Andy, that's hard for me to believe. Cleveland is a gentleman with many generations of gentlemen behind him. I doubt that he could ever bring himself to lay a finger on a woman's body against her will, let alone hang her to a chandelier."

"Maybe you're right," mused the Inspector. "Anyway I have no doubt that we shall get a line on these particular cigarettes, find out how they came to be in the basement. When we discover that we shall have gone a long way toward solving the mystery."

Ranny Paige came clean that same afternoon, but his story, instead of clearing up the mystery, actually only served to deepen it and to set us thinking along an altogether different line.

As soon as Cleveland and Mrs. Phelps had left, Anderson called his car and we started back for Baltimore. It had been arranged that Paige, accompanied by two police officers (although he was not actually under arrest) was to be at Police Headquarters at seven o'clock.

We stopped at a restaurant on Charles street and ate some dinner, and while we sat at the table, we listened to the Inspector's first real discussion of the case.

"Boys," he said, between mouthfuls of fried potatoes and steak, "there are three motives which generally prompt a murder—love, jealousy, or revenge. When the police are called in to investigate a crime, they at once seek the motive. After they get that, the rest is likely to be clear sailing. Of course, there's robbery, too, and crimes of degeneracy, but we can establish those motives by the circumstances."

No Apparent Motive

"And gangster wars," suggested Carroll. "Many a man's 'taken for a ride.'"

"But that's revenge," pointed Anderson. "I'm talking about the crime in which there doesn't seem to be any apparent motive—like this murder of Mrs. Paige. Now there's Robert Cleveland—he might easily provide the love motive: a middle-aged man, mad with passion and jealousy. I don't say that's true, mind you: I just say that it might be. And then we have Randolph Paige: he may have killed his wife to get rid of her or because he was drunk and quarrelled with her: maybe she accused him of his infidelity and he gagged her just to make her shut up."

"There's something else, too," I suggested. "Has it occurred to you, that Cleveland and Paige may have met one another that night? If Cleveland really did return to the house after leaving Mrs. Phelps, he and Mrs. Paige may have talked for an hour or more. That would bring the time up to somewhere around the hour Ranny says he returned. He may have found them together, been drunk, perhaps——"

"That's certainly an idea, Kay," answered Anderson. "No, I hadn't thought of that. But then where do your phone calls and that letter come in?"

"Maybe they don't come in at all. Mrs. Paige wasn't feeling well, and some note may have upset her."

"But the phone call?" asked Carroll.

The Inspector took a gulp of coffee.

In Talkative Mood

"Maybe there wasn't any," he said, with a whimsical smile. "We've been going on the assumption that Mrs. Deane is okay and is telling us the truth. We've caught her twice now—the first time when she helped Mrs. Phelps to obtain those letters and again when she opened this letter," and he patted the missive from Scotland Yard in his pocket. "Unless I'm very much mistaken, boys, London is going to shed some light on this murder, after all."

"You don't think Mrs. Phelps knows anything about it?"

"Not a thing in the world," answered Anderson promptly. "She's naturally untruthful but she's too transparent to get away with it. And she really was devoted to Mrs. Paige. She'd spring like a tiger at the throat of anyone who threatened her friend. That's her type!"

"What about the burglar theory?" I prompted, for Anderson seemed in an unusually talkative mood.

"That's something I can't get at all," he replied. "If that's the answer, then I'm afraid this case will be pigeonholed along with a lot of other unsolved mysteries. Mrs. Paige seems to have talked promiscuously and wildly about the jewel everywhere she went—at the homes of all her friends where their servants were able to overhear her—at public tea rooms, country club dinners, restaurants where the waiters not only heard her but saw the pearl for themselves. It's almost a hopeless task to check up on all these angles.

"Then, too, the Paige home was notoriously unguarded. Practically anyone who wanted to could have smashed a window and walked in. Sometimes an elderly woman and sometimes a decrepit gardener to protect a woman and a jewel worth a fortune."

Robbery Theory

"Not a fortune in itself," I said. "Worth that to a connoisseur, but what would a thief do with it after he got it?"

"The entire point is whether a burglar knew that. The pearl was reputed to be valuable; any servant overhearing Mrs. Paige would have considered it so and tipped off a crook accordingly. You're right, of course, but there's the chance——"

Then Anderson shook his head decisively. "I just can't get the robbery slant," he declared. "Somehow it doesn't ring true. Every crook leaves his marks of workmanship behind him just as truly as he many times leaves his finger-prints. When a safe is cracked, we know immediately just what men could have done it and order a lineup of them. When counterfeit money pours out, we can round up the craftsmen capable of having manufactured it. Bad-check passers fall into certain classifications and morons—well, I could go on indefinitely but you get the idea.

"It's the same way with burglars. They have certain ear-marks. Any man who breaks into your house during the night is always armed and he's going to kill if he's cornered and has to shoot his way out. The first thing he does is to open some window or rear door so that he can make a snappy getaway. Generally he waits until all the lights are out and he thinks the inmates are asleep.

"Now we found everything locked up at the Paige house with the exception of that one cellar window which was probably left unlatched through some oversight. And Mrs. Paige was up and fully dressed. She was much too young and delicate to put up any fight. A man could have grabbed that pearl in one second and gotten away without any interference."

"Perhaps the pearl was hanging inside her dress where he couldn't see it," said Carroll.

"But I imagine that Mrs. Paige would have had sense enough to have handed it over without any argument," I said.

"Maybe not," replied Anderson.

ROSE CUTWORK LINENS PATTERN 417

Make This Handsome Cutwork Cloth

The needlewoman of discretion today turns to cutwork as proof of her skill. Easy to do, effective when done, it adds elegance to any linen. Especially popular in table linens today, this cloth should meet with the approval of the particular needlewoman. The cutwork can be arranged in a handsome design that will show up to full advantage on the center of the table, with a touch of cutwork repeated at each corner. The motifs also can be used on teacloths, runners and other linens.

Pattern 417 comes to you with a transfer pattern of two 8½ inch corners, three 4½-inch corners and six 3-inch corners; complete directions for cutwork and for arranging the cloth shown. If napkins are desired for this cloth the small motifs will do. If four are used on the corners of the cloth as suggested, a second pattern will be needed and with the six small motifs in this, eight napkins could be made.

Sent 10c for this pattern to Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Needlecraft Department, 82 Eighth avenue, New York City.

JUNIOR PATROL

Geography is an interesting study, fellows!

This cold weather made us think of it. Such things as the weather, and crops, and the oceans, and the continents, and cities and rivers are what geography is all about.

You are probably studying geography now. Do you like it? Do you know why it is cold here in the winter and warm in the summer? Do you know why Pittsburgh is a great manufacturing center, where much steel is made and there are many mills and factories? Why isn't Pittsburgh located up on top of the Allegheny mountains somewhere? Write and tell us why you think Pittsburgh is a big city.

Even if you never go out of this country, it is good for you to know about other countries—studying about them in your geography. Almost every kind of business is interested in the products of other countries and the way people live in those places. The candy you eat contains sugar from Cuba, chocolate from South America, Brazil nuts from Brazil, dates from Africa, and good things from many other parts of the world.

Now here is a swell letter from William Rush, of 1025 Rue Grand Vue, Elliott, Pittsburgh, the captain who says he is going to have the biggest Junior Patrol of all. He writes:

"Enclosed find some letters our members wrote. I enjoy your radio broadcasts and if I can be of any service I am ready at any time. My members bring one cent to each meeting. Our last meeting was held at my house with 10 members present. Our patrol is called the 'Up and Coming Junior Patrol.' My idea for a good motto is 'Always be honest and upright'."

That is a good motto, Bill, and it certainly does seem to be true that you have an up and coming patrol in every respect.

We will print some of the names of your members and some of the letters they have written tomorrow, probably.

CHEESE

A comic poet rarely sees
A thing more lovely than a cheese;
Although said poet, drawing close,
Must elevate his hand to nose
And hold it there in desperation
To save him from asphyxiation;
Though colds that make him cough and sneeze
Are blessings when approaching cheese;
And though the slices that they issue
In drug-store sandwiches like tissue
Are thin, so thin, they're hardly felt,
They always make their presence smelt.
For when the poet lacks a wheeze
He always can rely on cheese;
Can always turn out in despair,
Liederkranz or Camembert.

Duplicating the Effort

Latest gadget in government is to end duplication of effort.

Duplication of effort means five people doing the same thing at five various times.

Also doing it in five different ways.

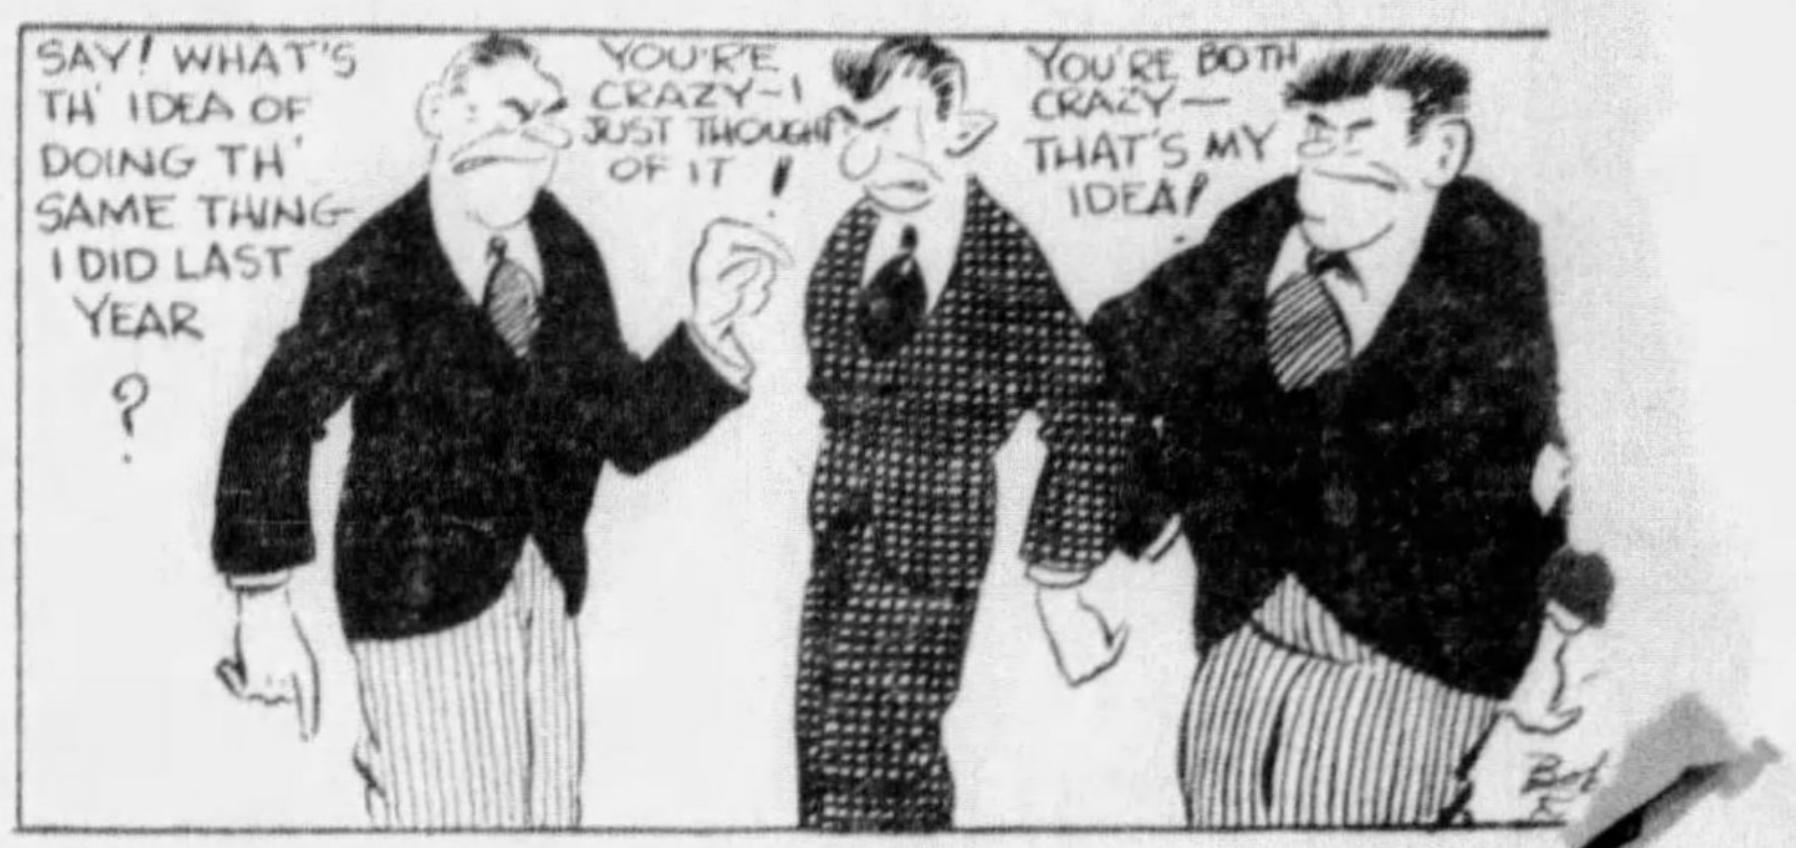
It also means the consolidated taxpayer must foot the office bill without being able to foot the incumbent.

This effort in duplicate occurs mostly in state government. There you have the state, the county, the city, the district and the precinct all smacking away with rubber stamps.

Official stationery now is mostly carbon paper.

In some states you can get taxed six different ways on a gallon of gasoline. Every happy politician collects his end of the legalized plunder. Even the party out of power gets something for voting against it. They were there at the time. Your time comes later.

Go into any municipal building and try to get something accomplished with a note to some potentate whose name is on a glass door. They will push you around like a piano on a vaudeville stage. The biggest mistake any taxpayer can make is to call on his government during office hours.



SAY! WHAT'S TH' IDEA OF DOING TH' SAME THING I DID LAST YEAR ?
YOU'RE CRAZY-I JUST THOUGHT OF IT!
YOU'RE BOTH CRAZY— THAT'S MY IDEA!
Bob

Everybody seems to be busy doing something that happened last year or might happen next week. The saddest thing in the world is the sight of a taxpayer wandering through the corridored maze of his executive labyrinth.

He is impressed, subdued and inobtrusive. The first thing that happens is some rotunda-paunched beadle makes him take off his hat and carry it in his hand. That means another powerfully constructed beadle kicks him out for begging.

That's duplication of effort. And if they can divide it by five it is still too much. It still leaves one. And that one is sure to have four friends.

When the tumult and the economical furore are over they will again launch their everblooming quintet and the duplication will sprout on the vine.

There is but one solution. Dig up the taxes and go to your eternal reward that nobody can collect for you. The machinations and meanderings of modern government are too firmly embedded in the cornerstone of progress to be pruned by protest or weeded by fusion. Like the colored boy doing the jig there are no rules. You just keep on doing it.

America Must Be Prepared! Five More Pages of Uncensored World War Pictures—Next Sunday's Sun-Telegraph

History of the United States Proves the Dangers of Unpreparedness

This scene from war-torn Europe shows how the British—their casualties among untrained troops so terrific in one great drive—had to care for thousands of wounded in open-air dressing stations just behind the trenches. Field and base hospitals were so inadequate that the wounded Tommies were treated almost where they fell on the field of battle.

The lesson for this country is PREPAREDNESS.

This photograph, supplied by International News Photograph Service, is another of the type from the UNCENSORED World War picture collections of FLOYD GIBBONS and LAURENCE STALLINGS. The Sun-Telegraph next Sunday will again publish FIVE FULL PAGES of GIBBONS and STALLINGS pictures showing why America must be prepared. These will make 15 pages of uncensored war pictures published thus far by the Sun-Telegraph.

ONE of the great needs of our time is a military history of the United States giving the unvarnished truth.

The uncensored photographs of the late World War, now appearing in the Sunday Sun-Telegraph, tend to supply that want—slightly, all too slightly. That is one of the indirect purposes, however, of their reproduction.

We feel it our duty to bring home to the American people, if we can, a realizing sense of the tragic suffering of war, and to impress upon them their vital interest in the prevention of war's recurrence, with its immeasurable woe to the generation which sustains the direct shock, and the almost equal suffering of the generations which come after and are obliged to absorb the cost of the actual struggle and, with crippled energies to restore the nation from its havoc.

ALMOST more harrowing than the scenes of the battlefields are the scenes in the back areas among the helpless civil populations. Non-combatants, and yet shot down at will—killed like sheep led to the slaughter. Driven from their homes, facing exposure to cold and storm without even the shelter of trenches or dugouts. Unprotected from enveloping attacks by poisonous gases, trudging the highways, with no destination. The fate of these hapless people, outnumbering the rosters of armies, is the crowning tragedy of war.

And the most cruel fact of war is that its whole trend is in the direction of an ever-heavier impact upon the non-combatant populations of a belligerent country, rather than upon its armed forces, whose protection is not altogether ignored in the scientific view of modern war.

How can we avert these terrors? How can we save ourselves and our posterity from such calamities?

THE fearful thing is that these calamities have their source in ourselves—in our failure to learn from our experience, in our refusal to face the truth and to concern ourselves with it.

"AN EFFICIENT PREPARATION FOR WAR CAN ALONE SECURE PEACE."

These were the words of John Adams in his second message to Congress. They have been echoed times without number by every statesman in our history who loved his country and yearned for its peace and happiness.

THEY ARE THE WHOLE LESSON OF WAR. CAN WE LEARN IT? WILL WE LEARN IT?

WE have spoken of the need of a military history of our country which shall tell the unvarnished truth.

Our historians have painted in glowing colors the successes of our former wars, but have suppressed with studied care the blunders which have characterized our military policy throughout the past.

Every war we have fought has been a sad history of waste and inefficiency. In the War of the Revolution the American army used nearly three men to the enemy's one, and yet, only two military events had a direct bearing upon the ultimate expulsion of the British—the capture of Burgoyne at Saratoga, and the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown, which was made possible by the assistance of a French army and a French fleet.

THE War of 1812, in which the British occupied Washington, burned many public buildings, and forced the President and his officials to flee the capital, was an appalling record of losses and failure. Chaos reigned everywhere.

From the standpoint of our national pride it was redeemed by Jackson's victory at New Orleans with the Tennessee riflemen, but by a singular irony this battle was won only after peace had been concluded. It was an epilogue to the war, rather than an element in its outcome.

An "unvarnished" history of our Indian wars, of the Mexican War, of the Civil War, of the Spanish War, would tell the same story of belated and panicky energy, wasteful and ineffective effort and ruinous and inexcusable losses.

As to the World War from which, despite the years that have elapsed since the armistice, we are hardly yet emerged, its cost runs into uncomputable billions. It is not possible yet for us to reckon with any approach to finality or accuracy what its cost to the nation will prove to be.

CONGRESS should have no hesitancy in making outlays which would secure us against war's approach and which are of pigmy size compared to the ultimate cost of the war they would be sufficient to avert.

Our people seem determined to forget the unnecessary cost, both in blood and treasure, of our past wars, and to remember only that somehow or other we have emerged from them successfully.

As the late General Leonard Wood said in appealing to his countrymen for military preparedness:

> "Ignorance concerning our military history is universal and profound. The lesson of all war history is the necessity of thorough preparation."

He calls attention to the fact that improvements in transportation have enormously reduced the period of an enemy's approach and that everything operates in favor of the prepared nation, while the unprepared pacific nation has an increasingly reduced chance of successful resistance.

He reminds us of something which in our vainglory and boastfulness we are apt to forget, and that is, that WE HAVE NEVER YET WAGED WAR SINGLE-HANDED WITH A FIRST-CLASS NATION PREPARED FOR WAR.

> "Our people," says he, "know nothing about what such a struggle means. They have no conception of the effect of the application of a well-organized and thoroughly prepared military force."

Fellow citizens! Will you not heed such words of earnest warning? It cannot be that as a people we are so light of mind as to be content with a fictitious security, flattering ourselves that because we have escaped destruction in the past, we may banish apprehension as to the future.

Remember—remember always, and never forget—"AN EFFICIENT PREPARATION FOR WAR CAN ALONE SECURE PEACE."

And translate this truth into action—effective action—and a genuine and lasting security and peace.

In next Sunday's Sun-Telegraph will again appear five pages of UNCENSORED war pictures, still further impressing the lesson we must heed:

Keep foreign wars out of America—and keep America out of foreign wars!"

Bootleggers Must Go!

The Co-operation of the Courts Is Essential for the Success of the Campaign.

Representatives of state and federal agencies are scheduled to confer in Harrisburg today on a campaign to drive bootleggers out of Pennsylvania.

The campaign should have the cordial support of every patriotic Pennsylvanian, regardless of what his views on liquor may be.

The State Liquor Control Board is already selling in some places, and soon will be elsewhere, liquor at lower prices than can be asked by bootleggers for liquor of equal quality. If bootleggers' prices are lower than those of the State Liquor Control Board, the bootleggers' liquor must be adulterated. We think this can be depended upon, in time, to put the bootleggers out of business.

In the meantime it devolves upon the police to stop the illegal trade—the police and the courts.

The co-operation of the judges is most important. Prison sentences must be imposed to teach the bootleggers that the Prohibition era has passed, and that, with liquor obtainable from state stores or licensed venders, the illicit traffic no longer will be tolerated.

The Pipe of Peace

Women Will Be Slow To Give Up Cigarets, But If They Must Change—

A rising interest of women in the art of pipe smoking is to be discerned in the so-called upper circles. But the sex in general has shunned the briar and dudeen. And as for cigars, many thousands of unsung Amy Lowells, in the seclusion of their homes, draw solace from the cheroot.

The dominance of the cigaret among ladies was due to its grace and slim, elegant design. The pipe is not so much to look at, and it symbolizes the more rugged, masculine qualities, and it can't be waved about without getting ashes all over the carpet. In the primitive deep South this doesn't make any difference, for there are no carpets.

It will be a long time before women bid farewell to what Balzac called "enchanted cigaret," but if they must make a change, then the pipe is best. A switch to cigars might upset domestic bliss if the wife raids too often the stock of Coronas.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—A remarkable figure in the literary scene is Finley Peter Dunne. One of the wealthiest writing men, he launched his career as a reporter in Chicago during the era when Ade, John McCutcheon and Eugene Field were riding top gallant. And he followed them into magazines and books.

His homespun philosophy, written around the mythical Mr. Dooley, left a permanent impress on literature. He is widely quoted among nestors of the political clubs even today. In younger years Dunne was a bon vivant who could down a quart of champagne without batting an eye.

Today he is ruddy cheeked and brimming with vitality. One of his early companions was the globe-trotting Bob Collier and Dunne circled the globe with him several times. Of all men in literary trade, he had the greatest capacity for forming friendships with men of wealth.

Another of his cronies was Harry Payne Whitney and both Collier and Whitney left Dooley's creator substantial sums in their wills. Thus by violating many success rules laid down by the Orison Swett Mardens, he reaches the usual "benefit" period in a sunsetty glow of health, wealth and fame.

* * *

It has been several months since I've idled around my favorite loafing spot—the Information Desk at Grand Central. Of employes meeting the public, attendants there seem best of all risers to the occasion. Targets for an incessant barrage of questions that would confuse the average, they are always serene and unruffled. A bewildered old lady wanted to know how to get a dead ear phone recharged and a tweedy sprout with golf clubs inquired if the club car sold a certain brand of table water. Thus it thused for 20 minutes. Also a fellow rushed up who fluttered in flutey uptakes exactly like Ed Wynn.

* * *

At the month ago opening of the Ziegfeld Follies now bequeathed to the Shuberts and housed in their Winter Garden, I saw sitting alone far back a gentle soul the public rarely sees but who, as Ziegfeld's handyman, had much to do with the success of revues. He is Percy Thomas who seemed wrapped in the bliss of passive meditation. I wondered if he might not be thinking of other days, other faces—Bert Williams, Jimmy Hussey, Jack Donohue, Johnnie Dooley, Bert Savoy, Raymond Hitchcock, Anna Held, Olive Thomas, Martha Mansfield, Ed Gallagher and Helen Walsh.

* * *

New York's first night audiences attempt to attain smartness by hiding enthusiasm. This gives a premiere a chill that cannot be overcome by the usual claque. Often when there should be a loud outburst there is a ripple. Acting is tough enough these days without the audience exploiting professional solemnity.

* * *

Oddly enough, this lethargy is not pronounced at receptions for foreign stars—especially British importations. The most extravagant first night outbursts have been for Noel Coward, Mrs. Pat Campbell, Beatrice Lillie and Gertrude Lawrence. They can scarcely speak their lines for cheering and huzzah of "Bravos." Commendable, to be sure, but always I am tweaked by the outrageous razzing the only American on a vaudeville bill at the Palladium in London received the summer of 1926. He was an excellent performer. His sole dereliction was an American accent.

* * *

So flushed with indignation was I at this studied insolence that I barged smack through the fog to the Savoy and, following the British formula in anger, wrote a scorching letter to the Times. It was a pip, if I do say. Beginning in soft and silky metronome and working up to a skyrocket finish, I let the manners of perfidious old Albion have both barrels, blooey, blooey! Months later my wife, to whom it was given to mail, handed it to me. I'm not even allowed to get mad at our house.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

'Beating the Game'

Every now and then we are urged to be optimistic and are scolded for being gloomy or fearful. But, to me, it looks as though this world were still flooded with beautiful optimism and filled with "pollyannas" who naively believe that they can "beat the game!"

AND THIS NEW CREAM—WELL I LOOK YEARS YOUNGER

Believe it or not, there are still lots of bright fellows who are just waiting for another chance to hang up their stockings—and shirts—in Wall Street for Santa Claus to fill. And there are lots and lots of people who still fondly believe the "Recovery" means the return to Easy Street and Easy money, high-pressure salesmanship, promotion schemes and Bigger and Better Rackets!

* * *

Confirmed OPTIMISTS, with visions of fairy-fortunes, magic gold and Get-rich-quick schemes, who never give up hope of getting something for nothing!

* * *

Not all the discoveries and disillusionments of the past five years have taught them that they CAN'T BEAT THE GAME!

* * *

But these dreamers of the Easy Money School are a mere handful compared to the thousands of optimists who fancy that they are going to beat Old Mother Nature—or Old Father Time.

* * *

Women who believe that they can buy beauty by the box, charm by the bottle and health by the carton! Men, who are persuaded that so long as they are "young at heart" their arteries will never harden and their double chins won't be noticed.

* * *

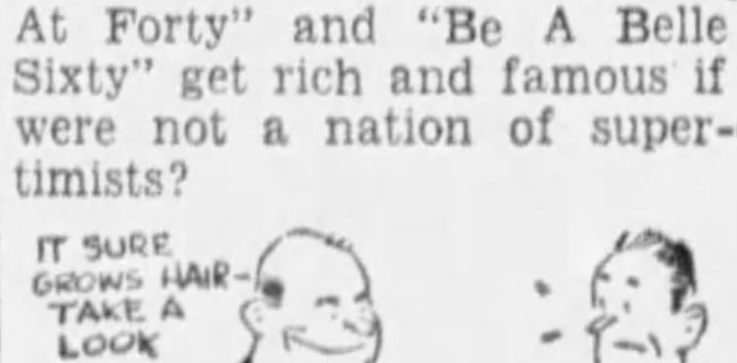
Women who fondly put their faith in every new "miracle" the beauty specialists offer—and men who quaintly believe in hair-restorers and are convinced that any man is irresistible so long as he has his waist-line, his top hair and a good line of chatter and haberdashery.

* * *

Optimists? Why the world is positively choked with optimists. How else could all these specialists and scientists get BY with their youthifiers and face-lifts and gland treatments and reducing treatments and magic cures?

* * *

And how could the authors of such books as "How to Live A Hundred Years" and "Life Begins At Forty" and "Be A Belle at Sixty" get rich and famous if we were not a nation of super-optimists?



IT SURE GROWS HAIR—TAKE A LOOK

A nation of super-optimists, each one trying to beat the game—ANY game!

* * *

How much pleasanter life would be if we would all just take it on the chin and admit that YOU CAN'T BEAT THE GAME! That there's no such thing as "EASY money" or "eternal youth" or a "safe racket"! That you can't get something for nothing, that you can't buy love or beauty or youth; and that life DOESN'T begin (or end) at forty—but neuritis and crowsfeet sometimes do!

* * *

Most Americans grow poor, trying to "get rich"; and grow old, struggling to stay young! They're SO optimistic!

Text for Today

For godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation not to be repented of: but the sorrow of the world worketh death.—II. Corinthians, vii:10.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

'Thou Shalt Be Glad Again—Never Surrender!'

Blue days. Through days. How they get you about this time of year!

Then what happens to all noble resolutions? How do you feel about the Noble Maxims you quote so comfortably at braver times? "Haywire! Hooey!" That's what happens—that's how you feel.

Gray rain beating on the window—gray wind howling 'round the wall—gray despair filling you, chilling you, turning you into a desperate ghost without hope or home. That's the picture when the Blue Days come.

And they come for all of us, regardless. Whether we're lucky and loved, or lonely and licked, the Blue Days come—and nothing and no one can help us then, for our souls are sick.

So I woke the other morning—hating everything, doubting everything. Wishing I could lie down again—close my eyes—quit for keeps. But of course I couldn't. So I wrote an article—tore it up. baked a cake—burnt it.

Then I yanked on a coat, pulled down my hat and went out into the rain to walk the bare, winter hills.

Gray sky, gray earth, gray heart.

Where was I going? Why was I going? I couldn't answer.

What was the use? For me—for any of us—what was the use of all this struggle after the first foolish heat of youth was gone; after one learned how short life was, how futile and meaningless?

Suddenly I stumbled. Blindly I had left the road, come upon an unfenced, ploughed field. Startled, I looked around.

Darkness and rain.

But marching straight against the stormy north, and flinging themselves in files or flame toward the warming south, there ran the first green blades of wheat!

Winter in the sky—winter on the hills—winter in my heart.

BUT THERE, DEFYING THE WINTER, LAUGHING AT DEATH, SINGING, FLINGING ITS IMMORTAL SONG OF CONQUERING LIFE—THERE CAME THE SPRING!

And suddenly, like an answer to that song, there flashed th memory of Bliss Carman's lines:

"Soul, art thou sad again,
"With the old sadness?
"Thou shalt be glad again
"With a new gladness,
"When April sun and rain
"Mount to the teeming brain
"With the earth-madness.

"When from the mould again,
"Spurning disaster,
"Spring shoots unfold again,
"Follow thou faster
"Out of the drear domain
"Of dark, defeat, and pain,
"Praising the Master.

"Thou shalt take heart again,
"No more despairing!
"Play thy great part again,
"Loving and caring.
"Hark how the gold refrain
"Runs through the iron strain,
"Splendidly daring!

"Thou shalt grow strong again,
"Confident, tender;
"Battle with wrong again;
"Be truth's defender;
"Of the immortal train
"Born to attempt, attain—
"Never surrender!"

Blue days. Through days. Have they come to you again? Days when, though you count all your assets over and over, you can see no reason to go on. For everything fails. What can you really depend on?

Stop counting. Stop doubting. Whatever else fails—even though you yourself fail yourself—there is always one thing you can count on. There is always one thing that nothing can vanquish—that will return again after any battle, any seeming defeat, untarnished and undiminished—

LIFE!

Stop doubting and counting. Stop fear and struggling. Wait, as the earth waits, confident, complacent. No matter how long or dark the winter, spring is at ha again.

"THOU SHALT BE GL AGAIN—NEVER SURRENDER!
